FRENCH OBJECTION TO GERMAN REPLY TO RESULT IN NEW NOTE FROM ALLIES

It Will State That Communication From Germany Is Assumed to Mean Delegation Will Refrain From Discussion of All Russian Problems.

FRENCH WALK OUT OF EXPERTS' MEETING

Session on Russian Reconstruction Plan Breaks Up as Result — Communique Says Treaty Apparently Was Arranged Before Parley.

By the Associated Press.

GENOA, April 22.—A crisis in the economic conference, raised today by the French objection to Germany's reply to the ten-Power note, suggesting that the German delegation refrain from discussions relating to Russian affairs, had not passed satisfactorily up to a late hour this evening.

At a meeting of representatives of the 10 entente Powers late this afternoon, it was agreed that another note should be sent to the Germans stating it was assumed that they meant, in their reply transmitted yesterday, to refrain from all Russian discussions in the political commission of the conference.

In fact, the British and most of the other interested delegations so interpreted the German reply. But the French expressed fear that the German note left a loophole through which the Germans might enter into discussions of Russian questions not treated in the Russo-German treaty signed at Rapallo last Sunday.

The ten Power delegates will meet tomorrow to draft this supplementary note to the Germans, but it was not known tonight whether the French would agree to this action, as they are extremely suspicious of the German document, and apparently the French delegation at Genoa is being driven hard by Paris to have it revised.

Objections by French.

The French also raised objections to the voluminous Bolshevik document which became public yesterday, in which Russia made a long reply to the London experts' report on the restoration of Russia.

M. Barthou said the French could not sit with the Russian commission again until this document was discussed. The soviet experts explained that this document comprised merely their own arguments and was superseded by M. Chitcherin's note setting forth the Russian position exactly.

Premier Lloyd George appeared much annoyed over the French "gulbble." He declared he had only read three lines of the Russian document, which had never been officially presented to the conference and was patently part of the normal bolshevik propaganda. He also announced that he was getting tired of crises which were being foisted, upon the conference, to the great detriment of work, and wished to say on behalf of the delegations of the British Empire that if these crises and consequent delays continued, he would be forced to explain who was responsible for them.

The British delegation has not received as yet the protest which the French Government is reported to have sent out from Paris to the Powers signatory to the Versailles treaty, in which France is said to maintain that the Russo-German treaty is in violation of the Versailles treaty.

French Experts Quit Meeting.

When the experts met today to discuss the Russian reconstruction question the French representative explained that he could not remain so long as the misunderstanding created by the Russian memorandum was not cleared up. This memorandum, he asserted, was in absolute contradiction to the Soviet's answer to the Allies accepting the Allies' conditions. The French delegate then withdrew from the meeting and the Japanese did likewise, and the meeting broke up. It is to smooth out this matter that the subcommission on Russian affairs will meet tomorrow. Neither Russian nor German representatives will attend this meeting. Seven Russians were present at today's meeting of experts.

According to an English spokes-

Chitcherin at King's Luncheon; Filmed Shaking Hands With Barthou

GENOA, April 22.

By the Associated Press.

GEORGE CHITCHERIN, head of the Russian soviet delegation to the economic conference, not only went to luncheon today with the King of Italy on the dreadnaught Dante Alighieri, to the discomfiture of Italian communists, but also wore for the occasion an immaculate morning coat and a high hat of latest style and was filmed by motion picture photographers as he was shaking hands with the Italian monarch.

Furthermore, the Bolshevist statesman was photographed in the act of shaking hands with Louis Barthou, head of the French delegation, who has been particularly active in taking exception to Russian proposals at the conference. When M. Barthou discovered that he had been photographed in the act of exchanging greetings with the soviet chieftain, there was something of a scene. He demanded in explosive French that the film be destroyed.

The thought of such a film being shown in the motion picture houses along the Champs Elysee was too much for the French delegate, but the hard-hearted movie men ignored his expletives and continued filming the rest of the notables who were the King's guests at the luncheon.

M. Chitcherin was accompanied by Leonid Krassin, Russian soviet trade expert, who also was clad in approved Downing street style. In fact the representatives of the Russian proletariat government were the most bourgeois-looking guests on the Italian battleship. M. Chitcherin sat during the luncheon near Mgr. Signori, Archbishop of Genoa.

FORMER ANNA GOULD'S DAUGHTER BARELY ESCAPES ELLIS ISLAND

Aunt Whom Young Girl Came From France to Visit Failed to Appear Upon Her Arrival.

NEW YORK, April 22.—Violette Helene de Talleyrand-Perigord, youngest daughter of the former Anna Gould, narrowly escaped going to Ellis Island with a batch of immigrants when she arrived on the steamship Paris today for a visit with her aunt, Mrs. Finley K. Shepard, at Tarrytown.

Mrs. Shepard had planned to meet her young niece, but failed to appear through a misunderstanding as to when the Paris would dock. Immigration authorities, learning that Violette was under 16, ordered her detention under the law prohibiting the entrance of minors "unaccompanied by parent or guardian."

Word was sent to Mrs. Shepard and she arrived with her lawyer just in time to have a special board authorize Violette's admittance before less fortunate immigrants were taken to the detention pens at Ellis Island.

CUT IN RAIL RATES TO AID FARMERS IS RECOMMENDED

Joint Congressional Commission of Agricultural Inquiry Finds They Are Disproportionate to Prices.

THREE PROPOSALS TO BETTER SERVICE

Enlargement of Competitive Avenues, Extension of Through Grain Rates Among the Suggestions.

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, April 22.—Transportation rates on products of agriculture, as on many other commodities, now "bear a disproportionate relation to the price of such commodities" and should be reduced immediately, according to findings of the joint congressional commission of agricultural inquiry, announced today by Chairman Anderson.

Not only should these freight charges come down, the report declared, but in the future rate making bodies and railroad traffic offices should give "greater consideration to the relative value of commodities in the making of rates," and let existing charges on high priced finished products stand, if necessary to remove cost burdens from basic materials.

Should Readjust Rates.

Exhaustive review of the transportation situation has convinced the commission, Chairman Anderson said, that "pyramided per cent advances" of freight rates during the war and following years, "caused dislocation of long standing relationships between rates on agricultural and industrial products and between competitive enterprises and competitive territories" which dislocations should now be removed. The object of rate making bodies should be, he said, in presenting the commission's views, "to readjust rates so far as practicable to the relationship existing prior to 1918."

Effects of freight rates are emphasized, it was said because on perishables, "they amount normally to one-third of the selling price, and frequently two-thirds" and "purchasers and farmers are dependent in a marked degree upon transportation charges" in prices. The general result of increased railroad rates and depressed commodities prices was to bring railroad rates on farm products in October, 1921, to an index average of 169, or roughly 69 per cent above pre-war levels, while farm products stood at 102, or barely two per cent above pre-war.

Outside of its general conclusions, the commission advanced three specific proposals to better transportation service for farmers, the first being the enlargement of "competitive avenues of distribution through which the largest number of consumers can reasonably be reached," the second was the extension of through rates on grain "to points of consumption through two or more competitive primary markets" and the third the extension of the principle that coarse grains, such as corn, should take lower charges than breadstuffs. Adequate car equipment should also be maintained, it was added.

Views as to Livestock.

Further, the commission found that "Livestock shoks marked fluctuations in shipment volume" and that railroads, stockyards and shippers should co-operate to even out the supply at market points, thus preventing price and charge impositions while hay, as the bulkiest farm commodity, required "a reduction in both freight and sales margin before there can be resumption of normal shipments." Costs on livestock distribution also must be brought down, it was held.

On dairy products and on cotton the commission concluded that freight charges had not had so serious an effect as upon some other farm stuffs and as to wool, Anderson remarked that its price "to the producer has been depressed somewhat by freight rates, but primarily by disorderly and unscientific marketing."

Moving to the study of indirect freight costs affecting farmers, as they enhance prices of things farmers buy, Chairman Anderson said that "fertilizer prices were found to be close to the pre-war basis except for freight costs.

Coal and Lumber Situation.

Coal and steel, being of "intimate interest" to the farming consuming population, the commission declared that freight charges on steel represented 41 per cent of its cost, while bituminous coal should be subjected to reductions in mine prices, freight rates and sales margins.

BOY, ARM BROKEN, DROWNED TRYING TO SAVE BROTHER

Attempt to Rescue Lad, 6, Proves Futile — Both Die in Quarry Pond 20 Feet Deep.

SISTER TRIES TO PUSH POLES OUT TO THEM

Older Boy Jumps In and Supports Younger With One Arm; Playmates Run to Bring Help.

James Reynolds, 19 years old, 7928 Pennsylvania avenue, lost his life yesterday afternoon when, although one arm was fractured, he jumped into a quarry pond in an effort to save his 6-year-old brother, George. The sacrifice was futile, for George, too, was drowned.

James, carrying his left arm in a sling, went to the pond between Koeln and Stein, Polk and Reilly streets, accompained by George and their 9-year-old sister, Josephine. James was sitting on the Koeln street bank fishing, when George fell into the pond, which is 20 feet deep.

James, unmindful of his condition, leaped into the water. Josephine saw both come to the surface and saw James get George under his right arm, but with his broken left arm he could not swim.

She and several small boys who had been fishing tried to push poles out to them, but were unable to reach them. She ran home to call her father, Patrick Reynolds. The boys called Edward Rolf of 211 Stein street and Leonard Lincoln of 7627 Water street. When they reached the pond the water was rippling, but the brothers had gone down for the last time.

Rolf brought ropes and grappling hooks and the pond was dragged, and after a while the bodies were recovered, one at a time. They were taken to the city hospital and the pulmotor was used, without avail.

James was employed by the Ely & Walker Dry Goods Co. His parents had misgivings about allowing the young children go with him when he started to the quarry pond, and Mrs. Reynolds suggested that her husband accompany them, but he thought James would be able to take care of the small ones, and did not go.

The funeral will be Tuesday at 9:30, with burial in Mount Olive Cemetery.

OBREGON CALLS KING DEMANDS IN THE U. S. SENATE "A JOKE"

Mexican President Characterizes Author of Blockade Recommendation "the Newest Ace of Interventionists."

By the Associated Press.

MEXICO CITY, April 22.—Statements made in the United States Senate by Senator King, advocating a blockade of Mexico and the seizure of Mexican ports as a guarantee for the payment of American claims against Mexico, were described today as a joke and the Senator was characterized as "the newest ace of the interventionists" by President Obregon in an interview with the newspaper correspondents.

The President said he did not believe the declarations of Senator King would affect public opinion, either in the United States or Mexico.

Vote for Bonus Would Be Barter of Public Funds for Political Power, Senator Borah Replies to Legion Post

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, April 22.—Senator Borah, Republican, of Idaho, states in a letter to the Pocatello (Idaho) Post, American Legon, that if he voted for the soldier bonus bill "it would be a simple matter of barter, in which I use the people's money to buy somebody's vote." The letter was in response to a telegram received by the Senator from the Pocatello Post and was made public by him tonight.

"I observe in your telegram," it says, "the threat which you impliedly make as to future political punishment. It was wholly unnecessary for you to make this threat. It reflected no credit upon you and it has had no effect whatever upon me. When you come to that fight in which you propose to inflict punishment, you will doubtless be able to say many things in the way of censure upon my purpose.

"But one thing, neither you nor anyone else will be able to say, and that is that I ever sought to purchase political power by drafts upon the public treasury, or that I chose to buy a continuation in office by putting four billions of dollars upon the bended backs of American taxpayers.

"I haven't much respect for the man who buys office, even though he pays for it with his own money. But the most slimy creature which disgraces American politics is the man who buys office by paying for it with appropriations out of the public treasury, and charges his venal political obligations to the taxpayers.

"If I thought this measure a proper one, I could and would vote for it. But, believing with thousands of former service men who have written me that it is not a proper one, I should vote for it, it would be simple matter of barter, in which I use the people's money to buy somebody's vote; in which the account of my political expenses would be charged to the taxpayers.

"Of course, you understand that I have at all times supported and stand ready to support any measure which will help the disabled veteran."

PEPPERED NEOPHYTE EXPOSES BURGLARY CLUB OF STUDENTS

Lad, Hit by Marshal's Buckshot, Says He Was Being Initiated by "Hard Fellows."

By the Associated Press.

COLUMBUS, O., April 22.—The six burglaries which set the sedate college town of Granville on edge Wednesday night, and caused the entire male student body of Denison University to be lined up and examined for buckshot wounds, were solved today by Dr. E. C. Brock of Columbus Police Department.

The "burglar" who was hit by the buckshot from Marshal Shipley's rifle was Paul George Phyphers, Richmond Heights, O., a senior in the prep school. His connection with the burglaries was discovered when he came here for treatment.

The burglaries, he told Police Lieutenant O'Connor, were perpetrated by a club of "hard fellows," a "collection of good for nothing bums." To be a member of this organization, one must "pull" a job of burglary, Phypers said. Nothing was ever taken on these jobs, he asserted.

Phypers said nine members of the club were playing poker Wednesday night when some one suggested they shake off their ennui by smashing a window.

"This kept on until we had things pretty well upset," Phypers said.

"We trailed the Marshal, and tried to get him to chase us. Finally we broke the front window of a jewelry store, and then I got mine."

The lad is being held for the Marshal of Granville. He said he was a nephew of Dean Paul Tanner of the university, and lived at the dean's home.

PASTOR CUTS $10,000 SALARY IN HALF AS CHURCH ECONOMY

Rev. Percy Grant Helps Vestry to Meet Large Deficits—Several Salaried Workers Dismissed.

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, April 22.—The Rev. Percy Stickney Grant, rector of the Church of the Ascension, has voluntarily accepted a 50 per cent reduction in his salary to help his vestry cut down expenses and meet a large deficit. This action decreases his annual stipend from $10,000 to $5000.

It also became known today that several salaried church workers have been dismissed and that the vestry has raised enough money to meet the deficit for the current church year. Closing of the parish house was threatened unless this was done.

Candidate to Use "Red Fire."

By the Associated Press.

YOUNGSTOWN, O., April 22.—Mayor George L. Oles of this city today announced his candidacy for Governor of Ohio on an independent ticket. Oles is not going to be sparing of "red fire" he said today. He told of some of the features of his proposed campaign. Three weeks before election, he said, he will charter a private train for a State-wide tour "with a brass band and two freight car loads of red fire."

FORMER SENATOR DEPEW TO BE 88 YEARS OLD TODAY

Says World Is Filled With Mighty Good People—Refuses to Discuss Prohibition.

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, April 22. — Former United States Senator Chauncey M. Depew, who will celebrate his eighty-eighth birthday tomorrow, is still a hard-working optimist.

"I see more hope for the future of the world on my eighty-eighth birthday than on any in the last seven years," he said. "I am entering my eighty-ninth year jubilant. I am pretty well satisfied with this world and mean to stay in it as long as I can. I have a feeling that it is filled with mighty good people. It has always been to me a garden to be cultivated. We can't pull up the weeds, but we can find some places where we can grow the things we like—men and women, boys and girls, for instance."

Apparently hale and hearty, Depew made his daily visit today to the offices of the New York Central Railroad, where he presides as chairman of the board of directors. The former Senator discussed many subjects, but tabooed prohibition.

"I always refrain from discussing that subject," he said, "because it only makes people mad. I prefer not to say anything about it. I want to keep all my friends.

"I never drink whisky," he continued, referring to his personal preferences in the matter. "I found out early in life that whisky and brandy and such drinks were very detrimental to good health, and I left them alone. I was accustomed to drink a little champagne daily with my luncheon."

Insisting that there were formula for old age, he counseled moderation in all things.

"Don't overwork," he said. "Don't overplay. Don't overeat. Most of all, don't overdrink.

"Learn to smile."

By the Associated Press.

PARIS, April 22.—Jack Dempsey, with Jack Kearns, his manager, arrived here from London today for a short visit. The heavyweight champion managed to dodge a crowd of several thousand enthusiasts, reaching his hotel without encountering any demonstration.

Dempsey was tired and sleepy after his trip and said he was going to keep indoors tonight. Tomorrow he will go to the races after a little run about town.

SHOOTING FOLLOWS HOLDUP IN WHICH LESS THAN $100 IS TAKEN

POLICE THROUGHOUT CITY LOOKING FOR THE AUTO

Michael O'Connor and Bernard C. Mengel, Men Slain, Louis A. Held in Hospital With Wound Through Right Shoulder—All Three of Wyoming Street District in Which Robbery of Morris & Co. Office at 3000 South Broadway Occurred.

Two policemen were killed and a third was seriously wounded by two robbers who held up the Morris & Co. packing plant branch office at 3000 South Broadway at 10:30 a. m. yesterday and escaped with less than $100.

Patrolman Michael O'Connor of the Wyoming Street Station was on the west side of South Broadway, nearly opposite the office, when a man told him that there was "a stick-up at Morris'." He ran over to the office, entered and fired twice through a glass partition at one of the robbers. The other robber shot O'Connor, killing him instantly.

Patrolmen Bernard C. Mengel and Louis A. Held, who were in the South Side Trust Co., across the street, were summoned by the same man, and running out, crossed in time to meet the two robbers leaving the Morris office and making for their automobile. In a general exchange of shots Mengel suffered three wounds, from which he died in the City Hospital at 1 p. m., and Held was shot through the right shoulder. He is in the hospital.

The robbers escaped in the automobile, described as a green Oldsmobile touring car with faded top, which a third man had kept waiting for them, in the street nearly in front of the office, with engine running. The car was driven west on Pestalozzi street.

Holdup Apparently Mistimed.

They had apparently planned to get both the payroll money and the collections brought in by drivers, but they were too late for the payroll, most of the employes having been paid, and too early for the collections, as the drivers had not come in.

A general order was issued last night to policemen and detectives to look for the green Oldsmobile, which is believed to have been the same car used in two previous robberies, the more recent at a Kroger store on Ashland avenue. It had a license tag the first three numbers of which were 199—the numbers in the 199,000 group are those of Kansas City automobiles. In a previous robbery, the tag number of the green Olds was taken, and was found to be the number of a car then regularly in use in Kansas City, indicating that the tag on the robbers' car was a duplicate or a bogus one.

Detectives were sent to St. Louis County and to the East Side to look for the car, which some witnesses thought was a Paige, but which the police believe, as stated, to be an Olds.

In a roundup of police characters last night, 17 men were taken to headquarters. No definite evidence against any of them is at hand.

Scene of the Robbery.

The Morris office is at the northeast corner of South Broadway and Arsenal street. A shipping platform, two feet above the ground, is in front of the building, which stands back of the building line, with a small traffic plaza in front. A number of automobiles and trucks were in this space.

Within the building, the office quarters are to the right of the main entrance, and behind a partition of ordinary glass. In this office were Charles Olsen, branch manager; Arthur Garden and Delmer Berkel, bookkeepers, and Joseph Fleischman, produce foreman.

The robbers, who are described by

Police Probably Will Raise Reward Fund for Arrest of Murderers

EVERY member of the St. Louis Police Department will be asked to contribute to a fund to be offered as a reward for the capture of the murderers of Patrolmen O'Connor and Mengel, if no arrest of importance is made in the case by tomorrow. This was announced last night by Chief O'Brien.

The same was done last May, in the case of the murder of Special Policeman Finn, and a reward of $1200 was made up by the contributions, and was subsequently paid to the captors of Spencer Jordan, who was recently convicted of the murder, his punishment being fixed at hanging.

The families of the two patrolmen will receive each the $3000 benefit of the Police Relief Association, and a year's salary for each, $1680 for O'Connor and $1380 for Mengel (a probationary), making $4680 and $4380, respectively.

UNITED STATES REPRESENTED IN GERMANY AGAIN

Concluding Formality Effecting Complete Restoration of Diplomatic Relations Disposed of Yesterday.

SIMPLICITY MARKS BRIEF CEREMONY

"Restoration and Cultivation of Good Will, My Instructions," Says Houghton — Ebert Returns Felicitations

By the Associated Press.

BERLIN, April 22.—The American Embassy in Wilhelmplatz again houses a fully accredited Ambassador, the concluding formality on effecting complete and formal restoration of diplomatic relations between the United States and Germany having been disposed of at noon today, when Alonzo B. Houghton placed in the hands of President Ebert his letters of credence, designating him "Ambassador Extraordinary and Plenipotentiary" of the United States Government to Germany.

Accompanied by his staff of secretaries and military and naval attaches, Houghton proceeded to the executive residence, where President Ebert, attended by Dr. Daniel von Haimhausen, Undersecretary of Foreign Affairs, Councilor von Guelich, also of the Foreign Office, and Councilors of the President's executive staff awaited the presentation formalities which soon were ended, after which the American presented credentials with brief remarks, to which Herr Ebert made the customary response.

Short Informal Chat.

The two engaged in an informal chat for 10 minutes, and then the Americans returned to the embassy.

In addressing President Ebert, the American said: "I have the honor to hand you herewith letters of credence accrediting me to your Government as Ambassador extraordinary and plenipotentiary of the United States, and I do not need to express to you that I am sensible of the honor the President of the United States has conferred on me in sending me to reside near your excellency's Government.

Felicitations Returned.

"Aside from my instructions, which look toward increasing friendly intercourse between Germany and the United States, and restoration and cultivation of the good will which should exist with them, it is with the greatest pleasure that I express my personal desire to carry out these instructions, and I will attempt in every personal way to bring about a mutual understanding between your excellency's country and my own.

"I pray that your excellency, being assured, both of my official and personal motives on this point, will find me, having in mind the just interests of my country, of all possible use in bringing this most desirable condition to fulfillment."

President Ebert replied in German that he was happy to accept the credentials, and warmly thanked the Ambassador. He noted with great satisfaction that the United States was looking toward the cultivation of mutual friendship, and assured the Ambassador that the German Government was minded similarly and would assist him to the utmost in this endeavor.

JUDGE SAYS PREACHERS ON JURY EXPEDITE LAW'S COURSE

Two Pastors Among Peers Causes Each of 10 Indicted to Enter Pleas of Guilty.

MIAMI, Ok., April 22.—Drafting ministers of the gospel as jurors in criminal cases is the best method possible of expediting court work, declared Judge Q. P. McGee of the County Court here today. He based this conclusion on the result that followed the appearance of the Rev. A. P. Cameron of the Christian Church and the Rev. C. W. Primm of the Apostolic Church in the panel for the terms opening yesterday.

The presence of two ministers resulted in pleas of guilty by the 10 individuals under indictment. Instead of a fortnight of trials, Judge McGee was able to dispose of all cases and impose sentences today.

"When the prisoners were led in and saw the two ministers sitting in the front row, I saw they seemed much agitated," said the Judge.

That it was the presence of the ministers that brought about this result was admitted by the prisoners themselves.

"I knew there was no use trying to deny the charge," said Ethel Rhine, held for abandonment of her two children. "When those two preachers looked at me I knew I was done for."

The Court imposed light sentences on the prisoners.

Lady Astor Is the Big Attraction at Baltimore

Mrs. Catt Forced to Stop Speaking When English Woman Appears at Pan-American Congress.

By the Associated Press.

BALTIMORE, Md., April 22.—Almost all the young women and the older women attending the Pan-American Conference of Women seemed to quit listening attentively to the speakers as soon as Lady Astor appeared on the platform this afternoon. This vivacious Virginia girl, who became the first woman member of the House of Commons had scarcely taken her seat when she began making short comments of approval on the statements of Mrs. Carrie Chapman Catt, the suffrage leader, who then was addressing the delegates.

"Hear, hear," or "That's right," Lady Astor would say from time to time, and nearly everyone appeared to be interested more in her remarks than in those of the speakers. Finally Mrs. Catt pounded the table and said:

"Lady Astor, I've presided over many a meeting, but I never had so much trouble in my life as I have since you came in this room. None of these reporters is interested in woman suffrage, but only in you. So, we'll have to let you talk and then you can leave and give the reporters their interview, and I want everybody else to stay in their chairs."

"Busy Populating the World."

"I'm here because the women have the vote," said Lady Astor. "Think what a disaster for the world if I had been hidden in a two-room cottage instead of the House of Commons," she added with a laugh of mockery.

"My accomplishments are entirely due to the work the women did. It is true the labors of those who have gone before that I can now carry on my work for the reconstruction of the world. Why, I tell the women of England I sometimes almost feel it a shame for me to be representing them in the House of Commons. You see, Lady Astor didn't have to smash in the windows and go to jail fighting for suffrage. That was done by others and we younger ones who are enjoying the fruits ought always be thankful to them.

"During the great suffrage movement I was busy populating the world," she explained, referring to her six children.

"Lord, No—It's My Best."

"I have been quoted as saying I didn't think much of the Washington conference," she said. "Why, I think if was the beginning of civilization. The whole world is looking to Washington, and the whole world is going to keep on looking to Washington. I think the whole world ought to be grateful to the President, to Secretary. Hughes and the administration."

Then Lady Astor went to the press room to see the correspondents. Immediately about 300 women posed as reporters and circled around her with the several score of newspaper representatives.

"Is that your House of Commons dress?" a girl asked Lady Astor.

"Lord, no, child. This is the best dress I've got," she replied.

"When are you going to Washington to see the President?"

"Why, I thought the President was coming here to the conference—he ought to," said Lady Astor. "We are scheduled to go to Washington Friday." When the interview ended she was taken to the home of Mrs. John W. Garrett, whose guest she will be while in Baltimore.

Monday Lady Astor is to take part in the conference. Tuesday she will go to New York to address the annual luncheon of the Associated Press, returning immediately to Baltimore to make a speech here Tuesday night.

Proposals of Resolutions.

Resolutions for the formation of an international Pan-American association, with the object of strengthening the ties which should unite the women of the Western Hemisphere, were submitted today to the conference. The resolutions were referred to the Committee on Resolutions.

The resolutions propose, in addition to the formation of the alliance:

That the organization of this association be left to the National League of Women Voters, the promoters of the Pan-American conference of women.

That all the nations of America shall be represented in the council of the association.

That the first meeting shall be held in the United States on a date which the League of Women Voters shall deem convenient.

That the succeeding meetings shall be held in rotation in the different countries of America.

Appeal of Mrs. Catt.

An impassioned appeal to the women of South America to come out boldly for their rights and work for them, was made at the afternoon session by Mrs. Carrie Chapman Catt, president of the International Suffrage Alliance.

Pointing out that the women of these countries adhered to Catholicism, she said that the Catholic nations were the only ones which had not let down the barriers of suffrage, in whole or in part to women. Telling of the interest taken in the movement by the late Pope Benedict XV, and the present Pope Pius, she urged the people of these countries not to hold back for fear of offending the Pontiff.

ROAD UPHELD IN TEST OF LABOR BOARD POWER

Body Held to Have No Authority to Enforce Own Decisions in Injunction Case.

By the Associated Press.

CHICAGO, April 22.—The United States Railroad Labor Board was declared to have no authority to enforce its own decisions, and no power to interfere in conferences between a railway and its employes in a decision by Federal Judge George T. Page today.

The decision was handed down on a petition by the board to remove an injunction granted the Pennsylvania by former Judge K. M. Landis, in which the board was barred from publishing its decision in a dispute between the Pennsylvania and its employes.

The constitutionality of the act creating the board was upheld by the decision, however, which was declared to be the first court ruling interpretin in some detail the authority of the board as set out in the Esch-Cummins transportation act. The board's contention that it was an administrative arm of the Federal Government over which the courts have no jurisdiction, was denied.

The case was in the nature of a test of the board's powers and if the decision is sustained in subsequent decisions, the "teeth" will be withdrawn from the board, the board's attorneys contend, holding it would be without a weapon to force the roads to obey its mandates, as the transportation act provides only that the only action it can take against violators of its rulings is to publish its decisions.

Judge R. M. Barton, chairman of the board, announced he would confer with the Department of Justice before deciding whether to move for modification of the restraining order.

"This case is the most important as to the matter involved of any raised since the passage of the transportation act, and possibly the most important in the history of labor disputes and industrial legislation in this country," Judge Barton said.

The Court's decision, after reviewing the history of the transportation act, Federal control and the Adamson law, upholds the constitutionality of the transportation act in so far as it attempts to impose compulsory arbitration, but denied that the act gives the board any power to initiate any action on its own motion, and without submission by both sides to the controversy.

Coming at this time when the shop crafts have just started taking a strike vote on another question labor leaders predicted today that the decision may complicate the already troubled railroad labor situation.

SEWER TO BE OPENED TO CONVINCE PUBLIC OF NEED FOR BOND ISSUE

Place South of Olive Street Car Tracks Between Seventh and Eighth Streets Will Be Uncovered.

A three and one-half foot sewer south of the Olive street car tracks between Seventh and Eighth streets, which is about 50 years old and is leaking into the basement of the Republic Building, will be opened this week so that the public may see its condition and realize how badly St. Louis needs the bond issue for a sewerage system, which is one of the propositions before a Citizens' Committee of the Chamber of Commerce, Director Fisk of Streets and Sewers announced yesterday.

Fisk said that the time for digging down to the sewer would depend on the weather, but that it would be left open for a week. He will ask the United Railways Co. temporarily to reroute east-bound Olive street cars.

TABLE ISSUED TO SHOW HOW TAX REVENUE IS SPENT

State Commission's Figures Indicate Larger Portion Goes to Schools and County Administration.

IS CITED IN DEFENSE OF HYDE'S POLICIES

Will Be Circulated to Offset Democratic Charges That Taxes Have Been Increased for State Purposes.

By a Staff Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

JEFFERSON CITY, April 22.—The State Tax Commission today issued a table purporting to show how each dollar of taxes paid in the various counties was apportioned as between the State revenue fund, the school fund, county revenue, road funds and to meet interest and principal on local bond issues.

This table, which is issued in defense of the tax policies of Gov. Hyde's administration, shows that in most counties the larger portion of each tax dollar went to meet expenses of county administration and to the schools. This is what it is intended to show, as the table is to be circulated to offset charges of Democratic partisans that Republicans have increased taxes for State purposes.

Much time has been devoted by the Tax Commission, composed of Roy Monier, vice chairman of the Republican State Committee, chairman, and George M. Hagee, an attorney of St. Louis, also a Republican, to preparing propaganda of this sort to meet Democratic attacks upon the administration.

The figures in the columns are cents, the total of the five columns for each county being presumed to be $1. The school column is supposed to represent the money paid for local schools, the county column represents the sum collected for county purposes, the road column is money paid to local road districts and the State column covers taxes paid for all State purposes.

The table follows:

The annual pageant by students in the School of Fine Arts of Washington University will be given the evenings of May 30 and 31 and June 1, on the lawn on the east front of the school building. "The King's New Clothes," an adaptation from a tale by Hans Christian Andersen, is being prepared under direction of Manuel Essman.

Young Caruso Sails as Deck Hand to Europe "on a Pleasure Trip"

PHILADELPHIA, April 22.

"DO you know Mr. Enrico Caruso Jr.," a deckhand was asked just after the Fabre liner Providence docked this morning.

He was a sure-enough deckhand, for a dingy blue suit, sailor's jersey and a big black pipe betrayed him. And without paying any attention to a promise to point out Caruso, he wandered over to the other side of the deck and became engaged in conversation with a very pretty girl.

Becoming suspicious, a photographer again approached him and this time the deckhand ran. Chasing him into the main saloon he was soon cornered behind a piano. Only then would he confess that he was really Caruso, son of the famous tenor.

"I am just going to Europe on a pleasure trip," he confessed good-naturedly, now that he was caught. "No, I do not intend to study music, for my voice is really no good, although the girls here try to tell me that it is."

Caruso is 18 years old. He has been attending school in the Middle West.

REPUBLICAN OFFICER TRIES TO PREVENT COLLINS SPEECH

Orders Troops to Surround Platform, but Irish Leader Gives His Talk at Friend's House.

By the Associated Press.

BELFAST, April 22.—Michael Collins upon his affidavite this afternoon at Killarney to deliver an address, was met outside the depot by an Irish Republican officer, armed with a revolver, who warned him he would not be allowed to speak until an incident at Listowell, County Kerry, where the officer alleged one of his men was fired at, had been cleared up.

Collins, who was accompanied by Gen. John McKeown, proceeded into town, whereupon the officer ordered his troops to surround the platform at the market place, where Collins was to speak.

Gen. McKeown, when he heard of the order, said that as an Irish soldier he claimed the right to go through Ireland and would not be deterred. The Republican officer, however, appeared determined and called his men to follow up the order he had given.

The order was obeyed and the men proceeded to the market place.

Collins and his friends, accompanied by a large and enthusiastic crowd, walked to the residence of Dr. O'Sullivan, in New street, where he addressed his meeting.

MAN SENTENCED FOR CONTEMPT IN BURCH JURY TAMPERING CASE

Private Detective Is Under Bond on a Felony Charge Growing Out of Same Case.

By the Associated Press.

LOS ANGELES, Cal., April 22.—Herbert S. Hocking, private detective, was found guilty here today of contempt of court and sentenced to five days in jail as a result of an investigation into alleged tampering with jurors in the case of Arthur C. Burch, under trial here on a charge of murdering J. Belton Kennedy last August.

Hocking told Judge Sidney N. Reeve he had no defense against the charge other than having followed instructions given from the District Attorney. These were to obtain information concerning talesmen summoned for jury duty in the Burch trial and ask certain questions of friends, relatives and neighbors of the talesmen.

The contempt charge grew out of statements of a talesmen, Miss Zoe Rutherford, that she had overheard Hocking questioning her mother and sister, and heard him say "Burch is as guilty as a dog." Hocking denied the statement.

Judge Reeve said that the law contemplated investigation concerning talesmen. Hocking is under bond on a felony charge of attempting to influence talesmen, growing out of the same case, and which is set for hearing Tuesday.

TRUTH ABOUT THE WHISKER BY WOMAN WHO STUDIED 'EM

Mustache More Constant Than the Beard, Says Miss Mildred Trotter, After Two Years' Research Work.

Following a two-year study of the individual human whisker in its native habitat, Miss Mildred Trotter, research assistant in the Washington University Medical School, has announced certain conclusions, touching especially on the whisker's length and width.

She found, on the upper lip, the most even and vigorous growth of hair; that is to say, the mustache is more constant than the beard. This is as true of negroes as of whites.

In the case of children, she found that facial hair is the same in both sexes, in respect of length and thickness, up to the age of 10. After that the boys go ahead, their facial down increasing in diameter and length. It is stated, in this connection, that the thickness of an adult woman's facial hair averages around .026 of a millimeter and that of men .116 of a millimeter.

While blonde women seem usually to have less hair on their faces than brunettes, this is because it is lighter in color, and hence doesn't show as plainly. A white man's whisker is thicker than that of a negro.

Allies to Call Halt on Quibbling by the Germans

man, the conference as a whole desires to make a collective agreement with Russia, but if unanimity is impossible, it cannot prevent separate agreements, such as the one already concluded between Russia and Germany.

It is reported that the Russian delegation is sending another letter to the conference explaining at greater length in what way the Russian memorandum is modified by M. Chitcherin's reply to the Allied conditions.

The French delegation issued a communication declaring the three documents recently made public, namely, Germany's answer to the allies, Russia's answer to the allies, and Russia's memorandum reply to the London expert's report, obliged France to register formal reservation."

"The least one can say of the German answer," says the communique, "is that far from calming doubts and suspicions it confirms them by reason of its equivocal character and by its contraditions. Dr. Wirth insisted that the Russo-German treaty was concluded after the Germans had heard of the unofficial negotiations which were held at the Villa de Albertis, the Germans believing the negotiations would prove hostile to German interests. Later however, the German Chancellor admitted that the treaty was practically arranged before the Genoa conference."

"We are therefore justified," continues the communique, "in thinking that the Russo-German accord was in reality an arm which the Russian and German delegations brought to Genoa in their baggage to be utilized at the first propitious moment. How much weight, under these circumstances, can be attached to the protestations of solidarity and sincerity made by Dr. Wirth."

Reference to Other Questions.

Referring to Germany's expectations of participating in the discussion of questions not relating to points disposed of by the Russo-German treaty, the communique says:

"If, for instance, the conference should discuss the formation of a consortium or of a zone of reconstruction, Germany apparently expects to participate. This, however, is quite contrary to what the allies indicated to Germany.

"The allies made it absolutely clear to Germany that she was henceforth excluded from the discussion of Russin affairs."

Passing to the soviet's answer to the allies' statement of conditions, the communique declares this answer contains equivocation and contradictions.

The Powers had told the Russian they could not accept the soviet demands for indemnity; that the allies would admit a reduction only in the war debts; that they would make no concessions concerning private debts, and finally that the allies would insist upon the restitution of confiscated property or adequate indemnity, the communique points out. To this the Russians forwarded their acceptance, but their compliance, it is noted, was conditional upon the reception of financial help and recognition de jure of the soviet government.

"It seems clear," continues the communique, "that the de jure recognition demanded by the soviet government does not conform with the Cannes resolutions, acceptance of which by Russia was not dependent upon any conditions."

The Russians, it declared, had completely twisted the proposition and their attitude was inacceptable to Genoa.

"Besides answering the allied conditions," the communique goes on, "the Russian delegation made public a memorandum concerning the report of the London experts which seems absolutely in contradiction with their note accepting the allies' terms. Does this memorandum, which is couched in violent language and seems to breathe a spirit of defiance, express the true thought of the Russian delegation."

The communique remarks that the memorandum may be merely propaganda, but it calls attention to the fact that the Russians agreed to abstain from all propaganda in the conference. The communique concludes:

"From all this it would seem that the game of the Russians and the Germans has enveloped the Genoa conference in an atmosphere of intrigue, suspicions and combinations. The very documents published do not dispel the impression that a worm has eaten its way into the fruit which Genoa will offer to the world, and which may well prove to be the apple of discord."

French Note of Protest.

A summary of the French note of protest against the Russo-German treaty, signed by M. Barthou and addressed to the President of the conference, said the French delegation without reference to the other undertakings which Germany had contracted, considers that the Russo-German treaty violates the principles laid down at Cannes for the holding of the Genoa conference.

The note observes that in the opinion of the allies the treaty destroys the spirit of mutual confidence indispensible for international cooperation which the conference aimed to establish and that the allies are therefore unanimous in considering their dignity no longer permits the to collaborate with the German delegates on the commission handling Russian affairs.

The note adds that the reply of Germany to the allies' letter of April 18 does not supply acceptable interpellation of Germany's action and declares it is useless to enter into the details of Germany's allegation—untruthful allegations—the note says—which the loyal and frank attitude of the convening powers would be sufficient to disprove.

In conclusion the note points out the necessity of an immediate meeting of the heads of the delegations which signed the note to the Germans on April 18 for the purpose of deliberating on the situation.

U. S. Ambassador Denies Giving Interview on Conference.

By the Associated Press.

GENOA, April 22.—Richard Washburn Child, the American Ambassador, issued a signed statement this afternoon in which he denies having given any interview regarding the Genoa conference. His statement adds:

"Interviews attributed to American citizens, even those of former American officials, who may be present at Genoa, cannot be interpreted as expressing the views on foreign policy of the United States, whose foreign policy will be expressed by the President or the Secretary of State, or their representatives, speaking officially for the American people.

"The expression of private views and interviews may be of service to truth and intelligence, but private views are merely private views, and the people of Europe will be deceived if they accept such views as carrying implied authority. The reasons for America being unable to participate in the conference were stated with complete clearness by the Secretary of State in a note published long before the conference began.

"As a consequence of that note there is no American representative, official or unofficial, in the organization or personnel of the conference. I am in Genoa in pursuance of my duties as Ambassador and among those duties I am charged with keeping my Government informed of the progress of events in Italy. This includes the progress of the conference. Many courtesies have been extended to me by its delegates, but this fact must not be interpreted to mean that the United States is officially represented in any way within the conference organization."

HEIRS SCATTERED, STATE MAY GET BULK OF $65,000 ESTATE

Efforts to Find Three in Russia and South Africa Have Proved Unavailing.

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, April 22.—All but about $14,000 of the $65,000 estate of Simon James Gordon may revert to the state if efforts to find four heirs, scattered over Russia and in South Africa, fail.

These facts were learned today when Public Administrator Smith, filed an accounting of the estate of Gordon, who died in 1919. He left about $248,019, mostly in stocks and bonds, but depreciation, together with bills, have brought the total down to $65,000.

Gordon's widow is believed to be in Petrograd. One son, Nicolaf, was last heard from in Moscow. A daughter, Barbara, was last reported in Tunis, South Africa, and another, Edith Marie, in Warsaw, has been found, but writes she has not heard from her mother and does not know whether she is alive. Nicolaf, she believes, was put to death and she has been unable to get into touch with Barbara. She will get $14,000.

In case nothing is heard from those not yet located, the State will take charge of what is left.

600 FIGHTING TO STOP 70-FOOT GAP IN LEVE

By the Associated Press.

NEW ORLEANS, La., April 22.—Approximately 600 men were battling tonight to close a 70-foot break in the Mississippi River levee at Myrtle Grove, 30 miles south of the city. Reports indicated the workers had good prospects for success.

After the break early today, the river rapidly cut away a section of the levee, about 70 feet wide. The arrival of engineers and workmen with necessary materials to fight the flood prevented the break from being extended.

Reports from Myrtle Grove indicated that approximately 10,000 acres of plantation land, already seeded for rice, sugar and truck garden products, had been inundated. About 300 persons reside in the flooded area, but most of them have been removed.

In New Orleans the low sections of the levees are being raised with sand bags. With the gauge registering 22.4 feet today, four-tenths of a foot higher than the previous record established in 1912, the Weather Bureau predicts a further rise by May 10 that will raise the water a few inches above the tops of the levee here. Engineers say they will be able to hold the water with sandbags. The Mississippi now registers higher stages than ever before sustained at all points where records are kept from Greenville, Mississippi, to the Gulf with the single exception of Baton Rouge.

Probably the largest area now covered by water is in the lower Tensas river basin, where more than 1,000 square miles of land in Yazoo, Warren and Issaquena counties, including some of the best farming land in the delta, are inundated.

More than 1000 refugees from the section are being cared for at Vicksburg. Another large area is in Phillips County, Ark., where refugees have been taken to Helena.

Many residents of the Valley are being housed in army tents, railroad box cars and abandoned houses, few are sleeping under the open sky.

HOW MILLER WILL BE SUPPLANTED AS POLICE BOARD HEAD

Move Will Be Made Tuesday to Declare All Offices Vacant and Elect Philip H. Brockman President.

MILLER SLATED FOR OFFICE OF TREASURER

Then, According to Plan, if He Decides to Remain on Board He Will Not Be Permitted to Lead Raids.

The procedure by which Victor J. Miller will be supplanted by Philip H. Brockman as president of the Police Board was determined upon Friday night during a few hours' visit to St. Louis by Gov. Hyde, who conferred with other members of the board, and instructed them as to their parts in the plan. It was learned yesterday upon excellent authority that the other four members assured the Governor that they would carry it out. This is the plan:

Miller will convene the board as usual Tuesday afternoon. Immediately a motion will be made, probably by Vice President Richard Moore, that all offices be declared vacant, and the board reorganized. If Miller refuses to entertain the motion, as he may, it is to be put by Moore, and carried by a vote of four to one, in the event that Miller votes no. Brockman, now purchasing agent, is to be elected president; Moore is to be re-elected vice president; Commissioner William Young, now treasurer, will be elected purchasing agent, and Miller will be elected treasurer. The fifth member is Mayor Kiel.

If Miller decides to remain a member in the subordinate position, measures will be taken to prevent a continuance of his previous activities. If he undertakes to assume leadership of raids, as in the past, Chief of Police O'Brien and Chief of Detectives Hoagland will be instructed to take no orders from him unless ratified by the board.

Refuses to Resign.

He was told yesterday of the arrangements for ousting him, and was asked if he would continue as a member. He replied: "I have made my public statement, and I am not inclined to discuss the matter further. But I will say this to you. Get it right. I will not resign under any, a-n-y (spelling the word) circumstances."

The Governor yesterday made another attempt to persuade Miller to resign, sending Commissioners Moore and Young as his emissaries. Moore, who has been friendly with Miller, had expressed the opinion that he could convince Miller that to resign would be the easier, more graceful way out of his dilemma.

Unable to Budge Miller.

The visit occurred in Miller's law office. At its conclusion Moore made it known that he had been unable to budge Miller's determination not to resign.

Both Miller and Brockman visited police headquarters last night. The nearest approach to a meeting between them occurred as Miller emerged from Chief O'Brien's office into the third floor corridor, where Brockman was standing. If he saw Brockman he gave no outward indication of the fact and passed into the elevator without greeting him.

The break between Miller and Gov. Hyde came only after repeated efforts on the Governor's part to induce Miller to retire gracefully. It is known that Gov. Hyde decided, a very few days after Miller's reflections on the morals of Soldan High School pupils, that the charges, whether proven or not, were injudiciously made, and had aroused such bitterness that Miller's usefulness as a public official had been seriously impaired. The subsequent failure to substantiate the accusations convinced the Governor that Miller, as he said in a statement Friday night, had "forfeited public confidence."

Hyde Decided on Drastic Action.

On the other hand, he admired some of Miller's work, and having a personal affection for him in addition, desired to let him retire without embarrassment. After giving him what he considered a reasonable time to resign, he asked him to do so, it is stated. Miller was obdurate. The Governor, feeling that he had been more than generous, decided that he must take drastic action. He is said to resent Miller's suggestion that, if the latter is removed, it will be a victory for the criminal element of the city.

Kansas City Election Cited.

It has been suggested that the Kansas City election a few weeks ago had an important part in the Governor's attitude on the police question. In a campaign there, in which Matthew Foster, who had been president of the Police Board, was the Republican candidate for the mayoralty, the Hyde forces were crushingly defeated. Since then the Governor has been told by party lieutenants that a continuation of his police policies would mean party suicide.

Lieutenant-Governor Hiram Lloyd, in whose judgment the Governor has much confidence, was of this opinion, and when consulted he suggested at a conference at the Planters Hotel Wednesday night the plan by which it is intended to depose Miller.

THE maltese cross indicates approximately the place where the robbers' car, the engine of which was kept running, stood. The packing plant sets back of the building line a considerable distance. Policemen Mengel and Held were in the banking room of the South Side Trust Company, on the northwest corner of Broadway and Pestalozzi street, when the robbers entered the packing plant. Policeman O'Connor was on the street. He was the first officer to enter the office where the robbers were. He fired through a glass door at them, missing them, and was shot down. Mengel and Held ran from the bank to get to the scene. Held became entangled in the heavy traffic that was passing at that time and was slow in getting through, but Mengel quickly reached the platform in front of the plant, firing as he ran. He was shot down on the platform, as the robbers dashed out of the office. Held opened fire as soon as they appeared, but was quickly incapacitated by his wound. The two robbers jumped into the waiting car, which sped north to Pestalozzi into which it turned and disappeared.

Two Policemen Killed, Third Wounded by Robbers

Olsen as being about 25 years old, wearing gabardines and caps, and both having on glasses with tortoise-shell rims, entered with revolvers displayed. Going into the space behind the partition, they pointed the revolvers at the four men, and one of them gave a "'hands up" order, which was obeyed.

The safe, at the east end of the office space, was open, and one of the men began examining it, having first taken from the cash drawer the money there, believed to be $60 to $75. While this man bent over the safe, the other man began searching the employes in turn.

Showed Great Nervousness.

He backed Fleischman toward the safe and both robbers demanded of him where "the money" was. Fleischman and the others replied that there was not much money in the office. This angered the men, who, according to Olsen, showed great nervousness.

While the man at the safe continued to ransack it, the other patted Berkel's clothing, not getting a $10 bill which Berkel had in a pocket. He then began to search Olsen, and his hand was upon a bill fold, containing $100, when the police interruption came.

Patrolman O'Connor's arrival in the building, outside the office inclosure, was seen by Olsen and the robber who was searching him. O'Connor approached, stooping somewhat, and fired through the glass door. The course of the bullet indicated either that it was deflected by the glass or that, as police authorities believe, O'Connor purposely fired high, in the fear of wounding some of the employes.

The shot shattered an electric light shade, and entered the wall behind Berkel, passing apparently between Berkel's uplifted hands.

O'Connor fired again, and again the bullet entered the wall, without wounding anyone.

O'Connor Shot Through Head.

The other robber, who had been at the safe, nearly or quite out of the range of O'Connor's shots, stepped forward, before the policeman could fire again, and fired once. O'Connor fell, shot through the head.

The two robbers dashed out, jumping over O'Connor's body, and were in the doorway, when Patrolman Mengel met them, at a distance of only a few feet. Mengel had the first shot, and one or both of the robbers, returning his fire, shot him in the head, through the right arm and through the right hand.

Patrolman Held, who had started across the street with Mengel, but had been held back momentarily by an automobile, ran up, firing at the robbers. A bullet pierced his right shoulder—it is not certain whether this shot was fired by one of the robbers coming from the office, or by the man waiting in the robbers' car. Held fired at the car twice, then, his muscles affected by his wound, he dropped his revolver as the robbers jumped into the car, whose driver was honking his horn vigorously.

Shots Fired at Auto.

Fleischman ran out of the Morris office, with Patrolman's O'Connor's revolver, which he had picked up, and fired four times at the robbers' automobile as it started west.

One of the first bullets fired by Held was found in the wall of the Morris office, at a place near where one of the robbers was standing momentarily.

The man who called Patrolman O'Connor, and then called the two other policemen, was Leslie Medley, an employe of the Morris plant, who was in the refrigerator department, and who dashed out after he saw the robbers enter the office.

Held, describing the fight to a Post-Dispatch reporter at the city hospital, explained that he and Mengel were in the South Side Trust Co. on special duty, while O'Connor, who was the regular patrolman on the beat, was on the sidewalk outside. Held had just returned from guarding a messenger of the trust company who had taken some money to the Federal Reserve Bank. Mengel was about to accompany a messenger who had a payroll to deliver at a point farther south.

"Someone rushed in and said there was some trouble across the street," Held related. "I drew my revolver and ran out with Mengel. The street was full of automobiles, and I couldn't see O'Connor, who I suppose had gone inside, but I saw Mengel fire at someone, then saw the man fire back and Mengel fell, his head lying on the platform.

Second Shot Defective.

"I fired at the man who shot Mengel, and saw him double over as if he was hit. I fired again, but the cartridge was defective, and just went 'plop,' so I don't think that bullet went far.

"Then they got me. I was hit in the right side of the chest, but I held on to my revolver and supported my right hand with my left so I could shoot. I fired the three shots remaining in my revolver into the rear end of the robbers' car. At first I didn't know which machine to fire at, there were so many of them on the street.

"I did not want to hit any innocent persons, so I made sure of which automobile to shoot at. I saw the bandits' machine swerve out from the curb into the traffic, and I think I saw one of the men shooting at that time.

"After my revolver was emptied, I reached with my left hand for more bullets and got them out of my pocket; but I was unable to break open the breech of my revolver because my right hand seemed to be paralyzed. Then, the next I remember, they were putting me in an ambulance."

It was found that the bullets fired by the robbers were steel-jacketed.

Patrolman O'Connor was known as "Big Mike"—he weighed 230 pounds—and as "Number One," to distinguish him from other patrolmen named Michael O'Connor. He was 43 years old, lived at 3420 Montana street with his wife and two young children, and had been a policeman more than 19 years.

Patrolman Mengel was 52, lived at 511A Wilmington road, and had a wife and two grown sons. He went on the force nearly 21 years ago, but was in other work for nearly two years recently, and returned with the status of a probationary patrolman.

The funerals of the two policemen will be held Tuesday at 9 a. m., O'Connor's at St. Thomas of Aquin's Catholic Church, Iowa avenue and Osage street, and Mengel's at SS. Mary and Joseph's Church, 6310 Minnesota avenue. Both will be buried with full police honors, and arrangements probably will be made for a joint procession, with the police band.

Both K. of C. Members.

Both O'Connor and Mengel were members of Laclede Council, 1196, Knights of Columbus. Officers of the council visited both homes, and will aid in the funeral arrangements.

Held is 49 years old, and is a widower with a married daughter at whose home, 3464 Giles avenue, he resides. He went on the force in 1899. He was known as a good revolver shot.

Chief O'Brien last night, discussing the question why policemen are more frequently killed than robbers in such encounters, said:

"The police are good shots as a rule. They are required to practice at the revolver range, and in addition they can go there when off duty and shoot with the city's ammunition all they wish to.

Policeman Must Be Careful.

"The trouble is that a policeman must be careful whom he shoots at, while robbers are usually reckless, not hesitating to endanger innocent persons. A policeman, before shooting to kill, wants to be sure whom he is likely to hit. When I pursued two fleeing men on Olive street, a few years ago, I could have killed them both, but I didn't know just what they had done, and I wouldn't take that chance, and the result was that I got shot myself."

The latest previous killing of two members of the Police Department occurred the night of Oct. 16, 1920, when Detectives William A. Moller and Preston B. Anslyn were killed by two men whom they had followed into a yard on Juniata street, near Gustine avenue. The men were not caught.

Man on Way to Bank Robbed of $70, Then Knocked Down.

Walter Stroh of 2846 Neosho street, bookkeeper at the Gewinner Sausage Co., 1429 South Broadway, was on his way at 7 o'clok last night to deposit $70 in cash and $150 in checks in the Lafayette South Side Bank, when he was held up at Broadway and Marion street by two men in a Ford automobile who pointed pistols at him and snatched a bank book containing the money and checks from his hand. One of the robbers then knocked him down with a pistol, causing a severe scalp laceration.

5 POLICEMEN KILLED IN LAST TWO YEARS FIGHTING ROBBERS

In the last two years, during which bank robberies, bank messenger robberies and payroll robberies have been frequently committed in St. Louis by armed gangs, using automobiles to escape, more than $90,000 has been taken from banks, $54,685 from bank messengers and about $24,000 in payroll holdups.

Five policemen have lost their lives battling with these robbers and several others have been wounded. Two robbers have been killed by policemen.

The first and most successful of the bank robberies was that of the Baden Bank, from which $69,000 was taken by eight men, who escaped in an automobile. The smallest amount obtained was $2500 from the Pine Lawn Bank.

The Meramec Trust Co. and Taylor-Easton Trust Co. robberies were unsuccessful, although they cost the lives of three policemen and one robber. The $20,000 taken from the Meramec and the $15,309 from the Taylor-Easton were recovered.

Seven Messengers Robber.

Between April, 1921, and Jan. 20, 1922, seven bank messengers were robbed on the streets or in street cars.

Between Dec. 24, 1920, and April 16, 1922, there were nine successful payroll robberies and a number were frustrated.

Erris Pillow, negro, one of the bank messengers who was robbed, was afterward murdered to prevent him from testifying against the robbers.

On June 12, 1919, Patrolman Thomas Ward was shot and killed and Sergeant (later Lieutenant) William Smith was wounded, dying later, in a battle with men who had robbed the Meramec Trust Co. of $20,000. Sergt. Smith was fired on from the basement of 4625 Minnesota avenue, where some of the robbers had taken refuge, and Ward was killed when he entered the basement to try to capture them. Earl Hunter and Charles C. Bergmann were sentenced to life imprisonment and Alvin West to 45 years. The money was recovered.

Cornered in Theater.

On April 5, 1920, Frederick Charles Smith, robbed the Easton-Taylor Trust Co., 4474 Easton avenue, of $15,309. Cornered in the Easton-Taylor Theater, next door, he shot and killed Patrolman Terence McParland and wounded Sergts. William Henry and Michael Flavin and Patrolman Claude Adams, who recovered. The robber was wounded and died later. The money was recovered.

On Jan. 21, 1920, when seven men tried to rob the Water Tower bank at Twenty-first street and East Grand avenue, Probationary Patrolman Harry J. Shea killed Walter Fisher, one of the robbers. The rest fled, dropping the money. Shea was wounded.

$3,000,000 FOR M. & N. A. TO BE TURNED OVER HERE MONDAY

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

LITTLE ROCK, Ark., April 22.—Final details of the recent receiver's sale of the Missouri & North Arkansas Railroad will be closed at St. Louis Monday, when a deed to the road will be turned over to the newly formed company, which in turn will turn over the $3,000,000 purchase price to holders of the receiver's certificates.

At the same time, the $3,500,000 loan granted by the Interstate Commerce Commission will become available for the new company, known as the Missouri & North Arkansas Railway Co. A warrant for the loan was issued by the Treasury Department at Washington today, and a telegram was sent to the St. Louis Union Trust Co. of St. Louis announcing that the money was on deposit. The action stopped interest on the old road's outstanding debts.

KENNEDY MURDER INQUIRY LEADS TO DISCOVERY OF AUTO

Two Men, Who Went to Garage to Put License Plate on Machine, Are Arrested by Police.

Further investigation of the killing last Monday of Luke E. Kennedy, gangster, by men in an automobile, who fired 26 bullets into his body, led to the discovery yesterday of a Hupmobile chummy roadster in a garage at 4208 Natural Bridge avenue. Two men who had gone to the garage to place a 1922 license plate on the car were arrested.

The men are Ollie Vienup, 6601 Hamburger avenue, brother of Mrs. Edith Gersbach of 4237 Sacramento avenue, who was riding with Kennedy when he was killed, and who is held as an accessory before the fact in the case, and James Tunure, 25, who was arrested as a suspect in Mrs. Gersbach's home after the killing.

Vienup said the automobile belonged to Edward Hogan, 3035 Cass avenue, and that Hogan had given him the license plate to put on. He said Kennedy used the car three weeks ago, having borrowed it from Hogan, and that he, Vienup, tuned up the motor and repainted it for Hogan.

FARRAR GETS GREAT FAREWELL OVATION

Last Appearance With Metropolitan Opera Co. Marked by Emotional Upheaval.

By Leased Wire From the New York Bureau of the Post-Dispatch.

NEW YORK, April 22.—Geraldine Farrar's last appearance with the Metropolitan Opera Co. was her greatest emotional performance.

It ended late this afternoon with her being carried out of the opera house on the shoulders of her admirers, through a crowd of 5000 frantic persons who pushed the police aside and closed about her automobile, shouting and throwing flowers.

Then the automobile, surrounded by the crowd, moved slowly out of Fortieth street and up Broadway with Fararr, still in her opera costume, leaning weakly upon her father and waving her hand.

And all the while, the police on the running boards and kneeling on the back seats of the automobile, begged the crowd to "act reasonable." Traffic was choked by the surging mass, until, at Forty-fourth street, an opening was made and the car shot away to Farrar's home.

The excitement began in the lobby even before the performance. Every seat and every square foot of standing room had been sold but 1500 more wanted to get in. There were 4000 inside and florist wagons were driving up to the Fortieth street entrance and unloading.

Excited girls, who carried their own bouquets, proclaimed to all the world that it would be "the greatest demonstration at the Metropolitan Opera House."

The opera seemed merely to serve as a background for Farrar. In the title role of "Zaza," a hopeless infatuation makes her the object of compassionate singing as a part of the opera, and that aroused the sympathies of the audience this afternoon even more. At the end, when the tumultuous, sombre music stopped, the 4000 persons in the opera house were in an emotional upheaval.

The floor of the stage was covered with flowers. Farrar stepped forward and raised her hand.

Hope of 20 Years.

"Let me get my breath," she said. "Twenty years ago I prayed and hoped and slaved that some day I might obtain an achievement within these walls, and become that very improbable figure, a prophetess in one's own country. But I never dreamed it would be anything like this."

"You deserved it," a voice cried. And there was another storm of cheers.

"I don't want a tear shed for me in this house," said Farrar.

"We can't help it," cried the same tremulous voice. "I will tell you why," Farrar continued. "I am leaving this institution because I want to go, but that does not mean a farewell to you. I have very many interesting plans, which will be disclosed later."

"Oh—h-h-h!" came a chorus of ecstatic yells from the "Gerry Flappers."

"And I might mention, just to whet your curiosity," said Farrar, "that out there among you now is a gentleman named David Belasco, who did me the honor to assist in preparing the first 'Zaza' and who has now done me the honor to waive the last 'Zaza' a farewell. He is a very tempting gentleman. And he has whispered things in my ear."

Thereupon the sounds emitted by the "Gerry Flappers" can be described only as ecstatic squeals.

GOMPERS PROMISES TO CORRECT UNION ABUSES

Veteran Leader Asks Lockwood Committee to Keep Hands Off Building Trades.

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, April 22.—Samuel Gompers, president of the American Federation of Labor, today appealed to the Lockwood investigating committee to keep hands off organized labor and let unions of the building trades industry put their own house in order.

When Samuel Untermyer, counsel for the committee, asked Gompers what he would say if he knew the committee contemplated recommending to the Legislature that laws be enacted to "halt the abuse of power by labor unions, by holding union members responsible as individuals for loss sustained to contractors through these abuses," the veteran leader half rose from his seat and replied:

"I should not only object; I should protest such action."

Asked what alternative there might be, he said, "Patience, while organized labor exerts itself to correct these abuses within the organization."

He offered to "do all in his power" to bring unions of the building trades industry to cease practices which he confessed were "unfair, and not in keeping with the principles of organized labor."

Gompers declared, however, that relief must come from within the American Federation of Labor, not from new laws, asserting "You can't bring the American workman into a legal straightjacket."

At the close of today's session the committee adjourned until May 2, when Gompers will be asked to resume his testimony.

The labor leader sat for three hours today and listened to a long recital of acts which, according to testimony, has obstructed building.

Untermyer sought to compare trade organizations of employers with labor unions, saying, "You believe one should be regulated; but the other should not," to which Gompers replied:

"I believe business men have a natural right to organize for mutual benefit; but I am in favor of their regulation when, as price-fixing combinations, they work to the detriment of the public."

Unions should hold their contracts sacred, he said, and should discipline members who violated them. But, he asserted, it would be wrong for a contractor to break an agreement, while a union man was justified in violating his side of the pact, if another contractor bid for his services at a higher figure.

NEGRO SUES DOCTOR AND WIFE

Asks $10,000 Damages for False Arrest in Connection With Theft.

Dr. Isaac D. Kelley and wife of 35 Portland place are defendants in a suit filed by James Crow, a negro chauffeur, who asks for $10,000 damages on an allegation of false arrest. Mrs. Kelley is a daughter of Mrs. William C. McBride of 29 Washington terrace.

Crow charges that Dr. and Mrs. Kelley caused him to be arrested Nov. 15 last, and that he was held over night by the police. According to his lawyer, the arrest was connected with an inquiry into the disappearance of a chinchilla coat. Another negro, Charles M. Byrd, a former butler in the Kelley home, recently filed suit against Dr. Kelley for $15,000 damages, also alleging false arrest.

SUMMER TRAFFIC MUST AVOID FOUR OF COUNTY ROADS

Reconstruction Work Will Close Manchester, Gravois, Lemay Ferry and Olive Street Routes Till Fall.

ALL OTHER RADIAL HIGHWAYS ARE OPEN

Program of Rebuilding Covers 36 Miles and Will Cost About $1,528,000, Manchester Alone Costing $600,000.

Four of the main highways in St. Louis County will not be open to traffic this summer, as reconstruction now in progress will not be completed before fall. They are the Manchester, Gravois, Lemay Ferry and Olive street roads.

The estimated distance to be covered in this program, on which approximately $1,528,000 will be spent, is 36 miles. On the nine other radial roads no construction work will be done this summer and they will be open to traffic, as will all the cross roads.

It is estimated that the Manchester road project will cost about $600,000, of which amount about $275,000 will be obtained from the Federal and State aid funds. There are five bridges to be built on this highway. Starting at the Rock Hill Station on the Missouri Pacific railroad there will be a concrete granite surface 20 feet wide laid as far out as the Denny road, a distance of three miles. From the Denny road west a concrete surface 18 feet wide is planned. This will extend to the Etheartor road, a distance of 13 miles, except for a distance of 2500 feet near the Barrett Station road, where conditions necessitate the use of hill-side brick.

Six Miles of Concrete.

Six miles of concrete surface is to be made on the Gravois road, starting at the Weber road, the point at which the present concrete section of the road ends, and extending to a point one mile southwest of the Kennerly road. The road will be 20 feet wide. There is one bridge and several culverts to be considered in this work. The estimated cost of this work is $199,000, about half of which will be obtained from the Federal fund.

The Lemay Ferry road project will cost approximately $244,000 of which amount $122,000 will be obtained from the Federal fund. One main bridge and a number of small culverts are to be made on this highway. The first three miles, from the Telegraph road to the Sappington road, will have a concrete surface 20 feet wide, and the remaining four miles will be of the same construction with a width of 18 feet.

Rebuilding Olive Street Road.

Reconstruction of the Olive Street road from a point a few feet west of the Wabash Railroad tracks to the Creve Coeur Creek has been started. The first 3500 feet of the roadway will have a macadam foundation with a heavy granite surface, 40 feet in width between the curbs. Beginning at Ferguson avenue and on west to the Hanley road the highway will have a concrete surface 21 feet wide. The entire road to this point will be reinforced with welded mesh, 56 pounds to the 100 square feet. From the Hanley road to the Denny road, a distance of four miles, the highway will be 24 feet wide. There will be two strips of concrete surface, each 9 feet wide, separated by six feet of natural rock asphalt. Starting at the Denny road and continuing to the Creve Coeur Creek, four and three-quarter miles, the highway will have a width of 22 feet and will be constructed of penetration bituminous macadam. It is estimated that this work will cost in excess of $320,000. University City will pay $21,500 on this project.

The radial highways open for traffic this summer are the Clayton, St. Charles, Big Bend, Florissant, Halls Ferry, Bellefontaine, Riverview drive, Telegraph and Natural Bridge.

The Antire road, between Eureka and Valley Park is being reconstructed with gravel. The cost of this project is not known, as bids have not been let, except for some grading. Dug Hill, three miles east of Eureka, is to be graded down.

Routes Suggested for Use.

Routes suggested by county engineers to be used in reaching resorts on the Meramec River and Creve Coeur Lake while the Manchester, Olive street and Gravois roads are being constructed are as follows:

Castlewood—West on the Clayton road to the Clarkson road, then south to Ellisville, and the remainder of the distance on the Kiefer Creek road.

Fern Glen—Clayton road to Henry avenue, south on Henry avenue to the Sulphur Springs road, and then to the river.

Fenton—South on the Big Bend road to the Watson road and southwest on it to the river.

Meramec Highlands can be reached by the usual route over the Big Bend road.

Creve Coeur Lake—St. Charles road to the Fee Fee road, south on it to the Craig road, which leads to the lake.

County engineers say that most of the cross roads and radial roads that will be open this summer are in fairly good condition, sufficient, at least, for automobile traffic.

Ferguson is constructing 5700 feet of pavement on the Florissant road within the city limits, at a cost of $65,000.

MAN, 75, AND WOMAN, 80, WHO MET LAST SUNDAY, TO WED TODAY

Visitor From Stewardson, Ill., to Marry Neighbor of Relative He Came to See.

Robert Butcher, 75 years old, came, saw and captured. He came from Stewardson, Ill., last Saturday, he saw Mrs. Bertha Beal, 80, last Sunday, and he captured her heart immediately thereafter. They are to be married today in the presence of her grandchildren, and will depart at once for Butcher's home in Stewardson.

Butcher came over to visit his stepson's widow, Mrs. Carrie Eissler, 3229 St. Vincent avenue. Mrs. Beal, who lived at 3223 St. Vincent, two doors away, dropped in Sunday for a neighborly call on Mrs. Eissler. Butcher confided that he was a widower for the second time, and liked it as little as he had the first time. Furthermore, Mrs. Beal reminded him of his first wife. She admitted, for her own part, that widowhood had its disadvantages, and how active Mr. Butcher was for his age! He said the same to her, and many of them.

The next thing that Mrs. Eissler knew, her stepfather was returning the call of Mrs. Beal, and before another 48 hours had passed it became plan to her, as well as to William Erwin, Mrs. Beal's son, that it was a case of love at first sight between their elders. The latter did not delay the announcement.

The bride-to-be has two grandchildren, and the bridegroom has one. Butcher served under Gen. Sherman in the Civil War, and was wounded in an engagement at Rassaca, Ga., during the famous march.

'FRIENDLY' AND 'FERVENT' KISSES DISCUSSED IN DIVORCE COURT

Subject Brought By Testimony of Witness in Suit of Mrs. R. D. Sangster Against Husband.

Hearing in the divorce proceedings of Mrs. Nell H. Sangster, 5159 Raymond avenue, against Robert D. Sangster, Industrial Commissioner of the Chamber of Commerce, in the Court of Domestic Relations yesterday was enlivened by a discussion as to when is a kiss "just friendly" instead of fervent.

I. N. Ellidge, 3533 Texas avenue, former manager of the Ranelagh Apartments, 5707 McPherson avenue, testifying for Sangster, stated that he hd seen Mrs. Sangster kissed by L. W. Munkenbeck, a resident of the Ranelagh, in an elevator at the apartment in the fall of last year. On cross-examination by W. Blodgett Priest, attorney for Mrs. Sangster, Ellidge stated that, in his opinion, the kiss he had witnessed was more of a friendly salutation than a fervent expression of affection. The witness further testified that Munkenbeck had called Mrs. Sangster "mother" and "sweetheart."

Mrs. Emma Clingon, 4055 Labadie avenue, former owner of a restaurant in the Sterling Apartments, 5216 Pershing avenue, testified that Mrs. Sangster and Munkenbeck had frequently had lunch in her place and that Munkenbeck once told her that he and Mrs. Sangster were engaged and were to be married.

Mrs. Sangster had testified that her husband frequently had assaulted her with such force as to bruise her face and body, blacken her eyes and break her teeth. Her mother, Mrs. Lou Anna Hill of Eldorado, Ark., told on the stand of having seen Sangster whip his wife with a switch. Dr. Walter B. Yost, 1119 Union avenue, told of having treated Mrs. Sangster in October of last year for contusions of the face and side following an alleged beating by her husband. Edgar H. Keys, a dentist, stated that he had repaired a dental plate for Mrs. Sangster which she told him had been broken by her husband striking her in the mouth.

800 AD CLUB MEMBERS SIGN TELEGRAM TO HARDING

Message Urges President to Attend Convention of Ad Clubs of World at Milwaukee in June.

Seven hundred and eighty members of the Advertising Club of St. Louis signed a night letter that was telegraphed to President Harding last night urging him to attend the annual convention of the Advertising Clubs of the World at Milwaukee, June 11 to 15.

The telegram says that periods of depression and prosperity are largely due to mental causes, and that the one organization best qualified to correct this condition is the Advertising Clubs of the World. The President is urged to address the convention in person and "strike when and where the iron is hottest."

It was said at the Western Union that this was the largest number of names ever signed to a telegram out of the St. Louis office.

SLAYER OF BANKER GIVEN 15 YEARS AT SECOND TRIAL

Illinoisan Previously Had Been Sentenced to Life Term, but Supreme Court Granted New Hearing.

By the Associated Press.

GALENA, Ill., April 22.—Frank Willy, 57, who killed E. A. Fitch, a Galena banker, in June, 1919, today was found guilty for the second time and sentenced to 15 years in the penitentiary. He took the verdict calmly, saying, "It's a long time for an old man like me."

In September, 1919, after two weeks' trial, Willy was found guilty and sentenced to life imprisonment, but the Supreme Court granted a new trial.

According to testimony, the shooting followed a dispute over the alleyway door in a double house occupied by Fitch and Willy.

HYDE IN ANXIOUS EFFORT TO ATTAIN PARTY HARMONY

Peril to Administration's Standing if Pet Measures Fail at Referendum in November Bestirs Governor.

IS CONCERNED ALSO OVER LEGISLATURE

Executive Holding Dinner Parties at Jefferson City in Hope of Harmonizing "Old Guard" and His Friends.

By a Staff Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

JEFFERSON CITY, April 22.—The necessity of going to the people within a few months to defend the first stretch of his administration has driven Gov. Hyde to attempt to harmonize factions of the Republican State regime in the hope of obtaining partisan campaign efficiency at least.

The general by-election at which Democrats will make a determined effort to vote out some of the consequences of their crushing elimination from control of the State Government in November, 1920, will occur Nov. 7 next. At that time control of both houses of the Legislature, three seats upon the State Supreme bench, one United States Senator, 16 Congressmen and numerous local offices will be contested for. But of equal importance from the Governor's standpoint, the county unit school law and the consolidation measures which formed the backbone of his first administration legislative program, as well as Congressman and judicial redistricting bills and other measures suspended by referendum, will be passed upon at that time.

Two Republican Camps.

But this is not the first fight which will confront the Governor and his friends. For the Republican party in Missouri, as in many other states, has within it two pronounced camps, the "old guard," centering around National Committeeman Jacob L. Babler, Walter S. Dickey, E. E. E. McJimsey and their friends, and another which nominated Hyde for Governor and which contains many of the followers of former Gov. Hadley and Theodore Roosevelt.

The "old guard" never has been friendly to Hyde. This fundamental opposition and other discontent which has grown up within the party because various policies of the State administration has caused the Governor's advisers some foreboding lest men unfriendly to Gov. Hyde obtain a majority of the Republican nominations to seats in the two houses of the Legislature. So the Governor's friends will have to go into the Republican primary to try to name administration candidates for all of the legislative places to be filled.

Fighting for Its Life.

The real struggle will come with the Indian summer days preceding the November election, however; for after less than two years of control the State administration will be fighting virtually for its life in its effort to prevent Democrats from obtaining control of the Legislature. Even with both houses of the last Legislature safely Republican, only the iron hand of Lieutenant-Governor Hiram Lloyd with his Senate caucus of Republicans held the line for Hyde on repeated occasions.

An unfriendly Legislature literally could wreck the last two years of the administration. Democrats have been replaced by Republicans in nearly all branches of the executive department with painstaking completeness, until only the beverage inspection department and the bureau of labor statistics remain Democratic. Some of the ousted Democrats have been separated from their jobs somewhat ruthlessly. All of which has combined to produce a rancor in Democratic partisan ranks that might lead a Democratic Legislature to extremes.

Mental Picture Not Pleasant.

In such a contingency, departments, boards and commissions could be abolished and recreated in such fashion that Republican incumbents would be legislated out of office and Hyde would have to bargain with the legislators over new appointments. Appropriations could be held up and numerous other devices known to the scheming legislator employed to the Governor's discomfiture. This is the mental picture now in the minds of his friends.

Hyde's hope of carrying the county unit bill and any of his consolidation bills also is almost forlorn. A relatively small percentage of measures which have been submitted under the initiative and referendum, have been adopted by the people, and Hyde and his friends realize that they have only an outside chance of obtaining a favorable vote on any of these proposals. A vast amount of educational work of a most expensive sort has been found necessary to make a majority of the voters understand, much less support, any given measure.

In the face of this situation, with considerable discontent in rural Missouri over taxes and in other sections about other matters, Republican state leaders are not even united among themselves.

Harmony Long a Stranger.

Less than two months had elapsed after Hyde's inauguration before guerrilla warfare was on among Republican state officers over features of Hyde's legislative program. After that had been patched up, one disagreement followed another with regularity until Harmony in the Capitol had become a stranger.

Two weeks ago, however, Hyde determined to break the ice as the titular head of the state administration. So he gave a dinner at a local hotel to which representatives of all of his appointees and of the other elective state officers were invited. All responded except State Auditor Hackmann, who declined to attend or to have anything to do with a movement led by Hyde.

Some of those who did go went with misgiving, fearing that desire for factional advantage may have had a part in inception of the plan, but afterward Hyde defined the result of the gathering as "sweet harmony and a flow of soul." This week another dinner party was held and it is understood that the weekly assembly is to be a regular occurrence. Only male members and employes of the administration attend, and speeches usually are made by the elective state officers.

Outside of this gathering and a brief flurry over the prospect that Gen. Pershing might abandon his military post to return to Missouri and seek the Republican nomination for United States Senator, the Republican horizon was bare of development this week. That flurry was dispelled when Pershing was quoted as having declared that he is "not in politics." No change has been noted here in the watchful attitude of the Republican senatorial aspirants who appear to be waiting each other out.

SISLER'S RADIO TALK IS DELIGHT TO MANY

Baseball Man's Talk on Game Brings Congratulations—Two Other Speakers.

The wide interest in the St. Louis baseball teams this year was illustrated last night, when George Sisler, first baseman of the St. Louis Browns, talked to the district surrounding St. Louis from Radio Station K S D of the Post-Dispatch. There were two other speakers, both talking on important subjects, and there was a program of operatic music of exceptional interest, but none of the other numbers on the evening's program elicited as many comments from those listening in on the concert as did Sisler's talk. All through the evening telephone calls came in to say that Sisler's talk had been heard perfectly, and requests were received to congratulate the player.

Sisler's subject was the uncertainties of baseball, and he discussed the many things that go to make up a successful pennant-winning ball club. He told his hearers that the Browns were determined to come out in first place in the American League this season.

Radio Dance Tuesday.

In the two other talks of the evening the question of the National Guard and the work St. Louis is doing in the fight against tuberculosis were considered. Col. C. S. Thornton, commanding officer of the First Missouri Infantry, described the place of the National Guard in America's military program by characterizing the guard as the nation's first line of defense, that part of the army which is always ready, but which costs the nation the least to maintain and train.

Col. Thornton announced in closing that a radio section has been added to the First Infantry, and that an official test of the apparatus and its personnel would be made Monday night at the armory, Grand and Market street, to be followed by a radio dance on Tuesday. This, he said, is the first radio dance on record for the National Guard of Missouri. Lieut. L. A. Benson, instructor in radio at Camp Pike during the war, will be in command of the new section.

Talk on Tuberculosis.

Dr. Joseph F. Bredeck, assistant hospital commissioner of St. Louis, and the city's first tuberculosis controller, was the last speaker. Dr. Bredeck told that tuberculosis was the oldest disease known to science. Unmistakable signs of it have been found in the Egyptian mummies, he said, and diagnoses of it are on record as early as the time of Hippocratus, who lived about 400 B. C.

Dr. Bredeck told of the strides investigation into the cause and treatment of this disease has made since Dr. Robert Koch discovered the germ of tuberculosis in 1882. He stated that no other disease claimed so many victims, but he also declared that tuberculosis was not only preventable, but that it was curable also, if taken in time. Up to this time, he said, no genuine cure of tuberculosis has been found, other than good food, fresh air and sunshine and rest.

Program of Music.

The evening's music program was given by Edward J. Troy, tenor; Urban C. Dames, baritone, and Mrs. Edward Achard, soprano. It was of exceptional excellence.

The American army of the future and history in the making will be discussed in the program of Monday night. The speakers will be, respectively, Col. John N. Stratt, commanding the 102d Division, U. S. Reserve Corps, who will talk of organized reserves and training camps of the United States army, and Percival Chubb, leader of the Ethical Society of St. Louis, whose topic will be: "The New Romance of History." Chubb will make a comparison of Wells' "Outline of History" and Van Loon's "History of Mankind."

Musically, Monday evening's program will be specially devoted to St. Louis' celebration of music week, which opens today. The principal soloists will be Stuart C. Mahanay, violinist; Max Gold, pianist, and Raymond Koch, basso. Ethan Allen Taussig will make a short talk on the meaning and purpose of music week.

PROGRESS OF DIGGING AT CAHOKIA MOUNDS

Four More Altar-Like Basins, and Circular Trench Uncovered by Archaeologist Moorehead.

The digging of Warren King Moorehead archeologist of Philips Academy, Andover, Mass., who is exploring the earthworks of St. Clair and Madison counties, Illinois, for the University of Illinois, continues to disclose conditions and objects of great interest to him in his study of the life and habits of the prehistoric Mound Builders.

The mound in which on Thursday an altar-like, burned basin surrounded by a nine-foot circle of 35 holes resembling holes in which tepee supports may have been placed, yesterday disclosed four other such basins. As did the first basin, the four each contained ashes, the character of which will not be clear until they are chemically analyzed.

In addition to the four basins, a trench about five inches wide, in the form of as perfect a circle as moderns can draw, was found. The circle has a diameter of 12 feet. It surrounds the first altar, which is near its center and encloses about seven-eighths of the circle of tepee post holes. The sides of the trench are hard, baked clay of light color. The trench itself was filled with soft earth, so black as to make its outline clear and distinct. This black earth was removed, disclosing that the trench had a depth of about six inches.

Basins Two Feet Apart.

The second of the burned basins is about two feet from the first and within both the trench and posthole circles. It is approximately the same size as the first, 18 inches in diameter, but in the digging its contour was damaged.

The third basin is 16 feet to the south of the first and at a slightly higher level. It is circular, with a diameter of 15 inches. It has a depth of several inches and is filled with ashes.

The fourth and fifth basins are side by side, 10 feet to the north of the first, which is in the exact center of the mound at its base, 23 feet 6 inches below the surface. These also are circular except that each has a lip-like protuberance several inches long and from two to four inches wide. Adjacent to these basins is a very hard baked surface, the extent of which has not yet been determined.

In addition to these basins, the beginning of another platform covered with masses of charred bark or fibrous wood was encountered and will be explored to its limits, beginning tomorrow.

Finds Believed Valuable.

Prof. Moorehead is unwilling at this time to give any opinion as to the significance of the basins, the trench or the tepee holes, saying that a full exploration of the mound will be required to definitely determine the use to which it was put. However, he feels that the finds are valuable and ultimately may be interpreted quite logically. The diggers have cut a swath 30 feet wide and about 160 feet long through the mound to a depth at the center of 22 feet.

Another interesting find yesterday was a number of globules about the size of a black walnut. Each had a clay shell about an eighth of an inch thick, the center being filled with a substance resembling red ochre. These were dug up in the absence of Prof. Moorehead and he did not see them. He said, however, that they likely were similar to globules found in Ohio mounds, which were two half spheres of clay baked to hardness, hollowed out, filled with paint and cemented together—sort of prehistoric vanity boxes, as Mrs. Moorehead, who is here with her husband, suggested.

The altars are so fragile that the coming and going of numbers of people would imperil them, and for this reason Prof. Moorehead is discouraging visits of the merely curious. However, he said, he would welcome anyone who has a scientific interest in archeology in general or the mounds in particular.

WOMAN IS UNDER BOND AFTER DEATH OF MAN

Mrs. Marie Lewis Held as Accessory to Killing of Simon Wallace in Her Home.

At the end of an inquest into the death of Simon J. Wallace, of 1424A North Seventh Street, who was found shot to death Thursday morning in the home of Mrs. Marie Lewis, 4604 Olive street, Mrs. Lewis, the chief witness, was held as an accessory to the killing, under $5000 bond, which was deposited.

Her decision yesterday to testify at the inquest came after she had spent a day and night in jail, following her refusal to testify when the inquest began Friday. However, her evidence gave little light on the case.

She said she and Gregory Lewis, her husband, had been estranged, but were reconciled Wednesday night, and that he left the house about 12:30 a. m. She was awakened at 4:30 a. m. by three strangers in her room, who made her dress and leave the house, she said. Departing, she heard a shot, and saw an automobile drive away from the house.

A negro maid and her husband said they heard no shots, and knew nothing of the incident until Wallace's body was found.

The police have learned that Wallace was actively connected with a suburban garden gambling resort in St. Louis county, and have been working on the theory that the killing was an outgrowth of that connection.

Eight Homicides in Week.

There were 241 births and 110 deaths recorded in St. Louis last week. Twenty-seven persons died of heart disease, 26 of pneumonia, 12 of Bright's disease, 19 of cancer and a like number of diseases of the circulatory system, nine of tuberculosis and two of diphtheria. There were eight homicides, six accidental deaths and four suicides. One death resulted from criminal carelessness.

Negro Child Dies of Burns.

The latter is in a serious condition from burns about the body.

Errors Aid Gibsonites In Winning

Rickey's Men Perform in Class D Style Behind Pitching of Jess Haines and Bill Bailey.

SENTELLE'S DECISION CAUSES NEAR RIOT

Clemons Banished From Game, While Four Bench Warmers Also Are Given a Vacation.

By J. Roy Stockton,
Of the Post-Dispatch Sport Staff.

PITTSBURG, Pa., April 22.—Ragged fielding, which invariably accompanies weak pitching, sometimes as a cause, sometimes as an effect, marked the terrible beating administered to the Cardinals by the Pirates in the final game of the series here today. The score of 14 to 2 about reflects the impression made on the 15,000 fans by the two clubs. The one was hard hitting and brilliant in the field and the other was uncertain on ground balls, erratic at throwing and impotent before the curving shoots of young Johnny Morrison, the brilliant Pirate flinger.

Jess Haines started on the hill for the Cardinals and stayed there for four innings, in which the Pirates slammed him for nine hits and nine runs. Southpaw Bill Bailey replaced Haines and the enemy collected seven more hits and five more runs during the remaining four innings in which they batted.

Morrison, on the other hand, gave only eight hits, kept them well scattered and was given brilliant support.

Cards Play Class D Ball.

On the very first Pirate batter, the Cardinal infield turned an easy out into a hit and from then on their work was not worthy of a class D league inner line of defense. Jack Smith, Heine Mueller and McHenry also gummed up a play each and altogether, the Knot Holers made it hard for the spectators to believe that this same aggregation of ball kickers has a splendid chance to cop the National League flag.

So one-sided was the affair that it beggars an interesting description, unless St. Louisans will be interested to hear a recital of impotence, awkwardness and apparent stupidity. There was only one inning in which the Pirates failed to score and in that frame they had a man on first and one on third when Smith captured a long fly from Carey.

Enraged by the unkind fates and spurred by apparent favoritism shown by Umpire Sentelle, the Cardinals nearly started a riot in the fourth inning, and they even lost that argument.

Carey got in the way of one of Haines' fast ones and Sentelle sent him to first, deciding that he had been hit. Stock called for the ball, tagged a runner and threw to first and claimed a double play, alleging that the ball had hit Carey's bat. Clemons supported this contention and the Cardinals surged to the infield and surrounded the umpire, shaking their fists in his face with about as good results as they had when waving their bats at Morrison's delivery.

Clemons Banished by Umpire.

Clemons, Fournier and Stock were especially abusive, throwing their gloves high into the air to show their disgust. Sentelle picked Clemons as the leader of the belligerents and banished him from the game. Of course, his decision held good, the only result of the argument being that Doak, Barfoot, Mann and Schultz, who aided and abetted Clemons in his abuse, were sent with him to the showers.

An account of the Cardinal boots probably will be the best way of explaining the lop-sided defeat. In the first inning, Hornsby took Maranville's grounder rather lazily and his throw to first was a bit wide. It appeared to pull Fournier off the bag, but the kind Pittsburg scorer called it a hit for the Rabbit. One batter, one error, though not charged as such. Carey, the second batter, singled to center and went to second when Heine Mueller fumbled and kicked the ball around. Two batters and two errors. Bigbee's single promptly scored Maranville and Carey.

Toporcer was the next offender. In the second inning, with two down and a man on third he raced into the outfield and dropped a fly ball which was so high that McHenry could have caught it with ease. That let in a run and the batter reached second.

In the fourth McHenry fumbled a ground single and Haines uncorked a wild pitch which enabled a Pirate to score from second.

Fifth an Errorless Inning.

The fifth was an errorless inning, the only one in which the Pirates failed to score. In the sixth, Mueller limped and failed to catch Bigbee's short fly which, of course, was ruled a hit. Traynor hit a clean single to right in the same frame. Smith had no chance to catch the drive, but raced in and attempted to trap it. It sped past him and was good for three bases.

In the eighth there was more weird work. After one was out, Bailey walked two men, a wild pitch putting Tierney, the first walker, on third. Tierney and Traynor on first started a double steal. Tierney scored on Ainsmith's throw to Toporcer and Traynor continued to third and was given two stolen bases on the play when Ainsmith, leaping for Toporcer's return, was put out of throwing position. A moment later Ainsmith trying to pick a man off first, threw poorly and the runners advanced.

If you can beat that for a rapid succession of ungainly plays, throws and much etcetera, you are a wonder.

Today the Cardinals open a four-game series in Cincinnati and perhaps the change of scenery will make a difference. They certainly can't do any worse than they have in Pirate-town.

DETROIT, April 22.—Veach's double in the ninth scoring Haney, who also had doubled, gave Detroit its second straight victory over Cleveland here today. The score was 3 to 2. Olsen, a recruit pitcher from Syracuse, worked well for the Tigers, after the second inning, until he was forced to give way for a pinch hitter. Uhle held Detroit in check until the later stages of the game. Score:

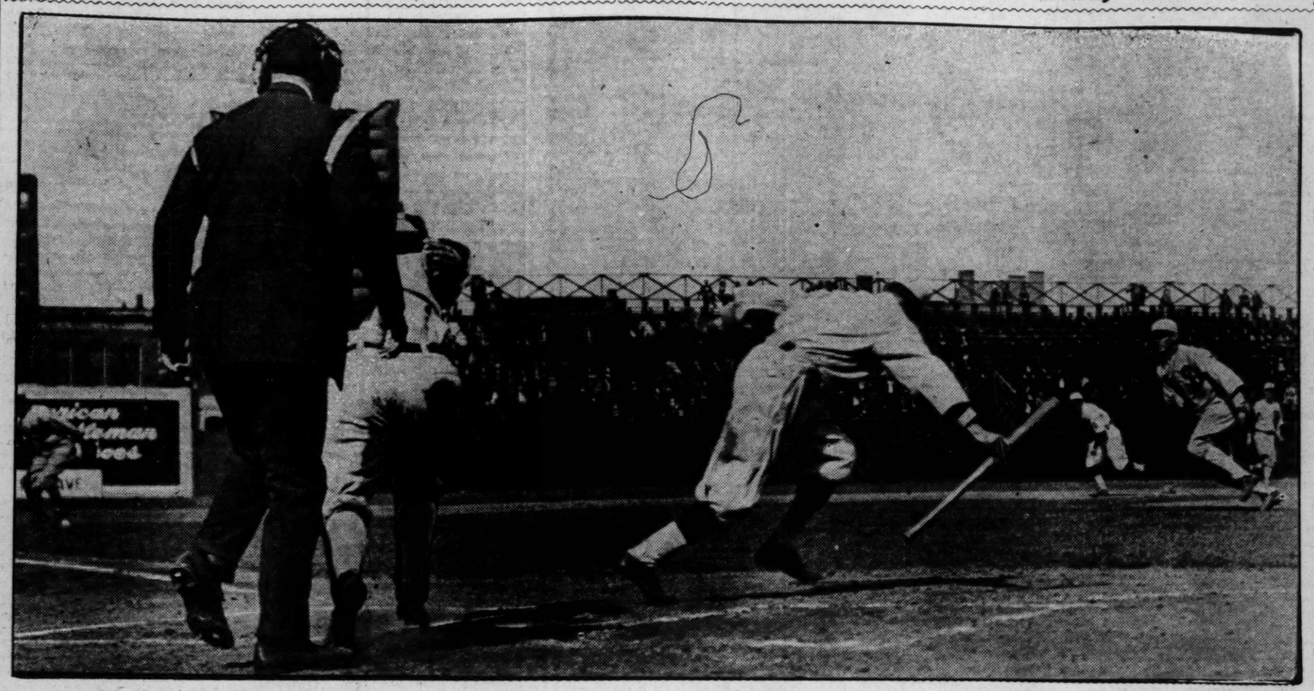
Who Said There Was No Such Thing as Concerted Defense in Baseball—Study This Picture



This play was snapped by Clint Murphy, Post-Dispatch Photographer, as Ellerbe attempted a bunt in the second game against the Sox. The pitcher, the catcher and the third baseman are all seen making a desperate and simultaneous effort to get the ball, which may be noted rolling toward the foul line, in the distance. On the baseline, Johnny Tobin is hiking for third.

WILLIAMS MAKES THREE HOME RUNS WITH SISLER ON

Outfielder's Feat Accomplished Against Acosta and Davenport —Davis Real "Wild Man."

By Joseph F. Holland,
Of the Post-Dispatch Sport Staff.

"Babe" Ruth, baseball's exiled home run king, will probably tear his morning newspaper to shreds in faraway New York today when he reads an account of how Kenneth Williams, Brown slugger, shattered an American League record yesterday at Sportsmans' Park when he drove out three home runs in four times at bat and helped "Dixie" Davis take the third game of the series from the Chicago White Sox, 10-7. "Babe" Ruth's best effort was two homers in one game.

Two White Sox pitchers, Don Jose Acosta and J. Lum Davenport, were the victims of Kenny's club wielding, and it so happened that Sisler was on base each time. Acosta was humiliated twice.

For distance, it is doubtful if Williams' initial drive in the opening inning has ever been excelled. The ball swung skyward on a long arch from the plate and dropped for beyond the bleacher wall out on Grand avenue. The other two were just over the fence and fell into the bleachers as priceless souvenirs.

While Williams achieved a baseball height yesterday that should stand the test of years, he also contributed an attack that virtually forced he wild and unsteady "Dixie" Davis into a victory over the Sox.

Williams began his wrecking work in the first inning, after Sisler had driven Tobin over with the first run of the game. Kenny caught Acosta's third pitch and lifted it out of sight to give the Browns a three-run lead. It endured until the sixth when Hooper dropped one in the right-field seats with two on, tieing the score.

The wallop did little more than set the stage and prepare the laurel wreath. Sisler singled to open and Williams put the full power of his shoulders into his swing. The ball whisked on a line into the bleachers and Sisler scored ahead of Williams with a lead that was never relinquished. Severeid's single and doubles by Gerber and McManus followed in quick succession to increase the St. Louis lead to a 7—4 count.

George Sisler opened the avenue for Williams' record-breaker in the seventh, when he singled with two out. George stole second and went to third to wait until Ken paled the great Ruth's record with a third mighty drive to the bleachers in right center.

An odd feature of the achievement was that until yesterday Williams had failed to get a home-run drive. On Friday he had put two over the pavilion roof foul by a yard. But yesterday his drives were perfectly timed and he showed no more nervousness before his third success than his characteristics nonchalance of opening inning. Today he leads both leagues in home runs.

Williams' perfect driving was of such a sensational nature that it completely diverted attention from the wildness of "Dixie" Davis who gave 10 bases on balls before he was relieved by Shocker in the ninth with two out and the bases filled. Shocker, relieved "Dixie" with the sacks loaded and two balls on Hooper. Then Urban forced over another run by passing Mostil for the eleventh Chicago base on balls. Falk terminated the passing review when he forced Mostil at second with a bounder to Gerber.

The ninth opened with all the earmarks of the disastrous tenth of Friday when Chicago made six runs. Before it was over six Chicagoans drew passes and a seventh hit safe for a total of four runs.

Davis opened it by passing Falk, Sheely and Schalk. Taryan batted for Davenport and gave himself the worst recommendation in the world by allowing the faltering "Dixie" to strike him out. Johnson followed with a single that scored Falk and Sheely. McClennan popped to Ellerbe for the second out, but then Davis again filled the bases by passing Collins. He pitched two balls to Hooper and Fohl replaced him with Shocker. Urban completed the "passage" of Hooper and forced in Schalk. When he walked Mostil to force Johnson over with the seventh run, things looked bad, but Falk rolled to Gerber and a toss to McManus at second effaced Mostil for the final out.

"Dixie" pitched good ball, but for his wildness and did not allow a hit for four innings. He gave only four during his period of service, but his wildness kept the frequency of Leo Fohl's pulse at top speed.

Thank You, Mr. Williams

DELEHANTY AND LOWE SURPASSED WILLIAMS' HOME RUN FEAT

KENNETH WILLIAMS set an American League record when he made three home runs, but that is all. In past times other players have surpassed this.

In modern times the best marks were set by Ed Delehanty and Bobby Lowe, each of whom made four homers and a single in one game.

Lowe added to his distinction by making two home runs in one inning. His feat was achieved Decoration day, 1905, in a game against Cincinnati, Chamberlain pitching. Lowe played with the Boston club.

Delehanty, in 1896, made his record July 13 against Pitcher Bill Terry. Delehanty was with Philadelphia Nationals at the time.

M'KINLEY IS WINNER

South Siders Employ Bunting Game to Down Yeatman by 9-3 Score.

Central and McKinley high schools emerged winners yesterday in the weekly Interscholastic League twin bill at High School Field. Central humbled Soldan, 9 to 5 in the opener, and McKinley battered Yeatman, 9 to 3, in the final.

Central opened a barrage against the charges of Coach Cook and piled up six runs in the first three innings. Two errors, a wild pitch and a single by Heine Olsen, together with Fischer's hit to left, gave the Red and Black three in the initial stanza. Two more came in the next frame on an error, single and a double by Olsen. A walk, wild heave and a passed ball gave Central the sixth score.

Soldan, after scoring one in the second on singles by Fisk and Johnson came back in the fourth with three more. Fisk, Stanford, Hammock and De Stabler rapped out singles in this frame.

Central added two in the sixth and another in the eighth. Soldan scored its final run off Riehl, who went to the rescue of Nudelman in the seventh.

The feature of the game was a home run drive to the score board by Catcher Fox of Central in the sixth.

McKinley Plays Bunting Game.

McKinley opened with a bunting game and by this strategy completely baffled the Yeatman infield. Eight men faced Pitcher Stremmel in the first inning and six of them bunted. Four runs were pushed over before the side was retired.

Stremmel settled down in the second frame and retired the McKinleyites via the strike-out route. He duplicated this feat in the third, two men being called out on an attempt to bunt on the last strike. Stremmel was found for two runs in the fifth and was in trouble in the sixth, when Coach Hill sent Engler to the rescue. Engler retired the South Siders after three runs had been scored.

A walk to Schnurr, infield hit by Albrecht and Yeck's triple gave Yeatman two runs in the ninth.

CONCORDIA SEMINARY STARTS SEASON WITH VICTORY OVER M. M. A.

Concordia Seminary won its opening game of the season yesterday afternoon at Brock's Field, when they defeated Missouri Military Academy of Mexico, Mo., 7 to 4. Seven hits, one base on balls and nine errors tell the tale.

Aside from the faulty fielding, the game would have resulted in a pitchers' battle. Meichsner of Concordia issued three passes, fanned seven and allowed seven hits, including a home run by Wall in the first inning; triples by Brady and Lindemeyer and doubles by Lindemeyer and Eggebrecht.

Center fielder Heine of the seminary team starred at bat for Concordia, getting a double, triple and a sacrifice hit out of four trips to the plate.

Friday Concordia meets Shurtleff College at Alton and Saturday at Brock's Field.

Pikeway Athletes Defeat Drake in Dual Track Meet

Washington University Men Score Over Bulldogs 85 to 51, Winning 12 Firsts.

Washington University's track team won its second dual meet of the season yesterday, defeating the Drake Bulldogs by a score of 85 to 51. The Pikers landed first in 12 of the 16 events on the program and took second place in 8.

The feature of the meet was the brilliant work of the versatile Thumser, who was high man of the day with a total of 17 points. "Baldy" captured first place in the broad jump and high hurdles, second place in the javelin throw and pole vault and landed third in the low hurdles, a fall near the finish depriving him of first place in the event.

Anderwert's running was largely responsible for 15 points. He captured the 100-yard dash and the 220-yard dashes, and his splendid finish in the half-mile relay brought the spectators to their feet.

The Pikers will journey to the Drake stronghold next week to participate in the Drake relays, one of the major meets of the Missouri Valley Conference track program.

JIMMY RYAN, STAR AT McKINLEY HIGH, DIES

James E. Ryan, former Municipal League and McKinley High School pitcher, who died last Sunday, was just about ready to ascend to baseball heights when his arm failed him as a member of the Mare Island team shortly after he entered the Navy in 1917.

Ryan was at the time of his enlistment the property of the Kansas City American Association team. He was a cousin of Jimmy Conzelman, former Washington University and interscholastic star.

Mlle. Lenglen Will Defend World's Net Title at Wimbledon

By the Associated Press.

MONTE CARLO, April 22.

SUZANNE LENGLEN, French tennis star, has announced her intention of defending her title as world's woman champion at Wimbledon this summer. She will probably meet Mrs. Molla Bjurstedt Mallory, provided the American champion reaches the challenge round, as Mlle. Lenglen has not yet decided whether she will play through the tournament.

Playing in the singles tournament here today, Mlle. Lenglen had a narrow escape from defeat, when she succeeded in winning from Miss Bristed only after two of the hardest sets seen during the tournament. The scores were 6—5, 6—5, Mlle. Lenglen's arrangement this year being that the player who first reaches six games wins the set.

Pikers Trounce Oklahoma Again; Title Hopes Rise

Second Victory Over Sooners Achieved With Fries Pitching, Score 3—1.

A superior defense coupled with excellent hurling enabled the first place Pikers to win their fourth successive Missouri Valley Conference game in defeating the Oklahoma Sooners for the second time, 3 to 1, at Francis Field, yesterday afternoon. The Pikers have won every start so far.

The features of the game were the brilliant defensive work of the infield and the pitching of Southpaw Fries. Linnemeyer and Edgar, at third and short, handled between them ten chances, without any sign of an error, and some of their work bordered on the sensational. Wyman covered the keystone sack in great style and the only error of the Pikers, charged against him, was due to a hurried throw in trying to make a double play.

Fries was master of the situation throughout, allowing only five singles and striking out an equal number without issuing a walk. Only three flies were knocked to the outfield. Durkee, for the Sooners, also allowed but five hits, but most of them came when needed. He also walked three batters, and a wild pitch, coming on the fourth ball, was good for two bases and resulted in a run.

Title Hopes Soar.

Piker championship hopes became much more sanguine after yesterday's victory, as Oklahoma had previously defeated Nebraska, Kansas, Kansas Aggies and Missouri.

Miske Easy for Caddock in Mixed Ring-Mat Match

Former World's Champion Wrestler and Noted Boxer Put Theory to Test.

CADDOCK PICKS LEWIS

Says Jack Dempsey Would Last Half a Minute Against Wrestling Champion.

Jack Dempsey's chance of winning the much discussed combination boxing and wrestling match with "Strangler" Lewis would look good for about one minute of the first round, according to Earl Caddock, former heavyweight wrestling champion, who says he and Billy Miske of St. Paul engaged in such a bout at Mike Gibbons' gymnasium six months ago, to determine the respective chances of the boxer and the wrestler.

Caddock, in an interview with a Post-Dispatch representative yesterday, said that Miske made one powerful lead at him and the next moment Billy was on his back, a position he assumed when Caddock ducked his blow, caught his leg at the knee and pinned his shoulders instantly to the mat.

"Dempsey's only chance to win from Lewis would be to knock him out with a punch," Caddock said. "Anyone who has seen Lewis knows that Jack could never do it, and he'd have that old headlock buzzing his ears in less than a minute. A defense in boxing is natural. A man attacked will instinctively put up some kind of guard and in this case Lewis would be able to ward off at least one of Dempsey's blows.

Difficulty of Defense.

"But wrestling is entirely different. The defenses against various holds must be learned through actual experience and competition. Dempsey probably has no more idea about breaking a headlock than I have about how to pitch to "Babe" Ruth. He'd just be helpless.

"The trial I had with Miske resulted from a discussion of this proposed bout between Lewis and Dempsey, in which anything but barbed wire entanglements would be allowed. Mike Gibbons and I said that Lewis would win without wasting much time, but Miske and Tom Gibbons stood pat on Dempsey's chances. We came to the conclusion that we'd test it out.

"Bill put on his gloves and we stepped over to a mat. We squared off and Bill thought he saw an opening and let me have the full power of his right hand. I was able to avoid it and when the punch passed over I dropped, caught Bill's leg at the knee and had his shoulders on the mat in an instant.

One Clinch Enough.

"The belief that Dempsey could prevent Lewis from getting him is unworthy of consideration. The worst fighter in the universe could go into a clinch with Jack Dempsey, couldn't he? Well, one clinch would be enough for Lewis and no amount of body blows from Dempsey would prevent Ed's powerful arm from tightening on Jack's head.

"That match will never be arranged, even though all the heavyweight opponents of Dempsey should die tomorrow. It's too foolish to ever consider and no one who knows wrestling and boxing with any thoroughness at all will regard it as anything but a conversational pleasantry."

Caddock is highly qualified to judge the case, both from his experience with Miske and from the fact that he has wrestled Lewis five times, losing thrice. He outweighs Miske 25 pounds, but the comparison is still a fair one inasmuch as Lewis would outweigh Dempsey by nearly 40 pounds. Earl would bet his ranch and farm that Dempsey would never get to Lewis in 18 seconds as he did to Fulton. And after 18 seconds, Jack's chance would be gone, Caddock declares.

Boxers have not the stamina and staying power of wrestlers, the former champion says. This, he contends, merely adds one additional reason to the multitude which he advances for Lewis' inevitable victory in such a match.

Exterminator Unable to Concede Boniface 11 Pounds, and Loses

Famous Cup Horse, Despite Handicap, Makes Gallant Struggle Against the "Bulldog of the Turf"—Lucky Hour and Other Good Three Year-Olds Show Class.

HAVRE DE GRACE, Md., April 22.—Exterminator, the cup horse that startled the turf world a week ago by beating Billy Kelly, among others, in a six-furlong sprint, suffered defeat at the track here, this afternoon, after a long bitter stretch duel with Commander Ross's Boniface, at one mile and a sixteenth, a distance more to his liking.

The son of McGee, Fair Empress could not concede 11 pounds to Boniface, the bulldog of racing; and the latter under a masterly ride by Clarence Turner, won by a short neck after a furious drive through the last furlong.

The finish furnished a thrill to the big half holiday crowd in attendance. Both horses had many followers and the roar which greeted their stretch duel fittingly expressed the feelings of those who raised their voices to relieve the tension of the situation. Bunga Buck was third, six or eight lengths back.

Boniface was in close quarters for half a mile, but Turner pulled him to the outside and he raced into a contending position around the far turn, head and head with Bunga Buck. When straightened out, however, Exterminator, which had been pinched off for a few strides, moved up fast on the rail and gave battle, and a real battle it was to the last stride.

Lucky Hour, a son of Hourless, and one of Lexington stable's candidates for the $50,000 Preakness Stakes, ran the fastest six furlongs of the meeting in beating a fairly strong field in the third event. Outrun for half the distance he moved up freely rounding the turn and came away to win galloping in 1:12 3-5.

H. P. Whitney's Rocket was as easily second. This good looking 3-year-old was making his first appearance of the season and he followed the pace closely all the way. He was tiring through the last sixteenth, as if possibly a race short, but on the whole his performance was a good one and indicative of some quality.

H. P. Whitney's Enchantment was much the best in the Blue Grass purse for 2-year-olds. This well made gelding ran four furlongs in 47 seconds, which equaled the track record. He won easily, too, by three or four lengths and will bear watching in better company.

In the Climax States Whitney's Mainmast and Broomster ran one-two and did the route in splendid time. Broomster appeared good, but short.

Billikens Score In Western Meet

Ryan, Talbott, Curran and Crimmins in "Money" at W. A. A. U. Championships.

LITTLE ROCK, Ark., April 22.—St. Louis University athletes broke into the point scoring here today, in the senior finals of the Western District championship track and field games. Talbott, Ryan, Curran and Crimmins were the point getters, with Ryan leading. Ryan's best effort was a first in the high jump. He finished second in the pole vault and hop, step and jump, and third in the hurdles.

The track was slow but some very interesting races were run. Watson of Kansas City ran a pretty race in both the mile and half-mile, winning both events. Frazier, a Texas Olympic star, ran good races in both the hurdle and dash events, winning with seeming ease.

Evans Declares Gamblers "Rode" Him at St. Louis

Says Backers of Guilford Resorted to Unfair Tactics to Insure Defeat.

By the Associated Press.

CHICAGO, April 22.—Announcement by President J. Frederick Byers of the United States Golf Association that pools at golf championships were under the ban, as they have been at tournaments of the Western Golf Association for several years, brought out Chick Evans' recital of what the backers of the pool did during his semi-final round last summer in the National Amateur championship at the St. Louis Country Club, where the man who "had" Jesse Guilford, won $7000.

The day of the semifinals rounds there was a tremendous rain that drenched the course during nearly all the play and reduced the gallery to such a small number that actions of spectators were easily discernible to the players. Evans was outplayed by Guilford after the first few holes, the defending champion not only being outdriven and outputted on the soggy course, but making several errors to which he rarely pleads guilty.

Aha! Here's the Golf Gambler!

"A group of men, with umbrellas, keeping apart from the crowd like conspirators," said Evans, "followed us from the first tee. I did not pay much attention to them at first, as I have never had a wager on any tournament in which I played and had not believed it possible that professional gamblers would change their proverbial plaids for golf togs and beset a links during a national championship; but at the fourth hole the referee, James Standish Jr., came to me and suggested that he wipe the mud from my ball on the greens as that had been allowed, adding: 'Of course we will clean Guilford's ball, too.'

"I did not at first take in the significance of this remark, as golfers in legions can vouch that it has almost been a weakness with me to give an opponent of mine more than an even break; but when the force of the suggestion was borne home and my caddy had advised me that the suggestion had originated from the group of men, I lost my composure. It upset me completely and I was on the point of making a scene when it occurred to me that Guilford was unaware of any such tactics and I felt it would be unfair to him to take any action.

Gamblers "Rode" Evans.

"Insulting insinuations came to my ears from this group and I was satisfied that they were out to 'get my goat,' and I soon realized that they had succeeded by their adroit maneuvers. The match was lost for me, even if Guilford had not played the unbeatable game he did, and I am glad that he won, for he played the best golf at the meet. I am also glad that he was innocent of the attack made on me.

"I went to a nationally known golfer whom I had seen in this group and told him what I thought of the action. He said he knew the man at fault, but would not divulge his name. He likewise cleared the Boston friend of Guilford and said the heckler was a Western man. It was later printed that a Boston man had won $7000 in the pool by having Guilford, who knew as little about it as some horse on which one bets at a race track.

"I contend that it is unfair to the players to allow the gamblers to wager such large sums on them in this fashion. I am overjoyed to know that such things will be barred hereafter."

MISSOURI BASKETBALL COACH QUITS TO TAKE CHARGE OF ILLINOIS

COLUMBIA, Mo., April 22.—Craig Ruby, who has coached the University of Missouri basketball team to two Missouri Valley conference championships in the two years that he has directed the destinies of the Tiger five, today announced that he had resigned to become head basketball coach at the University of Illinois. Ruby's resignation here had been rumored for several weeks.

George Browning, captain of the 1921 Tiger team, who showed a great deal of coaching ability in his handling of the Lowe and Campbell National A. A. U. championship five, will probably get a chance at the place.

Patsy Flanagan Meets Tough Boy In Solly Epstein

Match Arranged Yesterday Promises to Be Hard Test for St. Louis Bantam.

With the City Boxing Commission still out of commission (by injunction), the game is going merrily forward here. Two shows are scheduled this week, although the Coliseum appears to have retired for the season.

The first program announced for this week was that of Sam Dixon. Samuel is operating at the Garrick Theater now, having shifted from the Future City Club and other locations that have proved unsatisfactory.

Dixon's main event for tomorrow night consists of a heavyweight match between Harry Foley and "Texas" Harry Tate, two big fellows. Presumably Tate is the "Texas" Tate who several years ago figured in the broil at Little Rock with Fred Fulton, and who later was knocked out at Joplin by Fulton in a second meeting. Foley is from Hot Springs. He is matched to box Tom Gibbons at New Orleans, May 1.

The real event of the Dixon card appears to be the bout between Harry Schuster and Frankie Martin, who fought a pleasing contest here at the last Dixon show. Another good match will be between the negro featherweights Lawrence Hawkins and Bennie Hall, two of the best boys in this district.

Epstein Has Faced Good Foes.

Epstein, who is to meet Flanagan at the Armory next Wednesday, bears a fine reputation. He is a rugged fellow who can box. He has been tried out against the best men of his weight and has decisions over Pal Moore, Frankie Mason, Young Marino, Johnny Rosner, Frankie Daly, etc., and knockouts of Patsy Wallace, Dave Sandow and Ed Lavery to his credit.

Ed Smith, the Chicago referee, refers to Epstein as a "vest pocket edition of the Jack Dillon." He resembles Dillon facially, as well.

Epstein is under the management of Sam Jordan, who for so many years handled the fortunes of Johnny Billeter, one-time lightweight wrestling champion.

Two other bouts will be added to the Armory card, but the principals have not been named.

Kansas Net Stars Win.

MANHATTAN, Kan., April 22.—Kansas University won all the matches in the second day of the K. U.-Aggie tournament here today. Alexander, K. U., won from Downing. Aggies, 6—3, 4—6, 9—7. Johnson, K. U., won from Wann, Aggies, 6—1, 2—6, 6—2. Johnson and Riley, K. U., won from Downing and Wareham. Aggies, 4—6, 6—3, 12—10.

How the New Constitution for Missouri Should Be Constructed

Prof. Isador Loeb, in the First of a Series of Articles Dealing With the Problems Before the Convention, Outlines the Fundamentals of an Up-to-Date Organic Law.

Original Character of a State Constitution Analyzed as a Basis for Further Consideration of the Gigantic Task That the Delegates Will Face When They Assemble Next Month.

THE POST-DISPATCH presents herewith the first of a series of articles by Dr. Isador Loeb of the faculty of Missouri State University, who has been an ardent supporter of the fight for a new Constitution for the State, on the manner in which the work of framing a new organic law should be executed by the convention which meets in Jefferson City next month. The publication of this series will be continued in the Daily Post-Dispatch until it is completed.

By PROF. ISADOR LOEB

Dean of the Faculty of Business and Public Administration and Professor of Political Science and Public Law in Missouri University.

ARTICLE I.

ON MAY 15, a constitutional convention will assemble in Jefferson City for the purpose of amending or revising the Constitution of Missouri. The work of this body may vitally affect the interests of every citizen of this State. Hence, careful attention should be given to the important problems that will come before the convention.

Constitutional questions can be understood only in the light of their historical development. The first Constitution of Missouri, adopted in 1820, was based upon the political experience of the original 13 states and of the 10 other states admitted into the Union before that time. In the same way the present Constitution of this State represents the results of the last century of constitutional development in Missouri and its sister states.

It is the purpose of this article to throw some light upon the constitutional changes demanded by explaining the original character of a State Constitution and indicating the general way in which this has been modified by nearly 150 years of constitutional development. Subsequent articles will discuss more in detail the constitutional development in Missouri and the tendencies which have manifested themselves in the evolution of the more important parts of the Constitution.

The original state constitutions were adopted in the Revolutionary period and preceded the Constitution of the United States. Even after the adoption of the National Constitution the states retained their control over the great mass of governmental functions. The tendency to increase the scope and powers of the National Government which has been strikingly manifested in recent decades has caused many to overlook the real significance of the states and their important powers in one Federal system of government. While it is clear that the jurisdiction of the National Government has been greatly expanded as a result of judicial construction and amendment of the Constitution, it still remains true that the states have control over those matters which are of chief importance in the ordinary affairs of our daily life. These include the subjects of state and local taxation and finance, internal commerce and corporations, civil and criminal law, public health and safety, education, charities and corrections, local government, suffrage and elections. An enumeration of these matters that are left under state control indicates the great importance of a State Constitution which provides the important machinery of the government and defines the extent of the exercise of its powers in these fields.

DR. ISADOR LOEB.

Functions of Bills of Rights in Early American Constitutions.

The political philosophy of the eighteenth century was opposed to unlimited government even in a democratic state. Accordingly, in the most important of the early constitutions bills of rights were incorporated and these became the models which have come to be universally followed in the Constitutions of all American states. For the origin of these bills of rights we go back to Magna Charta and the great constitutional documents which were the outgrowth of the struggle between the Stuarts and Parliament in England. The fundamental principles of these instruments were repeated in the famous declarations of our Revolutionary period, of which the last and most important was the Declaration of Independence. Incorporated into the state constitutions, these bills of rights are restrictions upon all departments of government and create a field of individual liberty in which all persons are protected in life, liberty and property against arbitrary or discriminating governmental acts.

Apart from the limitations in the bill of rights and those resulting from the principle of the separation of powers and the establishment of the three great departments of government, the Legislature was left free to exercise all the powers of the State. The people had confidence in their representatives and there was no evidence of the modern tendency to place restrictions upon legislative powers and procedure. Aside from a few exceptions which disappeared at an early date the two-chamber Legislature was established in all of the early constitutions. Property and, in some cases, religious qualifications were established for voters and officeholders and, as a rule, only the members of the Legislature were elected directly by the voters. The distrust of the colonial Governor was reflected in provisions limiting the term and powers of the State executive who was appointed by the Legislature in about one-half of the states and elected by the voters in the remainder. The State Judges, with a single exception, were appointed either by the Governor or Legislature and usually held office for life.

As a result of the confidence reposed in the Legislature the early constitutions were short and fundamental documents. They did not deal with the details of legislation or of governmental organization or procedure, but left these matters to be regulated by statute. Under these conditions conflicts between Legislature and the Constitution were rare and the courts did not find frequent occasion to exercise the extraordinary power of declaring statutes unconstitutional.

Growing Lack of Confidence in Legislatures Is Indicated.

This necessarily brief outline of the situation at the close of the eighteenth century is in striking contrast to that revealed by an examination of the existing State Constitution. The limits of this article will not permit a detailed consideration of the causes contributing to this change, but the most important features will be indicated. In the first place, the development of principles of democracy in government has resulted in a great broadening of the suffrage with the elimination of religious and, as a rule, of property qualifications, and the establishment of universal suffrage for all adult citizens. The desire to encourage immigration caused some states to grant the suffrage to aliens, but the present tendency is to abolish these provisions. The last century has witnessed a growing lack of confidence in the Legislature and a corresponding tendency to repose increased trust in the Governor. The former has been due in part to unwise plans for State participation in banking, internal improvements and aid of railroads. In most cases the demand for these activities came from the people, but the disasters which usually resulted left a painful impression which was increased by the Legislature's abuse of its power to pass special acts creating corporations and conferring privileges upon them. There developed also a growing belief in the capacity of the voters to determine matters for themselves. Gradually, the constitutions have come to contain numerous prohibitions and restrictions upon legislative power and procedure. The Governor has been given a veto power which it has been made increasingly difficult for the Legislature to overcome. Many provisions of the Constitution now define governmental organization and other matters in detail. Finally, the initiative and referendum enable the voters to dispense with the Legislature in enacting laws.

There has been also a striking tendency to increase the number of elective officers. The short ballot which was the original rule has now been supplanted by one which calls for the voter's choice among candidates for a large number of State and local offices. This movement has extended to Judges who now are usually chosen for limited terms. Evils in the early system of appointment, the doctrine of rotation in office and a belief in the capacity of the voter to choose his officials are chiefly responsible for these changes.

Tendency to Easy Amendment of Organic Laws of States.

Most of the early State Constitutions were adopted by conventions and put into operation without being referred to the voters for their approval. It was not anticipated that frequent changes would be necessary. Some of the constitutions contained no provision for future amendment or revision, and none made popular approval a necessary part of the process. The democratic movement, however, has also affected this matter, and today, with few exceptions, ratification by the voters is necessary for changes in the Constitution, and in some states the voters, through initiative and referendum, may amend the Constitution without any legislative participation in the process. There has been also a tendency to introduce easier methods of changing the Constitution, with the result that there has been an enormous increase in the number of amendments adopted. Since 1900 nearly 2000 constitutional amendments have been submitted to the voters in the different states, of which about 50 per cent have been adopted. While most of these amendments were submitted by Legislatures, some came from constitutional conventions, and an ever-increasing number had their source in initiative petitions.

Many constitutional revisions have been made or attempted during the last two decades. Oklahoma, Arizona and New Mexico were admitted during this period with Constitutions adopted by conventions and ratified by the voters. Constitutional conventions have also made revisions or submitted a series of amendments of existing constitutions in Alabama (1901), Virginia (1902), New Hampshire (1902, 1912, 1919), Michigan (1908), Ohio (1912), Louisiana (1913, 1921), and Massachusettes (1917, 1919). The old rule that the Constitution did not require popular ratification was followed in Virginia and Louisiana, but in all of the other cases the Constitution or the amendments were submitted to and approved by the voters. Constitutions were also revised by constitutional conventions in Connecticut (1902), New York (1915), Arkansas (1918), and Nebraska (1920), but these were rejected by the voters. A constitutional convention that met in Illinois in 1920 has adjourned from time to time and has not as yet completed its task.

Long and Prolix Constitutions Becoming a Plague to People.

The general result of these changes has been a great increase in the size and complexity of State Constitutions. Some of the early State Constitutions did not contain more than 3000 words. In recent constitutions these figures have been multiplied more than 10 times. The Constitution of Louisiana, adopted last year, contains 127 printed pages of text including upwards of 50,000 words. There is a separate article devoted to limitations on the Legislature. The article relating to the judiciary covers 18 pages and deals in detail with city and other local courts as well as with the district and higher State courts and their administrative officials. Many sections of the State Constitutions deal with matters which are not of a fundamental nature and which were formerly left to statutory regulation. Thus, for example, the new Louisiana Constitution has special articles concerning levees and drainage districts. This has resulted in a notable growth in the conflicts between statutes and the Constitution and it has become increasingly difficult for the people to secure legislation that will adequately deal with new social needs. The Constitution and the entire machinery of government have become very complex, with resulting difficulty in determining responsibility and in realizing the popular will.

Mrs. Asquith Tells of Her Visits to President Harding and Woodrow Wilson

FOUND EXECUTIVE "PERFECTLY SIMPLE AND PLEASANT"

Assured Her That He Also Had Lectured and Gave Her the Genesis of the Lecture Idea—Assured Her of His Sympathy for France and Expressed Confidence All World Misunderstandings Would Be Adjusted.

Former President Was Looking Bright and Well and He Assured Her That He Still Had a Stern Fight Before Him—She Told Him He Had the One Fine Idea and That All the World Is Now Endeavoring to Follow It.

MR. WILSON'S eye was bright, his mind clear, and no one looking at his distinguished face could have imagined that he was ill. I could not conceal my emotion when I told him how often we had thought of him. The former President seemed hopeful about himself and said he still had much to do, as there was a stern fight in front of him.—MRS. ASQUITH.

By MARGOT ASQUITH

THE morning after Mrs. Vanderbilt's "bal poudre," I contracted a chill which filled me with despair. Having to lecture that afternoon (my fifth attempt in America and second in New York), it was vital to remove the unfortunate impression that sitting down and reading about horses had created upon my first appearance! Unless my secretary cuts out and pins upon my letters press criticisms of myself, I may not see all of them, and I had hardly been aware of the severity with which I had been taken to task the day after my first lecture.

People are too strong and busy in New York City to notice if you are ill or not; they have paid their dollars and are not likely to listen to what bores them; they wanted a little local gossip about my husband, Mr. Lloyd George or Princess Mary's trousseau.

I did not mind the abuse (I am press proof), but I did not want to disappoint my manager, a competent, kind and critical person, quite unmercenary and interested in his clients' success as much from an artistic as a business point of view, or my secretary, with whom I have contracted a lasting friendship.

Knowing that I had to speak not only that afternoon, but the next night, at Brooklyn, I reassured them by saying that, in spite of my cold, I was going to stand, walk about and amuse the audience by stories of Gladstone, Tennyson, Kitchener, politics, duels and drink. I did not add that I was so nervous that I would have to hold my head up high, as, if I dropped it, I would certainly collapse.

My dear friend, Mr. Paul Cravath, in introducing me, made an admirable speech and was more than helpful and encouraging. I wish I could remember and write down what my chairmen said of me and of my husband, but I am too anxious to listen, and a cannon ball going off would not prevent me from struggling to remember my speech; in spite of knowing that "Ladies and Gentlemen" will be as far as I shall ever get.

Embarrassed in Lecture Plan by Cold

When I stood up, after bowing with challenging languor, I spoke in a low and deliberate manner, which seemed as if it came from another person. I never looked at my notes until the end of the lecture, and after I sat down the audience was enthusiastic.

My son-in-law, Prince Bibesco, a man of acute and artistic observation, congratulated me warmly, and, speechless with exhaustion, I went to bed.

The next morning my chairman sent me the following review from a New York paper:

"The platform manner of Margot Asquith fills us with envy. We wish we could talk as she does, casually leaning against a table. We must confess to a limitless admiration for her technique. No visiting English author in many seasons has seemed to us so entirely at home as was Mrs. Asquith yesterday afternoon on the stage of the New Amsterdam Theater. Her utterance is crisp and clear, she is never under the necessity of digging in her heels and shouting. As her point approaches, she swings into it, facing the audience square and standing straight. We admired her versatility of delivery. There ought to be many clients eager to be tutored by Mrs. Asquith in the art of public speaking."

Next day I had a temperature and, as my daughter had contracted influenza, we were kept in bed and a trained nurse was sent to us by Dr. Eglee. A day or two later, however, I spoke in Brooklyn, motoring there wrapped up in a blanket and accompanied by my doctor, after which I remained in bed until I made my last appearance in New York. By then I had become quite fashionable and received over 80 letters a day, flowers, candy, books and poems.

My daughter Elizabeth's illness took away all my joy and had it not been for her husband and my cousin, Nan Tennant, tears and exhaustion would have tempted me to break my contract.

I arrived at Washington on the thirteenth and spoke the same afternoon. A Washington audience does not deafen you with applause, but Mr. Thomas Hard, my chairman, was so appreciative that he seemed to set the fashion to laugh and and cheer and all went well.

Her Call at the White House

On the following day, I went by appointment at 10:30 to see President Harding. After traveling to several wrong doors I was shown into an anteroom full of press men, talking and smoking round an open fire.

The President's secretary was extremely courteous and I was hardly kept waiting at all. Ushered into Mr. Harding's fine circular room we shook hands and sat down. A large black and tan Airedale terrier sniffed round my skirts and was ordered to sit in a chair by his master.

President Harding has a large bold head with well-cut features and an honest, fearless address. He is still perfectly simple, and extraordinarily easy and pleasant to talk to.

He told me he also had lectured and gave me an account of how lecturing had first started. It was a sort of club or society which began round Lake Chautauqua and spread all over the country.

It was the only way that either pleasure or information could reach distant and dreary little towns inhabited by thousands of men and women who had neither the fortune nor opportunity to meet famous people.

While he was telling me this I looked at the big writing-table in front of him. There was an old photograph of an extremely pretty, refined, middle-aged woman, and a framed engraving of George Washington. On the top of a bookcase I observed an interesting print of Abraham Lincoln. A fire in an open grate and large windows looking out upon a garden with trees completed a charming room.

Our talk was interrupted by the secretary's asking the President to speak on the telephone and he left me after a courteous apology.

On his return he found me looking at the photograph on his table and informed me that it was his mother. We spoke of Arthur Balfour and I told him how pleased my husband and all of us were that he had been able to go to Washington; that his quick mind, fine intellectual manners, and lack of insularity gave him an unrivaled understanding. The President responded with genuine warmth,

"I am very glad," he said, "that he attended our conference. As you were aware, Mrs. Asquith, he was known and liked here before this, and I can say he has added 200 per cent to his former popularity by the patience, tact, straightforwardness and ability he showed throughout our proceedings."

President Harding talked to me about the political situation in England and asked when I thought there would be a general election. I told him that the Coalition Liberals were the rich, ambitious, paying guests in a Conservative palace (or words to that effect); that in their recent attempts to force a general election they had tried to buy the palace, but that to their surprise and annoyance Sir George Younger, the keeper of the Tory purse and manager of their great party, had, with a courage undreamt of by his flock, put a veto upon this, and in a polite and public letter given the Coalition Liberals notice to quit.

Government by Conference

This independent action upset the influential Downing street press, entertained the Free Liberals and bewildered the docile Conservatives. The latter—having no Prime Minister of their own—are not only deeply indebted to Mr. Lloyd George for all he had done for them, but are committed to his leadership by the mutual bargain of the Coupon Kaiser election.

I told him I had no notion when the election might be sprung upon us, nor could anyone foresee its results, but that if there were many Sir George Youngers in the Conservative party it was just possible that the coalition might disappear.

We spoke of the Genoa conference. I said that frankly I was tired of government by conference; that starting from the fatal one at Versailles to the futile one at Cannes, they had been a source of mischief, misunderstanding and recrimination; that the only one at which the truth had been faced, discussed and spread was his own at Washington. I tried to give him some faint idea of the effect that Mr. Hughes' opening speech upon disarmament had produced in our country, adding how profoundly sorry I felt for France.

Our "hang the Kaiser," "search the German pockets" election of 1918, backed as it was by the whole Conservative party, had taken in the French republic; and added that half the irascibility, temper and annoyance with us which we were witnessing in Paris today arose from a feeling that they had been cheated.

I said with all the earnestness that I could command that neither the Liberal party, my husband or anyone else in England intended to quarrel with France; that it was equally clear that this view was held in America and therefore vital for the peace of the world that we should try and understand each other and all keep together.

Harding's Sympathy for France

Mr. Harding was eloquent in his agreement, told me how devoted he was to the French people and added that he felt certain the misunderstandings would gradually pass away. After signing and giving me a facsimile copy of the message which he had delivered at the close of the Washington conference, we parted.

I went to the Rock Creek Cemetery with my cousin, Nan Tennant, to see the Adams tomb by St. Gaudens. It is a great work and clutches at your heart. I sat on the circular marble seat and looked at the beautiful bronze statue. It reminded me of the lines in "Richard II":

"Oh! but they say the tongues of dying men enforce attention, like deep harmony"——

Although the hooded and austere figure takes you far away from all that moves, and is an emblem of Death, the deep and pitying eyes speak to those who will listen, both of Love and of Hope. I thought as I looked at it what a transfiguring effect a statue like that might have could it be removed to Berlin or Paris.

In the afternoon I visited ex-President Wilson. His wife greeted me with affection, and immediately showed me into the library where her husband was sitting erect upon a chair near the book shelves.

Mr. Wilson's eye was bright, his mind clear, and no one, looking at his distinguished face, could have imagined that he was ill. I could not conceal my emotion when I told him how often we had thought of him.

The former President seemed hopeful about himself, and said he had still much to do, as there was a stern fight in front of him.

He asked me if I did not think things were looking better for my husband and "your great party," adding how closely and with what hope he and others were watching the present political situation in England.

I told him that he had had the one fine idea, and that all the world was fumbling to follow in its track; adding that the League of Nations was applauded upon every Liberal platform.

He made me promise to go and see him on my return to Washington, and after a short conversation about nothing in particular, the fear of tiring him made me get up and say good-by.

THE POST-DISPATCH PLATFORM.

I know that my retirement will make no difference in its cardinal principles, that it will always fight for progress and reform, never tolerate injustice or corruption, always fight demagogues of all parties, never belong to any party, always oppose privileged classes and public plunderers, never lack sympathy with the poor, always remain devoted to the public welfare, never be satisfied with merely printing news, always be drastically independent; never be afraid to attack wrong, whether by predatory plutocracy or predatory poverty.

LETTERS FROM THE PEOPLE

The Church or the Churches.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch.

THEY are to put a muzzle on any newspaper that opposes prohibition and send the editor to jail, and they are to order out the army to enforce the Volstead act. At least the New York State Methodists in a conclave at Syracuse have so ordained by resolution, and they call on the Federal Government for appropriate action. Thus in our own times we get a glimpse of fanaticism that confirms what seems to us to be the unreal or fantastic vagaries of history in its allusions to witch burning, the stocks, the pillories and the quartering of culprits for stealing a loaf of bread, for forgeries and for such crimes as are by no means so heinous as imbibing a glass of beer at a summer picnic. Astonished as I was at these ministerial resolutions at Syracuse, absorbed as I was at the forceful and logical protest of your newspaper, still my attention was arrested by the concluding paragraph of your editorial the other day in which you exclaimed that it is no wonder that the "church" is losing influence.

What do you mean, church?

I ask the question in perfect good faith, and as one of 65,000,000 Americans who is not a communicant of any religious denomination—a confession and a shameful lapse that I hope to correct—and I ask it without prejudice.

When the minister or the deacon of the Methodist Church or the Baptist Church or some other branch of Christianity rises to remark solemnly that the "church" must not seek to evade this or that great responsibility, using the term in the abstract, his message reaches me vaguely. When an allied Protestant fund is devoted to so-called welfare work or a "survey" of industrial conditions, as being within the scope of the "church," I am lost in a maze of metaphysical doubts.

If your editorial had hinted that "churches" are losing their influence, I could understand that you mean that all or some churches, or all churches, synagogues and temples, are declining. If you had said that several religious denominations or sects are declining in consequence of a fanatical devotion to measures undermining the liberties of the people your meaning would have been clear and, I think, your conclusions accurate.

Two great Christian religious bodies implanted throughout the world are not conspicuous for having promoted Volstead legislation and certainly are not in your mind when you see the church dimmed in virtue of adherence to a program of fanaticism.

When you and many others speak in the abstract of the "church" would you have us understand that you refer to some particular group of religious sects, or, what seems more probable, is the term employed to designate something vague and ill-defined—something which has an impressive sound, but which each of us must define and digest at his leisure as his fancy at the moment may dictate?

With reference to Volstead aberrations or blue laws, what do you mean, the church, when you speak in the abstract, or do you merely speak abstractedly?

T. U.

Doyle and the Doubters.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch.

CONAN DOYLE is obviously sincere in his assertions about customs and conditions in the other world, but his cocksureness about it all a little trying. He would be more convincing, probably, if he were not quite so certain. At the same time is it not equally erroneous to dismiss as worthless the psychic phenomena in which Sir Arthur finds such astonishing revelations?

If a table moves without the aid of any force we are cognizant of, then the great and imperative thing is to find out what causes the phenomenon.

From lesser to greater is the law of all growth, and while it is true that curiosity moves but does not lift, the fact remains that any movement is better than stagnation; better move backward than die of inertia. One sometimes gets a fresh impetus forward from awakening to the fact that he is slipping downward.

If to our "intellectuals" it seems that all this crude manifestation is but the reviving of so-called witchcraft, would it not be well to ask themselves if they know what the particular thing was which gave a person the name of witch? There are many reasons that would lead one to the belief that many of these unfortunates were mediums and had clairvoyant vision. The ignorant mind saw in this perfectly natural power the workings of the devil. I can recall, less than 40 years ago, that anyone who was rash enough to tell that he saw, for instance, someone whom the world called dead, he would have been shunned by most people and called queer, if not altogether insane. Today too many are blessed with this "clear vision" for the world to dare to persecute them openly or hang them on a Salem hill.

William James said shortly before he died: "We are just in the borderland of this great psychic world; vast are its domains and great is the reward of the ones who have the courage to enter and seek truth." Yes, it does take courage to reveal to a sceptical world new truths. So let us keep an open mind, and if we dare not be pioneers, at least let us refrain from throwing obstacles in the path of those who have the courage.

N. S.

THE STRUGGLE FOR RIGHT.

The American Bar Association has deemed the present condition of widespread disrespect for law in this country of sufficient gravity to justify the appointment of a committee of distinguished jurists and lawyers to study its causes and submit observations and recommendations. The committee is now at work and will visit a number of the larger cities in pursuing its inquiries.

In any intelligent study of lawlessness the subject must be dealt with in the two broad categories of criminal conduct, differentiated in legal philosophy by the terms malum in se and malum prohibitum. The former class of crimes, directed against persons or property, have been recognized for centuries by the common law as inherently immoral, and include such offenses as murder, theft, robbery and the like. The latter class comprises inhibitions which any legislative majority may impose at any time upon a community, and are directed against conduct not inherently immoral but presumably contrary to or promotive of the public welfare. The former class of crimes is under the fixed and permanent condemnation of the moral law; the latter are transitory and fluctuating, according to the changing views of changing legislative majorities.

There is really nothing very mysterious or abstruse about the recent crime wave that has swept over the United States and, in fact, over the whole world. Criminologists have long since found a close relation between crime and poverty; and periods of widespread business depression and unemployment, such as the world is passing through, have always been characterized by an increase in robbery and like crimes. If the present wave is more violent, the general undermining of morals incident to a great war is ample explanation, Treitschke to the contrary notwithstanding. It will subside according as prosperity returns and as the influences of home and ethics assert themselves upon individual conscience.

Disrespect for law in the sense of disobedience to legislative regulations of conduct, not in itself immoral or vicious, is quite another thing and may be easily corrected. True law is founded in the customs and habits of a people and that community is most orderly whose laws most nearly approximate the community customs. During the last few years in this country, however, we have witnessed a reckless legislative mania for new laws designed purposely to suppress fixed habits and customs, because, forsooth, some busy group disapproved of them. The resulting irritability and opposition is the most natural thing in the world.

An absolute government, wielding unlimited power, can enforce its will upon a people and bid defiance to its wishes. We have attempted it under our free institutions and appear surprised at its failure. If it is proposed to increase the energy of government so as to compel obedience the substance of free government must, of course, disappear in the process.

In one respect the existing disrespect for law, as that law is embodied in our new regulations of personal conduct, is a wholesome sign. Many of our regulatory laws have gone so far as to wound our personal sense of right and leave a conviction that the Government itself is practicing injustice. This feeling of indignation is founded, not in wickedness, but rather in the power of morality. It is this keen capacity of the Anglo-Saxon to feel injustice and sacrifice himself to right it that has given us Magna Charta and our Constitution of 1787. It is the old struggle for right under law which becomes a struggle against law when that law ceases to protect right.

No doubt King John considered the English Barons to be diabolically disrespectful of law. So all oppressive Governments have looked upon opposition. But the fact remains that without this saving grace in the human character the world would still be in the gloom of absolutism.

THE GOLDMAN APOSTASY.

The communist colony of New York again is fit for business as usual. It has held a meeting to denounce Emma Goldman for disturbing it in its cherished belief—the success of the soviet republic as an experiment in popular government—and feels itself reconfirmed in the faith. While attacked only by the corrupted bourgeoisie the cause of communism thrived. It would not have mattered what happened in Russia. But exiled Emma bearing facts for the aid and comfort of the master class—this was too much. The apostasy had to be condemned. The esprit of the cause must be restored.

Emma's former disciples, therefore, sought and found a member of their faith who had been in Russia to come and annihilate her statements one by one; they excommunicated and excommunized her as a vindictive renegade, and adjourned in the faith—or, rather, the determination—that the ghost of fact had been laid.

It was Rose Pastor Stokes who keynoted with the pronouncement: "This finishes Emma Goldman." We have not the least doubt that if Mrs. Stokes and her cobelievers had been in Miss Goldman's shoes they would have done, if they had had the moral courage, as she has done. And we have no doubt that Miss Goldman, staying in New York, would have denounced them as unsparingly as they are denouncing her.

There is only one way for determined believers to avoid collision with the facts, and that is to stay away from them.

SHALL THE ART MUSEUM STAY?

Comptroller Nolte's difficulties in making the city's income spread over the city's needs are appreciated. His case against the expenditure of thousands of dollars for art objects while the material needs of the city, its institutions and dependents go unsatisfied also has its appeal.

But in attacking the 2-cent tax on the $100 assessed valuation of taxable property for the support of the Art Museum, what is Mr. Nolte doing? He is reviving an issue which long ago was determined by a vote of the people, much to the gratification of educators, art patrons and cultured opinion throughout the country. He is reviving the question of whether community art in St. Louis shall be supported by a fixed income, free of politics, or whether such art shall survive or perish on what remains after the Board of Estimate has allotted the city's revenues for what it regards as necessaries.

The first reply called for by the Comptroller's benevolently inspired attack is best conveyed in a question, namely: Why should the city's budget authorities be concerned with funds duly constituted by law and entirely outside of their jurisdiction? The art fund enjoys the immunity of the school fund. It is authorized by the people and administered separately. There is no justification in law or logic for the covetousness of the guardians of other public budgets.

If the Comptroller is dissatisfied with the law governing the composition of the Board of Control of the Art Museum it is his privilege as a citizen to make protest and propose changes. There is merit in the point that the city should have representation on the board other than through a self-perpetuating body of citizens. But to compare the needs of hospital beds and budget deficits with the needs of an Art Museum is to open the question of whether the finest cultural and spiritual achievements of civilization are worth public support.

The best answer to that question is that if you abolish the art museums and the schools you will still have budget deficits, need of hospital beds and the cries of spoilsmen over the shortage of spoils.

If the Art Museum is to be continued as an institution for popular culture and enjoyment it must have an adequate income to buy the best works of art, which are costly but are essential to the function of an art museum. If it is to be beggar at the city hall, dependent upon the leftovers of municipal departments, it will not be worth maintaining. Mr. Nolte raises the question: Shall we or shall we not have an Art Museum?

ENGINEER GRAHAM'S DISMISSAL.

For the resignation of Alexander Graham as chief engineer, which, it was first reported, was demanded by the Highway Commission at the instance of the Governor, Chairman Gary now assumes full responsibility. Gov. Hyde is quoted as saying that he did not know that Graham was to be removed. Mr. Gary explains his action on the ground that "Graham had not shown sufficient initiative and had deferred too much to Windrow." Windrow is Gary's personal representative.

It may be that Graham was not the man for the place. Yet he has been in the department for five years and only a month ago was re-elected chief engineer by the commission. It would seem, therefore, that the commissioners, some of whom had been associated with him for a long time, had confidence in Graham's ability. Under the circumstances will not the public wonder how Chairman Gary, who has had very little personal contact with the department, having been in Europe the greater part of the time since his appointment to the chairmanship, could have been so sure about Graham's incapacity?

The fact that Graham is a Democrat is bound to figure in the surmise. That is unfortunate. If the public gets the impression that the Highway Department under Mr. Gary's chairmanship is to be operated as a partisan political bureau there are rocks ahead. The Post-Dispatch is reluctant thus to construe M. Gary's action, but it is undeniable that the action is likely to occasion public apprehension. Had Graham been a Republican would he have been abruptly ousted, with the ink hardly dry on his certificate of re-election? That is the question which Chairman Gary has challenged the Missouri public to ask.

Whatever the reasons for Graham's conge, the circumstances disclose Mr. Gary's inexperience in public affairs. Granted that the chairman of the Highway Commission must be privileged to select his subordinates if he is to make a success of the great project, it is, nevertheless, incumbent upon him to avoid even the appearance of spoils politics.

OUR UNSELFISH CONGRESS.

The present Congress, whatever its defects, has no symptoms of the feverish supersensitiveness that unhappily marked the last Wilson Congress, especially the Senate. The tariff bill reported by the Senate Finance Committee may be offered in evidence. So far from sitting up nights to see that the President does not poach on its preserves, as the Wilson Congress used to do, the new tariff bill proposes to vest in the President the unprecedented power of raising or lowering tariff rates as conditions may require.

Nobody can say how the innovation will work. Indeed, nobody can say how the pending tariff bill, if enacted, will work. Admittedly it is hard to do business with customers who either have no money at all or whose money at Uncle Sam's counters is pretty nearly worthless. In such circumstances it does not seem like sound business practice to make trading still harder by high tariff schedules, as the bill proposes. Possibly Congress thinks the President will be able, with this extension of authority, to make the customs act function successfully. And, so, have given the executive a "free pass" over their constitutional rights.

The present Congress may be fumbling, cowardly and helpless, but its unselfishness in letting the President do all the hard work ought to be acknowledged and acclaimed.

AN ARGUMENT AGAINST WAGE CUTS.

Some rather striking testimony was introduced at the Railway Labor Board's hearing of the roads' demands for further wage cuts. The wife of a section hand, who appeared, she explained, in a borrowed coat, submitted the family budget. This budget showed a revenue of $70 a month, the husband's wages, as against monthly expenses totaling $90.15. The witness further told about her 10-year-old boy whom a school nurse pronounced tubercular, but whose case was diagnosed by a doctor as undernourishment. The boy's diet consisted of tea, bread and syrup. "The doctor said he ought to have milk."

It may be that such evidence of poverty and incapacity cannot be accepted as economic data, however appealing it may be to relief organizations or philanthropic enterprises. Yet the work of a section hand is necessary to the operation of a railroad. It must be done and somebody must do it. Must it be done at a wage that condemns the worker and those dependent upon him to charity or near-starvation?

The case of the section hand cannot be dismissed as a sentimentality. Nor can the railroads, in justice, ask the community or some other agency to provide in part for a class of railroad labor. The railroads may need more money, but a prior need is self-respect. There can be no self-respect in an industry that does not pay a living wage for indispensable labor.

The bankful rivers of the West, after their annual custom, are threatening the destruction of property and life and are actually pouring a power of imperial value into "old ocean's gray and melancholy waste." That power will some day be caught, imprisoned and subsequently released to till the farms and run the factories and illuminate the cities of the transmississippi empire.

BAYONET DIPLOMACY.

JUST A MINUTE . . .

Written for the POST-DISPATCH
By Clark McAdams

WHO would have thought the re-election of our Jamie Reed would ever become a national issue? Yet it is nothing else. A number of Senators are seeking this year to renew their tenure in office, but in this case alone do we see ex-President Wilson and a considerable part of the press actively taking the field in opposition to anyone wishing to be a Senator.

Something of a stir for one man to make, wouldn't you say? It is almost enough to make Missourians of every shade of opinion as to Jamie, join in his defense. We are always told that Russia, while of many varying opinions as to bolshevism, has really perpetuated bolshevism by joining against invaders. Maybe you can tell us what the difference would be if all Missourians suddenly got behind Jamie against the common foe?

There are never more than a very few men in the Senate of whom most of us have any definite impression. Yet, strangely enough, the impression almost everybody in the country has of our Jamie is definite enough. People think he is one infernal nuisance, and they express this appraisal in an infinite variety of ways all amounting to just that. They think Jamie is a very bad boy, and they want him politically spanked. One might have supposed that in his recent brush with Mr. Wilson he would have been supported by most Republicans and Independents, but he wasn't. They were pretty unanimous in saying that he had tried to disguise himself for the moment as a Wilson Democrat, and this was quite generally declared to be characteristic of him.

Poor Jamie! He has enough people against him in Missouri without stirring up imponderables like an ex-President and no end of newspapers scattered all over the country.

The weather is like any of us—repentant after the damage is done.

It looks as if the Quakers had proved that the way to do a thing is to do it and not talk about it. We have heard mighty little from the Quakers about their relief work in Europe, yet it has been the real phenomenon of reconstruction.

A Milwaukee lawyer has been fined $14,500 and costs and sentenced to five years at Fort Leavenworth for violating the Volstead act. It is probably necessary to make a much more horrible example of somebody in Milwaukee than it is anywhere else.

Jack Dempsey, at any rate, can be lionized by Europeans without occasioning our resentment, which illustrates the great difference between politics and almost anything else. It flatters us to have Jack meet Kings and Queens where to have the President do so seemed to offend us deeply. One might imagine it would be just the reverse, and we believe it usually is the other way around in most countries. Maybe we are not like any other country.

Words have their fashions, no less than clothes. For instance, we find this in The Freeman:

> Whole bureaux, so we are told, which were created during the war emergency, are still retained intact, though the work for which they were organized is done.

And to think! We have been speaking right along of bureaus!

BUD BURNS SPRAINS GUY.

Bud Burns says he is not so much interested in the Einstein theory of relativity as he is in corn bread and hog jowl and greens.

Sir: I found this in the Daily Financial America of April 20:

STATUTE OF LIBERTY FOR BRAZIL.

John H. Allen, treasurer of the Brazilian Memorial Committee, president of the American Foreign Banking Corporation, reports that up to date approximately $12,000 of the $35,000 needed has been subscribed for erecting the Statue of Liberty overlooking the harbor of Rio de Janeiro to celebrate the 100th anniversary of Brazil's independence.

Does this mean that Brazil is to have a prohibition law?

ALL ABOUT YOUR ECTOPLASM.

(Jack Blanton in Monroe County, Mo., Appeal.)

If you have ectoplasm you have power to communicate with the spirit world. We get this from Sir Arthur Conan Doyle, who seems to have delved deeper into the mystery of life after death than any other man. Ectoplasm, as most any schoolboy can tell you, is the denser protoplasmic layer of a unicellular organism or cell without a cell-wall, as if an amoeba or of a certain ova, a definition that is confirmed by the Standard Dictionary. If you have all this you have an ectoplasm and therefore are qualified to get messages from the other world. It is all very simple, almost as simple, in fact, as the newspapers which give to Sir Arthur vast amounts of space that might be filled with matters of real interest to the public.

Dear Just a Minute:—Some people cling to antiques never knowing the times are changing. For instance, to my amazement I observed an old-time negro boy hitching post in cast iron solemnly standing on a curbstone somewhere out on Russell avenue.

Its right hand was extended in a welcoming manner as if still expecting the old family horse driven towards it. There was something pathetic about its expression, and the thought came to me that the little cullud boy in cast iron was a great deal like some people I know. The automobile has displaced the horse.

How the world moves on and yet how many people there are who don't know it any more than that cast iron African boy? They are still thinking about the old family horse while automotive wonders pass before their very eyes. The glories of the world! What are they to a hitching post or a hitching post mind?

BERNARD GRUENSTEIN.

Dr. Conan Doyle says Heaven is a place where our ideals are realized; but it would not be Heaven for some of us if we found a League of Nations there, would it?

There is a colored merchant on Wash street who has no intention of trying to place two or three difficult apostrophes. His sign says:

There is always a way out of it, but imagine what a howl will go up from our sign hunters when they discover themselves cheated like this!

THE POOL OF LIFE.

DARK and deep
Of unknown depth.
The surface pitted by drops of rain,
Ever the same
Yet always changing.
A contiguous movement of momentary pockmarks,
Indentations individual,
Tragically alike,
Transient upon the waters' level.
And gone forever—
At once replaced by others,
By endless others—
In their thousanded succession.
Not one
Nor all
Penetrate the vast unknown
Beneath the surface.

The MIRROR of PUBLIC OPINION

This column is designed to reproduce without bias the latest comment by the leading publications, newspapers and periodicals on the questions of the day.

JOURNALISM A PROFESSION.

From the Christian Science Monitor.

BY authority of the United States Government it has been decided that a newspaper man is a member of a "learned profession." The decision will bring deep relief to many persons in and out of the "game." For long there has been confusion on this vital question. Some newspaper men have described themselves as "journalists" which has moved others to define a journalist as a newspaper man out of a job. Others have frankly aligned themselves with labor, accepting the benefits and the deprivations of such alignment with apparent equanimity. Outside the "game" opinions were equally varying. Those whose personal affairs had been exploited thought newspaper men a race quite without the confines of decent society. Politicians and business men who were able, through influence, persuasion or commercial, to use newspaper men as their paid publicity agents, took something for granted and patted the agents on the back. Certain of the public looked on newspaper men as "interesting," "energetic," rather impertinent men, occupying economically a position somewhere between the janitor and the college professor. Now this uncertainty is happily resolved. The other day a newspaper man, native of England, naturalized for years of Canada, left the Dominion for the United States, there to pursue his occupation. But at night he was roused from his berth by a courteous but determined immigration officer, who told him he must leave the train. Protests pleading of no avail, the newspaper man obeyed, and later submitted himself to further examination by a "board." He was quizzed as to his antecedents, his occupation, the number of years he had followed it, which were many, the conditions under which he purposed going to the United States, the extent of his resources, the size of his family. At last it developed that the officials were trying to determine whether the newspaper man fell under the ban of the law which prohibits bringing labor into this country under contract. The issue, proving too big for determination by the officials at the border, was referred at last to the American immigration authorities at Montreal, and after some delay came the decision: "We find that a newspaper man is a member of a learned profession, and as such is not subject to the provisions of the contract labor law."

KU KLUX KLAN AND MOB RULE

From the Brooklyn Eagle.

THE pronunciamento of Gov. John M. Parker of Louisiana demanding the prompt and sharpest action for the suppression of the Ku Klux Klan derives some of its significance from the character of Parker, who is a fighter, who ran under a Progressive or a Democratic banner, and more from the history of the Pelican State. The Governor says: "Where there is no organization there may be need sometimes for occasional measures on the part of the masses, but in a government like ours you cannot take the law in your own hands for any purpose whatever, and by working absolute injustice and undermining the foundation of order." Right, of course, but with a reflection on the Governor's predecessors, too, methinks! It was on the night of March 14, 1891, that a mob murderers broke into the Parish Prison at New Orleans and massacred 11 men of Italian stock accused of Mafia crime. Nine of these were naturalized. For the other two the Treasury of the United States, to which we all contribute, paid $25,000 to relatives on the demand of the Italian Government. Not one of these mob murderers was ever punished. No effort was made to punish them. Indeed, several men active in the affair were prominent in State politics for many years thereafter. Does Gov. Parker mean that there was "no civilization" in Louisiana under Gov. Nicholls? Or does he mean that the State was responsible for murderers instead of glorifying them, as it did ago?

Washington Lively With Affairs for D. A. R. Visitors

Many Missourians Among Delegates at Convention; White House Army and Navy Reception Also a Notable Event.

20 Wyatt Building.

WASHINGTON, April 22.—Washington had a surprise for Easter in "Papa" Joffre, the famous French Marshal, who is on a pleasure tour throughout America, accompanied by Madame Joffre and their daughter. The gallant Frenchman was received with acclaim by the smart set of the capital as well as the official circles, and he was the recipient of many attentions, which ranged from inclusion on the pilgrimage of the D. A. R. to Mount Vernon to a dinner in his honor at the White House.

The Marshal was the shining star at the White House army and navy reception on Wednesday, which was postponed from February on account of the Roma disaster, and gave an auspicious opening to the Easter season. Two of Missouri's sons, Gen. John J. Pershing and Rear Admiral Coontz, led the respective army and navy lines past the receiving line. In the blue room stood the President and Mrs. Harding and their assistants, Secretary and Mrs. Weeks and Secretary and Mrs. Denby. In point of numbers this was the largest number of guests ever appearing at a White House function, for more than 4000 were present. A spring-like touch was given to the decorations by lavish use of Japanese cherry blossoms.

Many Missourians Present.

An especially interesting group included Mrs. Frederick Dent Grant; her son, Col. Ulysses S. Grant, III, who is serving as aid for Marshal Joffre; Prince and Princess Cantacuzene and Princess Bertha Cantacuzene. Other Missourians present were Mrs. John B. Henderson, Sr., former Gov. and Mrs. Joseph Folk; Senator and Mrs. Selden P. Spencer. Mrs. Spencer has had a strenuous week as chaplain general of the D.

A. R., which has been assembled here in their annual congress.

The Missouri delegation is nearly 100 strong, including visitors who seized this opportunity to inspect the National Capitol. Missouri's daughters have been prominent in the congress and the report of the State Regent, Mrs. Paul D. Kitt, on Tuesday night was greeted with prolonged applause.

Spencer, chaplain general; Mrs. John Trigg Moss; Miss Jenn Winslow Coltrane and Mrs. Howard L. Hodgkins, now of Washington, whose husband is the acting president of George Washington University.

The Missouri D. A. R. has a soldier loan fund of $45,000 and it was reported that good work has been done with it.

Among the interesting Easter visitors who have been greatly entertained is Mrs. Frederick Campbell of St. Louis, who is visiting Mrs. Stephen B. Elkins, wife of the late Senator from West Virginia. Mrs. Thomson, who is still in mourning, was entertained at a number of informal parties.

How to Make Strawberry Jam in 10 Minutes

By Ann Proctor

The finest strawberry jam you ever tasted—chock full of the natural color and flavor—can be made at home within ten minutes after the berries are washed and crushed. I use the "Certo Process" because it takes only 1 minute's boiling, thus saving flavor and color, never fails, and is cheaper because I get 60% more jam from the same amount of berries.

To make ten half-pound glasses of Strawberry Jam:

Crush well in single layers about two quarts of ripe berries, using wooden masher and discarding all green parts. Measure 4 cups crushed berries and 7½ leveled cups (7¾ lbs.) sugar into good-sized preserving kettle. Mix well; stir hard and constantly. Bring to vigorous boil and boil hard 1 full minute, continually stirring. Take from fire and add ½ bottle (scant ½ cup) Certo, stirring it in well. Let stand 5 minutes only, by the clock, stirring occasionally; skim and pour quickly into sterilized glasses.

By this short "Certo Process" you save all the color and flavor that is boiled away by the old method. Time and worry are saved, and you have 5 lbs. of jam for 2 lbs. of berries as against 3 lbs. by the old method, and the cost with 2qts berries and 6c sugar is only about 9c per half-pound glass.

The above recipe and many others for making delicious jellies and jams by the "Certo Process" is found in the Certo Book of Recipes, a copy of which will be given to you by your grocer when you get Certo. Extra copies will be sent free if you write to the Pectin Sales Company, Inc., 108 East Avenue, Rochester, N. Y.

Use Certo this year in making all your jams and jellies. It saves time, worry and boiling. The "Certo Process" never fails and saves money, because you make half as much more jam from the same amount of fruit; it is endorsed by national authorities and cooking experts. Jelly and jams made with Certo keep splendidly.

TWO POLICEMEN KILLED, THIRD WOUNDED IN PISTOL FIGHT WITH THREE PAYROLL ROBBERS

SHOOTING FOLLOWS HOLDUP IN WHICH LESS THAN $100 IS TAKEN

POLICE THROUGHOUT CITY LOOKING FOR THE AUTO

Michael O'Connor and Bernard C. Mengel, Men Slain, Louis A. Held in Hospital With Wound Through Right Shoulder—All Three of Wyoming Street District in Which Robbery of Morris & Co. Office at 3000 South Broadway Occurred.

Two policemen were killed and a third was seriously wounded by two robbers who held up the Morris & Co. packing plant branch office at 3000 South Broadway at 10:30 a. m. yesterday and escaped with less than $100.

Patrolman Michael O'Connor of the Wyoming Street Station was on the west side of South Broadway, nearly opposite the office, when a man told him that there was "a stick-up at Morris'." He ran over to the office, entered and fired twice through a glass partition at one of the robbers. The other robber shot O'Connor, killing him instantly.

Patrolmen Bernard C. Mengel and Louis A. Held, who were in the South Side Trust Co., across the street, were summoned by the same man, and running out, crossed in time to meet the two robbers leaving the Morris office and making for their automobile. In a general exchange of shots Mengel suffered three wounds, from which he died in the City Hospital at 1 p. m., and Held was shot through the right shoulder. He is in the hospital.

The robbers escaped in the automobile, described as a green Oldsmobile touring car with faded top, which a third man had kept waiting for them, in the street nearly in front of the office, with engine running. The car was driven west on Pestalozzi street.

Holdup Apparently Mistimed.

They had apparently planned to get both the payroll money and the collections brought in by drivers, but they were too late for the payroll, most of the employes having been paid, and too early for the collections, as the drivers had not come in.

A general order was issued last night to policemen and detectives to look for the green Oldsmobile, which is believed to have been the same car used in two previous robberies, the more recent at a Kroger store on Ashland avenue. It had a license tag the first three numbers of which were 199—the numbers in the 199,000 group are those of Kansas City automobiles. In a previous robbery, the tag number of the green Olds was taken, and was found to be the number of a car then regularly in use in Kansas City, indicating that the tag on the robbers' car was a duplicate or a bogus one.

Detectives were sent to St. Louis County and to the East Side to look for the car, which some witnesses thought was a Paige, but which the police believe, as stated, to be an Olds.

In a roundup of police characters last night, 17 men were taken to headquarters. No definite evidence against any of them is at hand.

Scene of the Robbery.

The Morris office is at the northeast corner of South Broadway and Arsenal street. A shipping platform, two feet above the ground, is in front of the building, which stands back of the building line, with a small traffic plaza in front. A number of automobiles and trucks were in this space.

Within the building, the office quarters are to the right of the main entrance, and behind a partition of ordinary glass. In this office were Charles Olsen, branch manager; Arthur Garden and Delmer Berkel, bookkeepers, and Joseph Fleischman, produce foreman.

The robbers, who are described by

EVERY member of the St. Louis Police Department will be asked to contribute to a fund to be offered as a reward for the capture of the murderers of Patrolmen O'Connor and Mengel, if no arrest of importance is made in the case by tomorrow. This was announced last night by Chief O'Brien.

The same was done last May, in the case of the murder of Special Policeman Finn, and a reward of $1200 was made up by the contributions, and was subsequently paid to the captors of Spencer Jordan, who was recently convicted of the murder, his punishment being fixed at hanging.

The families of the two patrolmen will receive each the $3000 benefit of the Police Relief Association, and a year's salary for each, $1650 for O'Connor and $1380 for Mengel (a probationary), making $4650 and $4380, respectively.

Vote for Bonus Would Be Barter of Public Funds for Political Power, Senator Borah Replies to Legion Post

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, April 22.—Senator Borah, Republican, of Idaho, states in a letter to the Pocatello (Idaho) Post, American Legon, that if he voted for the soldier bonus bill "it would be a simple matter of barter, in which I use the people's money to buy somebody's vote." The letter was in response to a telegram received by the Senator from the Pocatello Post and was made public by him tonight.

"I observe in your telegram," it says, "the threat which you impliedly make as to future political punishment. It was wholly unnecessary for you to make this threat. It reflected no credit upon you and it has had no effect whatever upon me. When you come to that fight in which you propose to inflict punishment, you will doubtless be able to say many things in the way of censure upon my purpose.

"But one thing, neither you nor anyone else will be able to say, and that is that I ever sought to purchase political power by drafts upon the public treasury, or that I chose to buy a continuation in office by putting four billions of dollars upon the bended backs of American taxpayers.

"I haven't much respect for the man who buys office, even though he pays for it with his own money. But the most slimy creature which disgraces American politics is the man who buys office by paying for it with appropriations out of the public treasury, and charges his venal political obligations to the taxpayers.

"If I thought this measure a proper one, I could and would vote for it. But, believing with thousands of former service men who have written me that it is not a proper one, I should vote for it, it would be simple matter of barter, in which I use the people's money to buy somebody's vote; in which the account of my political expenses would be charged to the taxpayers.

"Of course, you understand that I have at all times supported and stand ready to support any measure which will help the disabled veteran."

FRENCH OBJECTION TO GERMAN REPLY TO RESULT IN NEW NOTE FROM ALLIES

It Will State That Communication From Germany Is Assumed to Mean Delegation Will Refrain From Discussion of All Russian Problems.

FRENCH WALK OUT OF EXPERTS' MEETING

Session on Russian Reconstruction Plan Breaks Up as Result — Communique Says Treaty Apparently Was Arranged Before Parley.

By the Associated Press.

GENOA, April 22.—A crisis in the economic conference, raised today by the French objection to Germany's reply to the ten-Power note, suggesting that the German delegation refrain from discussions relating to Russian affairs, had not passed satisfactorily up to a late hour this evening.

At a meeting of representatives of the 10 entente Powers late this afternoon, it was agreed that another note should be sent to the Germans stating it was assumed that they meant, in their reply transmitted yesterday, to refrain from all Russian discussions in the political commission of the conference.

In fact, the British and most of the other interested delegations so interpreted the German reply. But the French expressed fear that the German note left a loophole through which the Germans might enter into discussions of Russian questions not treated in the Russo-German treaty signed at Rapallo last Sunday.

The ten Power delegates will meet tomorrow to draft this supplementary note to the Germans, but it was not known tonight whether the French would agree to this action, as they are extremely suspicious of the German document, and apparently the French delegation at Genoa is being driven hard by Paris to have it revised.

Objections by French.

The French also raised objections to the voluminous Bolshevik document which became public yesterday, in which Russia made a long reply to the London experts' report on the restoration of Russia.

M. Barthou said the French could not sit with the Russian commission again until this document was discussed. The soviet experts explained that this document comprised merely their own arguments and was superseded by M. Chitcherin's note setting forth the Russian position exactly.

Premier Lloyd George appeared much annoyed over the French "quibble." He declared he had only read three lines of the Russian document, which had never been officially presented to the conference and was patently part of the normal bolshevik propaganda. He also announced that he was getting tired of crises which were being foisted, upon the conference, to the great detriment of work, and wished to say on behalf of the delegations of the British Empire that if these crises and consequent delays continued, he would be forced to explain who was responsible for them.

The British delegation has not received as yet the protest which the French Government is reported to have sent out from Paris to the Powers signatory to the Versailles treaty, in which France is said to maintain that the Russo-German treaty is in violation of the Versailles treaty.

French Experts Quit Meeting.

When the experts met today to discuss the Russian reconstruction question the French representative explained that he could not remain so long as the misunderstanding created by the Russian memorandum was not cleared up. This memorandum, he asserted, was in absolute contradiction to the Soviet's answer to the Allies accepting the Allies' conditions. The French delegate then withdrew from the meeting and the Japanese did likewise, and the meeting broke up. It is to smooth out this matter that the subcommission on Russian affairs will meet tomorrow. Neither Russian nor German representatives will attend this meeting. Seven Russians were present at today's meeting of experts.

According to an English spokes-

Chitcherin at King's Luncheon; Filmed Shaking Hands With Barthou

GENOA, April 22.

By the Associated Press.

GEORGE CHITCHERIN, head of the Russian soviet delegation to the economic conference, not only went to luncheon today with the King of Italy on the dreadnaught Dante Alighieri, to the discomfiture of Italian communists, but also wore for the occasion an immaculate morning coat and a high hat of latest style and was filmed by motion picture photographers as he was shaking hands with the Italian monarch.

Furthermore, the Bolshevist statesman was photographed in the act of shaking hands with Louis Barthou, head of the French delegation, who has been particularly active in taking exception to Russian proposals at the conference. When M. Barthou discovered that he had been photographed in the act of exchanging greetings with the soviet chieftain, there was something of a scene. He demanded in explosive French that the film be destroyed.

The thought of such a film being shown in the motion picture houses along the Champs Elysee was too much for the French delegate, but the hard-hearted movie men ignored his expletives and continued filming the rest of the notables who were the King's guests at the luncheon.

M. Chitcherin was accompanied by Leonid Krassin, Russian soviet trade expert, who also was clad in approved Downing street style. In fact the representatives of the Russian proletariat government were the most bourgeois-looking guests on the Italian battleship. M. Chitcherin sat during the luncheon near Mgr. Signori, Archbishop of Genoa.

FORMER ANNA GOULD'S DAUGHTER BARELY ESCAPES ELLIS ISLAND

Aunt Whom Young Girl Came From France to Visit Failed to Appear Upon Her Arrival.

NEW YORK, April 22.—Violette Helene de Talleyrand-Perigord, youngest daughter of the former Anna Gould, narrowly escaped going to Ellis Island with a batch of immigrants when she arrived on the steamship Paris today for a visit with her aunt, Mrs. Finley K. Shepard, at Tarrytown.

Mrs. Shepard had planned to meet her young niece, but failed to appear through a misunderstanding as to when the Paris would dock. Immigration authorities, learning that Violette was under 16, ordered her detention under the law prohibiting the entrance of minors "unaccompanied by parent or guardian."

Word was sent to Mrs. Shepard and she arrived with her lawyer just in time to have a special board authorize Violette's admittance before less fortunate immigrants were taken to the detention pens at Ellis Island.

CUT IN RAIL RATES TO AID FARMERS IS RECOMMENDED

Joint Congressional Commission of Agricultural Inquiry Finds They Are Disproportionate to Prices.

THREE PROPOSALS TO BETTER SERVICE

Enlargement of Competitive Avenues, Extension of Through Grain Rates Among the Suggestions.

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, April 22.—Transportation rates on products of agriculture, as on many other commodities, now "bear a disproportionate relation to the price of such commodities" and should be reduced immediately, according to findings of the joint congressional commission of agricultural inquiry, announced today by Chairman Anderson.

Not only should these freight charges come down, the report declared, but in the future rate making bodies and railroad traffic offices should give "greater consideration to the relative value of commodities in the making of rates," and let existing charges on high priced finished products stand, if necessary to remove cost burdens from basic materials.

Should Readjust Rates.

Exhaustive review of the transportation situation has convinced the commission, Chairman Anderson said, that "pyramided per cent advances" of freight rates during the war and following years, "caused dislocation of long standing relationships between rates on agricultural and industrial products and between competitive enterprises and competitive territories" which dislocations should now be removed. The object of rate making bodies should be, he said, in presenting the commission's views, "to readjust rates so far as practicable to the relationship existing prior to 1918."

Effects of freight rates are emphasized, it was said because on perishables, "they amount normally to one-third of the selling price, and frequently two-thirds" and "purchasers and farmers are dependent in a marked degree upon transportation charges" in prices. The general result of increased railroad rates and depressed commodities prices was to bring railroad rates on farm products in October, 1921, to an index average of 169, or roughly 69 per cent above pre-war levels, while farm products stood at 102, or barely two per cent above pre-war.

Outside of its general conclusions, the commission advanced three specific proposals to better transportation service for farmers, the first being the enlargement of "competitive avenues of distribution through which the largest number of consumers can reasonably be reached," the second was the extension of through rates on grain "to points of consumption through two or more competitive primary markets" and the third the extension of the principle that coarse grains, such as corn, should take lower charges than breadstuffs. Adequate car equipment should also be maintained, it was added.

Views as to Livestock.

Further, the commission found that "Livestock shoks marked fluctuations in shipment volume" and that railroads, stockyards and shippers should co-operate to even out the supply at market points, thus preventing price and charge impositions while hay, as the bulkiest farm commodity, required "a reduction in both freight and sales margin before there can be resumption of normal shipments." Costs on livestock distribution also must be brought down, it was held.

On dairy products and on cotton the commission concluded that freight charges had not had so serious an effect as upon some other farm stuffs and as to wool, Anderson remarked that its price "to the producer has been depressed somewhat by freight rates, but primarily by disorderly and unscientific marketing."

Moving to the study of indirect freight costs affecting farmers, as they enhance prices of things farmers buy, Chairman Anderson said that "fertilizer prices were found to be close to the pre-war basis except for freight costs.

Coal and Lumber Situation.

Coal and steel, being of "intimate interest" to the farming consuming population, the commission declared that freight charges on steel represented 41 per cent of its cost, while bituminous coal should be subjected to reductions in mine prices, freight rates and sales margins.

BOY, ARM BROKEN, DROWNED TRYING TO SAVE BROTHER

Attempt to Rescue Lad, 6, Proves Futile—Both Die in Quarry Pond 20 Feet Deep.

SISTER TRIES TO PUSH POLES OUT TO THEM

Older Boy Jumps In and Supports Younger With One Arm; Playmates Run to Bring Help.

James Reynolds, 19 years old, 7928 Pennsylvania avenue, lost his life yesterday afternoon when, although one arm was fractured, he jumped into a quarry pond in an effort to save his 6-year-old brother, George. The sacrifice was futile, for George, too, was drowned.

James, carrying his left arm in a sling, went to the pond between Koeln and Stein, Polk and Reilly streets, accompained by George and their 9-year-old sister, Josephine. James was sitting on the Koeln street bank fishing, when George fell into the pond, which is 20 feet deep.

James, unmindful of his condition, leaped into the water. Josephine saw both come to the surface and saw James get George under his right arm, but with his broken left arm he could not swim.

She and several small boys who had been fishing tried to push poles out to them, but were unable to reach them. She ran home to call her father, Patrick Reynolds. The boys called Edward Rolf of 211 Stein street and Leonard Lincoln of 7627 Water street. When they reached the pond the water was rippling, but the brothers had gone down for the last time.

Rolf brought ropes and grappling hooks and the pond was dragged, and after a while the bodies were recovered, one at a time. They were taken to the city hospital and the pulmotor was used, without avail.

James was employed by the Ely & Walker Dry Goods Co. His parents had misgivings about allowing the young children go with him when he started to the quarry pond, and Mrs. Reynolds suggested that her husband accompany them, but he thought James would be able to take care of the small ones, and did not go.

The funeral will be Tuesday at 9:30, with burial in Mount Olive Cemetery.

OBREGON CALLS KING DEMANDS IN THE U. S. SENATE "A JOKE"

Mexican President Characterizes Author of Blockade Recommendation "the Newest Ace of Interventionists."

By the Associated Press.

MEXICO CITY, April 22.—Statements made in the United States Senate by Senator King, advocating a blockade of Mexico and the seizure of Mexican ports as a guarantee for the payment of American claims against Mexico, were described today as a joke and the Senator was characterized as "the newest ace of the interventionists" by President Obregon in an interview with the newspaper correspondents.

The President said he did not believe the declarations of Senator King would affect public opinion, either in the United States or Mexico.

PEPPERED NEOPHYTE EXPOSES BURGLARY CLUB OF STUDENTS

Lad, Hit by Marshal's Buckshot, Says He Was Being Initiated by "Hard Fellows."

By the Associated Press.

COLUMBUS, O., April 22.—The six burglaries which set the sedate college town of Granville on edge Wednesday night, and caused the entire male student body of Denison University to be lined up and examined for buckshot wounds, were solved today by Dr. E. C. Brock of Columbus Police Department.

The "burglar" who was hit by the buckshot from Marshal Shipley's rifle was Paul George Phyphers, Richmond Heights, O., a senior in the prep school. His connection with the burglaries was discovered when he came here for treatment.

The burglaries, he told Police Lieutenant O'Connor, were perpetrated by a club of "hard fellows," a "collection of good for nothing bums." To be a member of this organization, one must "pull" a job of burglary, Phypers said. Nothing was ever taken on these jobs, he asserted.

Phypers said nine members of the club were playing poker Wednesday night when some one suggested they shake off their ennui by smashing a window.

"This kept on until we had things pretty well upset," Phypers said.

"We trailed the Marshal, and tried to get him to chase us. Finally we broke the front window of a jewelry store, and then I got mine."

The lad is being held for the Marshal of Granville. He said he was a nephew of Dean Paul Tanner of the university, and lived at the dean's home.

Rev. Percy Grant Helps Vestry to Meet Large Deficits—Several Salaried Workers Dismissed.

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, April 22.—The Rev. Percy Stickney Grant, rector of the Church of the Ascension, has voluntarily accepted a 50 per cent reduction in his salary to help his vestry cut down expenses and meet a large deficit. This action decreases his annual stipend from $10,000 to $5000.

It also became known today that several salaried church workers have been dismissed and that the vestry has raised enough money to meet the deficit for the current church year. Closing of the parish house was threatened unless this was done.

YOUNGSTOWN, O., April 22.—Mayor George L. Oles of this city today announced his candidacy for Governor of Ohio on an independent ticket. Oles is not going to be sparing of "red fire" he said today. He told of some of the features of his proposed campaign. Three weeks before election, he said, he will charter a private train for a State-wide tour "with a brass band and two freight car loads of red fire."

FORMER SENATOR DEPEW TO BE 88 YEARS OLD TODAY

Says World Is Filled With Mighty Good People—Refuses to Discuss Prohibition.

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, April 22. — Former United States Senator Chauncey M. Depew, who will celebrate his eighty-eighth birthday tomorrow, is still a hard-working optimist.

"I see more hope for the future of the world on my eighty-eighth birthday than on any in the last seven years," he said. "I am entering my eighty-ninth year jubilant. I am pretty well satisfied with this world and mean to stay in it as long as I can. I have a feeling that it is filled with mighty good people. It has always been to me a garden to be cultivated. We can't pull up the weeds, but we can find some places where we can grow the things we like—men and women, boys and girls, for instance."

Apparently hale and hearty, Depew made his daily visit today to the offices of the New York Central Railroad, where he presides as chairman of the board of directors. The former Senator discussed many subjects, but tabooed prohibition.

"I always refrain from discussing that subject," he said, "because it only makes people mad. I prefer not to say anything about it. I want to keep all my friends.

"I never drink whisky," he continued, referring to his personal preferences in the matter. "I found out early in life that whisky and brandy and such drinks were very detrimental to good health, and I left them alone. I was accustomed to drink a little champagne daily with my luncheon."

Insisting that there were formulas for old age, he counseled moderation in all things.

"Don't overwork," he said. "Don't overplay. Don't overeat. Most of all, don't overdrink.

"Learn to smile."

UNITED STATES REPRESENTED IN GERMANY AGAIN

Concluding Formality Effecting Complete Restoration of Diplomatic Relations Disposed of Yesterday.

SIMPLICITY MARKS BRIEF CEREMONY

"Restoration and Cultivation of Good Will, My Instructions," Says Houghton — Ebert Returns Felicitations

By the Associated Press.

BERLIN, April 22.—The American Embassy in Wilhelmplatz again houses a fully accredited Ambassador, the concluding formality on effecting complete and formal restoration of diplomatic relations between the United States and Germany having been disposed of at noon today, when Alonzo B. Houghton placed in the hands of President Ebert his letters of credence, designating him "Ambassador Extraordinary and Plenipotentiary" of the United States Government to Germany.

Accompanied by his staff of secretaries and military and naval attaches, Houghton proceeded to the executive residence, where President Ebert, attended by Dr. Daniel von Haimhausen, Undersecretary of Foreign Affairs, Councilor von Guelich, also of the Foreign Office, and Councilors of the President's executive staff awaited the presentation formalities which soon were ended, after which the American presented credentials with brief remarks, to which Herr Ebert made the customary response.

Short Informal Chat.

The two engaged in an informal chat for 10 minutes, and then the Americans returned to the embassy.

In addressing President Ebert, the American said: "I have the honor to hand you herewith letters of credence accrediting me to your Government as Ambassador extraordinary and plenipotentiary of the United States, and I do not need to express to you that I am sensible of the honor the President of the United States has conferred on me in sending me to reside near your excellency's Government.

Felicitations Returned.

"Aside from my instructions, which look toward increasing friendly intercourse between Germany and the United States, and restoration and cultivation of the good will which should exist with them, it is with the greatest pleasure that I express my personal desire to carry out these instructions, and I will attempt in every personal way to bring about a mutual understanding between your excellency's country and my own.

"I pray that your excellency, being assured, both of my official and personal motives on this point, will find me, having in mind the just interests of my country, of all possible use in bringing this most desirable condition to fulfillment."

President Ebert replied in German that he was happy to accept the credentials, and warmly thanked the Ambassador. He noted with great satisfaction that the United States was looking toward the cultivation of mutual friendship, and assured the Ambassador that the German Government was minded similarly and would assist him to the utmost in this endeavor.

JUDGE SAYS PREACHERS ON JURY EXPEDITE LAW'S COURSE

Two Pastors Among Peers Causes Each of 10 Indicted to Enter Pleas of Guilty.

MIAMI, Ok., April 22.—Drafting ministers of the gospel as jurors in criminal cases is the best method possible of expediting court work, declared Judge Q. P. McGee of the County Court here today. He based this conclusion on the result that followed the appearance of the Rev. A. P. Cameron of the Christian Church and the Rev. C. W. Primm of the Apostolic Church in the panel for the terms opening yesterday.

The presence of two ministers resulted in pleas of guilty by the 10 individuals under indictment. Instead of a fortnight of trials, Judge McGee was able to dispose of all cases and impose sentences today.

"When the prisoners were led in and saw the two ministers sitting in the front row, I saw they seemed much agitated," said the Judge.

That it was the presence of the ministers that brought about this result was admitted by the prisoners themselves.

"I knew there was no use trying to deny the charge," said Ethel Rhine, held for abandonment of her two children. "When those two preachers looked at me I knew I was done for."

The Court imposed light sentences on the prisoners.

Lady Astor Is the Big Attraction at Baltimore

Mrs. Catt Forced to Stop Speaking When English Woman Appears at Pan- American Congress.

By the Associated Press.

BALTIMORE, Md., April 22.—Almost all the young women and the older women attending the Pan-American Conference of Women seemed to quit listening attentively to the speakers as soon as Lady Astor appeared on the platform this afternoon. This vivacious Virginia girl, who became the first woman member of the House of Commons had scarcely taken her seat when she began making short comments of approval on the statements of Mrs. Carrie Chapman Catt, the suffrage leader, who then was addressing the delegates.

"Hear, hear," or "That's right," Lady Astor would say from time to time, and nearly everyone appeared to be interested more in her remarks than in those of the speakers. Finally Mrs. Catt pounded the table and said:

"Lady Astor, I've presided over many a meeting, but I never had so much trouble in my life as I have since you came in this room. None of these reporters is interested in woman suffrage, but only in you. So, we'll have to let you talk and then you can leave and give the reporters their interview, and I want everybody else to stay in their chairs."

"Busy Populating the World."

"I'm here because the women have the vote," said Lady Astor. "Think what a disaster for the world if I had been hidden in a two-room cottage instead of the House of Commons," she added with a laugh of mockery.

"My accomplishments are entirely due to the work the women did. It is true the labors of those who have gone before that I can now carry on my work for the reconstruction of the world. Why, I tell the women of England I sometimes almost feel it a shame for me to be representing them in the House of Commons. You see, Lady Astor didn't have to smash in the windows and go to jail fighting for suffrage. That was done by others and we younger ones who are enjoying the fruits ought always be thankful to them.

"During the great suffrage movement I was busy populating the world," she explained, referring to her six children.

"Lord, No—It's My Best."

"I have been quoted as saying I didn't think much of the Washington conference," she said. "Why, I think it was the beginning of civilization. The whole world is looking to Washington, and the whole world is going to keep on looking to Washington. I think the whole world ought to be grateful to the President, to Secretary Hughes and the administration."

Then Lady Astor went to the press room to see the correspondents. Immediately about 300 women posed as reporters and circled around her with the several score of newspaper representatives.

"Is that your House of Commons dress?" a girl asked Lady Astor.

"Lord, no, child. This is the best dress I've got," she replied.

"When are you going to Washington to see the President?"

"Why, I thought the President was coming here to the conference—he ought to," said Lady Astor. "We are scheduled to go to Washington Friday." When the interview ended she was taken to the home of Mrs. John W. Garrett, whose guest she will be while in Baltimore.

Monday Lady Astor is to take part in the conference. Tuesday she will go to New York to address the annual luncheon of the Associated Press, returning immediately to Baltimore to make a speech here Tuesday night.

Proposals of Resolutions.

Resolutions for the formation of an international Pan-American association, with the object of strengthening the ties which should unite the women of the Western Hemisphere, were submitted today to the conference. The resolutions were referred to the Committee on Resolutions.

The resolutions propose, in addition to the formation of the alliance:

That the organization of this association be left to the National League of Women Voters, the promoters of the Pan-American conference of women.

That all the nations of America shall be represented in the council of the association.

That the first meeting shall be held in the United States on a date which the League of Women Voters shall deem convenient.

That the succeeding meetings shall be held in rotation in the different countries of America.

Appeal of Mrs. Catt.

An impassioned appeal to the women of South America to come out boldly for their rights and work for them, was made at the afternoon session by Mrs. Carrie Chapman Catt, president of the International Suffrage Alliance.

Pointing out that the women of these countries adhered to Catholicism, she said that the Catholic nations were the only ones which had not let down the barriers of suffrage, in whole or in part to women. Telling of the interest taken in the movement by the late Pope Benedict XV, and the present Pope Pius, she urged the people of these countries not to hold back for fear of offending the Pontiff.

ROAD UPHELD IN TEST OF LABOR BOARD POWER

Body Held to Have No Authority to Enforce Own Decisions in Injunction Case.

By the Associated Press.

CHICAGO, April 22.—The United States Railroad Labor Board was declared to have no authority to enforce its own decisions, and no power to interfere in conferences between a railway and its employes in a decision by Federal Judge George T. Page today.

The decision was handed down on a petition by the board to remove an injunction granted the Pennsylvania by former Judge K. M. Landis, in which the board was barred from publishing its decision in a dispute between the Pennsylvania and its employes.

The constitutionality of the act creating the board was upheld by the decision, however, which was declared to be the first court ruling interpretin in some detail the authority of the board as set out in the Esch-Cummins transportation act. The board's contention that it was an administrative arm of the Federal Government over which the courts have no jurisdiction, was denied.

The case was in the nature of a test of the board's powers and if the decision is sustained in subsequent decisions, the "teeth" will be withdrawn from the board, the board's attorneys contend, holding it would be without a weapon to force the roads to obey its mandates, as the transportation act provides only that the only action it can take against violators of its rulings is to publish its decisions.

Judge R. M. Barton, chairman of the board, announced he would confer with the Department of Justice before deciding whether to move for modification of the restraining order.

"This case is the most important as to the matter involved of any raised since the passage of the transportation act, and possibly the most important in the history of labor disputes and industrial legislation in this country," Judge Barton said.

The Court's decision, after reviewing the history of the transportation act, Federal control and the Adamson law, upholds the constitutionality of the transportation act in so far as it attempts to impose compulsory arbitration, but denied that the act gives the board any power to initiate any action on its own motion, and without submission by both sides to the controversy.

Coming at this time when the shop crafts have just started taking a strike vote on another question labor leaders predicted today that the decision may complicate the already troubled railroad labor situation.

SEWER TO BE OPENED TO CONVINCE PUBLIC OF NEED FOR BOND ISSUE

Place South of Olive Street Car Tracks Between Seventh and Eighth Streets Will Be Uncovered.

A three and one-half foot sewer south of the Olive street car tracks between Seventh and Eighth streets, which is about 50 years old and is leaking into the basement of the Republic Building, will be opened this week so that the public may see its condition and realize how badly St. Louis needs the bond issue for a sewerage system, which is one of the propositions before a Citizens' Committee of the Chamber of Commerce, Director Fisk of Streets and Sewers announced yesterday.

Fisk said that the time for digging down to the sewer would depend on the weather, but that it would be left open for a week. He will ask the United Railways Co. temporarily to reroute east-bound Olive street cars.

Arbuckle said this was to be his only comment on the cancellation of contracts for the showing of his films, at the request of Will S. Hays, head of the Motion Picture Producers' Association.

GRANDFATHER HELD IN DEATHS

Three Children Asphyxiated—Police File Murder Charge.

By the Associated Press.

HOUSTON, Tex., April 22.—Y. S. Mathis, grandfather of the three children found in their beds asphyxiated, early Thursday morning, was charged with murder late Saturday. Filing of charges followed an investigation by police since discovery of the tragedy.

TABLE ISSUED TO SHOW HOW TAX REVENUE IS SPENT

State Commission's Figures Indicate Larger Portion Goes to Schools and County Administration.

IS CITED IN DEFENSE OF HYDE'S POLICIES

Will Be Circulated to Offset Democratic Charges That Taxes Have Been Increased for State Purposes.

By a Staff Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

JEFFERSON CITY, April 22.—The State Tax Commission today issued a table purporting to show how each dollar of taxes paid in the various counties was apportioned as between the State revenue fund, the school fund, county revenue, road funds and to meet interest and principal on local bond issues.

This table, which is issued in defense of the tax policies of Gov. Hyde's administration, shows that in most counties the larger portion of each tax dollar went to meet expenses of county administration and to the schools. This is what it is intended to show, as the table is to be circulated to offset charges of Democratic partisans that Republicans have increased taxes for State purposes.

Much time has been devoted by the Tax Commission, composed of Roy Monier, vice chairman of the Republican State Committee, chairman, and George M. Hagee, an attorney of St. Louis, also a Republican, to preparing propaganda of this sort to meet Democratic attacks upon the administration.

The figures in the columns are cents, the total of the five columns for each county being presumed to be $1. The school column is supposed to represent the money paid for local schools, the county column represents the sum collected for county purposes, the road column is money paid to local road districts and the State column covers taxes paid for all State purposes.

The table follows:

PHILADELPHIA, April 22.

"DO you know Mr. Enrico Caruso Jr.," a deckhand was asked just after the Fabre liner Providence docked this morning.

He was a sure-enough deckhand, for a dingy blue suit, sailor's jersey and a big black pipe betrayed him. And without paying any attention to a promise to point out Caruso, he wandered over to the other side of the deck and became engaged in conversation with a very pretty girl.

Becoming suspicious, a photographer again approached him and this time the deckhand ran. Chasing him into the main saloon he was soon cornered behind a piano. Only then would he confess that he was really Caruso, son of the famous tenor.

"I am just going to Europe on a pleasure trip," he confessed good-naturedly, now that he was caught. "No, I do not intend to study music, for my voice is really no good, although the girls here try to tell me that it is."

Caruso is 18 years old. He has been attending school in the Middle West.

REPUBLICAN OFFICER TRIES TO PREVENT COLLINS SPEECH

Orders Troops to Surround Platform, but Irish Leader Gives His Talk at Friend's House.

By the Associated Press.

BELFAST, April 22.—Michael Collins upon his affidavite this afternoon at Killarney to deliver an address, was met outside the depot by an Irish Republican officer, armed with a revolver, who warned him he would not be allowed to speak until an incident at Listowell, County Kerry, where the officer alleged one of his men was fired at, had been cleared up.

Collins, who was accompanied by Gen. John McKeown, proceeded into town, whereupon the officer ordered his troops to surround the platform at the market place, where Collins was to speak.

Gen. McKeown, when he heard of the order, said that as an Irish soldier he claimed the right to go through Ireland and would not be deterred. The Republican officer, however, appeared determined and called his men to follow up the order he had given.

The order was obeyed and the men proceeded to the market place.

Collins and his friends, accompanied by a large and enthusiastic crowd, walked to the residence of Dr. O'Sullivan, in New street, where he addressed his meeting.

MAN SENTENCED FOR CONTEMPT IN BURCH JURY TAMPERING CASE

Private Detective Is Under Bond on a Felony Charge Growing Out of Same Case.

By the Associated Press.

LOS ANGELES, Cal., April 22.—Herbert S. Hocking, private detective, was found guilty here today of contempt of court and sentenced to five days in jail as a result of an investigation into alleged tampering with jurors in the case of Arthur C. Burch, under trial here on a charge of murdering J. Belton Kennedy last August.

Hocking told Judge Sidney N. Reeve he had no defense against the charge other than having followed instructions given from the District Attorney. These were to obtain information concerning talesmen summoned for jury duty in the Burch trial and ask certain questions of friends, relatives and neighbors of the talesmen.

The contempt charge grew out of statements of a talesmen, Miss Zoe Rutherford, that she had overheard Hocking questioning her mother and sister, and heard him say "Burch is as guilty as a dog." Hocking denied the statement.

Judge Reeve said that the law contemplated investigation concerning talesmen. Hocking is under bond on a felony charge of attempting to influence talesmen, growing out of the same case, and which is set for hearing Tuesday.

TRUTH ABOUT THE WHISKER BY WOMAN WHO STUDIED 'EM

Mustache More Constant Than the Beard, Says Miss Mildred Trotter, After Two Years' Research Work.

Following a two-year study of the individual human whisker in its native habitat, Miss Mildred Trotter, research assistant in the Washington University Medical School, has announced certain conclusions, touching especially on the whisker's length and width.

She found, on the upper lip, the most even and vigorous growth of hair; that is to say, the mustache is more constant than the beard. This is as true of negroes as of whites.

In the case of children, she found that facial hair is the same in both sexes, in respect of length and thickness, up to the age of 10. After that the boys go ahead, their facial down increasing in diameter and length. It is stated, in this connection, that the thickness of an adult woman's facial hair averages around .026 of a millimeter and that of men .116 of a millimeter.

While blonde women seem usually to have less hair on their faces than brunettes, this is because it is lighter in color, and hence doesn't show as plainly. A white man's whisker is thicker than that of a negro.

man, the conference as a whole desires to make a collective agreement with Russia, but if unanimity is impossible, it cannot prevent separate agreements, such as the one already concluded between Russia and Germany.

It is reported that the Russian delegation is sending another letter to the conference explaining at greater length in what way the Russian memorandum is modified by M. Chitcherin's reply to the Allied conditions.

The French delegation issued a communication declaring the three documents recently made public, namely, Germany's answer to the allies, Russia's answer to the allies, and Russia's memorandum reply to the London expert's report, obliged France to register formal reservation."

"The least one can say of the German answer," says the communique, "is that far from calming doubts and suspicions it confirms them by reason of its equivocal character and by its contraditions. Dr. Wirth insisted that the Russo-German treaty was concluded after the Germans had heard of the unofficial negotiations which were held at the Villa de Albertis, the Germans believing the negotiations would prove hostile to German interests. Later however, the German Chancellor admitted that the treaty was practically arranged before the Genoa conference."

"We are therefore justified," continues the communique, "in thinking that the Russo-German accord was in reality an arm which the Russian and German delegations brought to Genoa in their baggage to be utilized at the first propitious moment. How much weight, under these circumstances, can be attached to the protestations of solidarity and sincerity made by Dr. Wirth."

Reference to Other Questions.

Referring to Germany's expectations of participating in the discussion of questions not relating to points disposed of by the Russo-German treaty, the communique says:

"If, for instance, the conference should discuss the formation of a consortium or of a zone of reconstruction, Germany apparently expects to participate. This, however, is quite contrary to what the allies indicated to Germany.

"The allies made it absolutely clear to Germany that she was henceforth excluded from the discussion of Russin affairs."

Passing to the soviet's answer to the allies' statement of conditions, the communique declares this answer contains equivocation and contradictions.

The Powers had told the Russian they could not accept the soviet demands for indemnity; that the allies would admit a reduction only in the war debts; that they would make no concessions concerning private debts, and finally that the allies would insist upon the restitution of confiscated property or adequate indemnity, the communique points out. To this the Russians forwarded their acceptance, but their compliance, it is noted, was conditional upon the reception of financial help and recognition de jure of the soviet government.

"It seems clear," continues the communique, "that the de jure recognition demanded by the soviet government does not conform with the Cannes resolutions, acceptance of which by Russia was not dependent upon any conditions."

The Russians, it declared, had completely twisted the proposition and their attitude was inacceptable to Genoa.

"Besides answering the allied conditions," the communique goes on, "the Russian delegation made public a memorandum concerning the report of the London experts which seems absolutely in contradiction with their note accepting the allies' terms. Does this memorandum, which is couched in violent language and seems to breathe a spirit of defiance, express the true thought of the Russian delegation."

The communique remarks that the memorandum may be merely propaganda, but it calls attention to the fact that the Russians agreed to abstain from all propaganda in the conference. The communique concludes:

"From all this it would seem that the game of the Russians and the Germans has enveloped the Genoa conference in an atmosphere of intrigue, suspicions and combinations. The very documents published do not dispel the impression that a worm has eaten its way into the fruit which Genoa will offer to the world, and which may well prove to be the apple of discord."

French Note of Protest.

A summary of the French note of protest against the Russo-German treaty, signed by M. Barthou and addressed to the President of the conference, said the French delegation without reference to the other undertakings which Germany had contracted, considers that the Russo-German treaty violates the principles laid down at Cannes for the holding of the Genoa conference.

The note observes that in the opinion of the allies the treaty destroys the spirit of mutual confidence indispensible for international cooperation which the conference aimed to establish and that the allies are therefore unanimous in considering their dignity no longer permits the to collaborate with the German delegates on the commission handling Russian affairs.

The note adds that the reply of Germany to the allies' letter of April 18 does not supply acceptable interpellation of Germany's action and declares it is useless to enter into the details of Germany's allegation—untruthful allegations—the note says—which the loyal and frank attitude of the convening powers would be sufficient to disprove.

In conclusion the note points out the necessity of an immediate meeting of the heads of the delegations which signed the note to the Germans on April 18 for the purpose of deliberating on the situation.

U. S. Ambassador Denies Giving Interview on Conference.

By the Associated Press.

GENOA, April 22.—Richard Washburn Child, the American Ambassador, issued a signed statement this afternoon in which he denies having given any interview regarding the Genoa conference. His statement adds:

"Interviews attributed to American citizens, even those of former American officials, who may be present at Genoa, cannot be interpreted as expressing the views on foreign policy of the United States, whose foreign policy will be expressed by the President or the Secretary of State, or their representatives, speaking officially for the American people.

"The expression of private views and interviews may be of service to truth and intelligence, but private views are merely private views, and the people of Europe will be deceived if they accept such views as carrying implied authority. The reasons for America being unable to participate in the conference were stated with complete clearness by the Secretary of State in a note published long before the conference began.

"As a consequence of that note there is no American representative, official or unofficial, in the organization or personnel of the conference. I am in Genoa in pursuance of my duties as Ambassador and among those duties I am charged with keeping my Government informed of the progress of events in Italy. This includes the progress of the conference. Many courtesies have been extended to me by its delegates, but this fact must not be interpreted to mean that the United States is officially represented in any way within the conference organization."

HEIRS SCATTERED, STATE MAY GET BULK OF $65,000 ESTATE

Efforts to Find Three in Russia and South Africa Have Proved Unavailing.

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, April 22.—All but about $14,000 of the $65,000 estate of Simon James Gordon may revert to the state if efforts to find four heirs, scattered over Russia and in South Africa, fail.

These facts were learned today when Public Administrator Smith, filed an accounting of the estate of Gordon, who died in 1919. He left about $28,019, mostly in stocks and bonds, but depreciation, together with bills, have brought the total down to $65,000.

Gordon's widow is believed to be in Petrograd. One son, Nicolaf, was last heard from in Moscow. A daughter, Barbara, was last reported in Tunis, South Africa, and another, Edith Marie, in Warsaw, has been found, but writes she has not heard from her mother and does not know whether she is alive. Nicolaf, she believes, was put to death and she has been unable to get into touch with Barbara. She will get $14,000.

By the Associated Press.

NEW ORLEANS, La., April 22.—Approximately 600 men were battling tonight to close a 70-foot break in the Mississippi River levee at Myrtle Grove, 30 miles south of the city. Reports indicated the workers had good prospects for success.

After the break early today, the river rapidly cut away a section of the levee, about 70 feet wide. The arrival of engineers and workmen with necessary materials to fight the flood prevented the break from being extended.

Reports from Myrtle Grove indicated that approximately 10,000 acres of plantation land, already seeded for rice, sugar and truck garden products, had been inundated. About 300 persons reside in the flooded area, but most of them have been removed.

In New Orleans the low sections of the levees are being raised with sand bags. With the gauge registering 22.4 feet today, four-tenths of a foot higher than the previous record established in 1912, the Weather Bureau predicts a further rise by May 10 that will raise the water a few inches above the tops of the levee here. Engineers say they will be able to hold the water with sand bags. The Mississippi now registers higher stages than ever before attained at all points where records are kept from Greenville, Miss., to the Gulf with the single exception of Baton Rouge.

Probably the largest area now covered by water is in the lower Yazoo river basin, where more than 1000 square miles of land in Yazoo, Warren and Issaquena counties, including some of the best farming land in the delta, are inundated.

More than 1000 refugees from the section are being cared for at Vicksburg. Another large area is in Phillips County, Ark., where refugees have been taken to Helena.

Many residents of the Valley are being housed in army tents, railroad box cars and abandoned houses, a few are sleeping under the open sky.

HOW MILLER WILL BE SUPPLANTED AS POLICE BOARD HEAD

Move Will Be Made Tuesday to Declare All Offices Vacant and Elect Philip H. Brockman President.

MILLER SLATED FOR OFFICE OF TREASURER

Then, According to Plan, if He Decides to Remain on Board He Will Not Be Permitted to Lead Raids.

The procedure by which Victor J. Miller will be supplanted by Philip H. Brockman as president of the Police Board was determined upon Friday night during a few hours' visit to St. Louis by Gov. Hyde, who conferred with other members of the board, and instructed them as to their parts in the plan. It was learned yesterday upon excellent authority that the other four members assured the Governor that they would carry it out. This is the plan:

Miller will convene the board as usual Tuesday afternoon. Immediately a motion will be made, probably by Vice President Richard Moore, that all offices be declared vacant, and the board reorganized. If Miller refuses to entertain the motion, as he may, it is to be put by Moore, and carried by a vote of four to one, in the event that Miller votes no. Brockman, now purchasing agent, is to be elected president; Moore is to be re-elected vice president; Commissioner William Young, now treasurer, will be elected purchasing agent, and Miller will be elected treasurer. The fifth member is Mayor Kiel.

If Miller decides to remain a member in the subordinate position, measures will be taken to prevent a continuance of his previous activities. If he undertakes to assume leadership of raids, as in the past, Chief of Police O'Brien and Chief of Detectives Hoagland will be instructed to take no orders from him unless ratified by the board.

Refuses to Resign.

He was told yesterday of the arrangements for ousting him, and was asked if he would continue as a member. He replied: "I have made my public statement, and I am not inclined to discuss the matter further. But I will say this to you. Get it right. I will not resign under any, a-n-y (spelling the word) circumstances."

The Governor yesterday made another attempt to persuade Miller to resign, sending Commissioners Moore and Young as his emissaries. Moore, who has been friendly with Miller, had expressed the opinion that he could convince Miller that to resign would be the easier, more graceful way out of his dilemma.

Unable to Budge Miller.

The visit occurred in Miller's law office. At its conclusion Moore made it known that he had been unable to budge Miller's determination not to resign.

Both Miller and Brockman visited police headquarters last night. The nearest approach to a meeting between them occurred as Miller emerged from Chief O'Brien's office into the third floor corridor, where Brockman was standing. If he saw Brockman he gave no outward indication of the fact and passed into the elevator without greeting him.

The break between Miller and Gov. Hyde came only after repeated efforts on the Governor's part to induce Miller to retire gracefully. It is known that Gov. Hyde decided, a very few days after Miller's reflections on the morals of Soldan High School pupils, that the charges, whether proven or not, were injudiciously made, and had aroused such bitterness that Miller's usefulness as a public official had been seriously impaired. The subsequent failure to substantiate the accusations convinced the Governor that Miller, as he said in a statement Friday night, had "forfeited public confidence."

Hyde Decided on Drastic Action.

On the other hand, he admired some of Miller's work, and having a personal affection for him in addition, desired to let him retire without embarrassment. After giving him what he considered a reasonable time to resign, he asked him to do so, it is stated. Miller was obdurate. The Governor, feeling that he had been more than generous, decided that he must take drastic action. He is said to resent Miller's suggestion that, if the latter is removed, it will be a victory for the criminal element of the city.

Kansas City Election Cited.

It has been suggested that the Kansas City election a few weeks ago had an important part in the Governor's attitude on the police question. In a campaign there, in which Matthew Foster, who had been president of the Police Board, was the Republican candidate for the mayoralty, the Hyde forces were crushingly defeated. Since then the Governor has been told by party lieutenants that a continuation of his police policies would mean party suicide.

Lieutenant-Governor Hiram Lloyd, in whose judgment the Governor has much confidence, was of this opinion, and when consulted he suggested at a conference at the Planters Hotel Wednesday night the plan by which it is intended to depose Miller.

Panoramic Photograph of the Scene Where Two Policemen Were Killed and Another Wounded in Fight With Payroll Robbers

THE maltese cross indicates approximately the place where the robbers' car, the engine of which was kept running, stood. The packing plant sets back of the building line a considerable distance. Policemen Mengel and Held were in the banking room of the South Side Trust Company, on the northwest corner of Broadway and Pestalozzi street, when the robbers entered the packing plant. Policeman O'Connor was on the street. He was the first officer to enter the office where the robbers were. He fired through a glass door at them, missing them, and was shot down. Mengel and Held ran from the bank to get to the scene. Held became entangled in the heavy traffic that was passing at that time and was slow in getting through, but Mengel quickly reached the platform in front of the plant, firing as he ran. He was shot down on the platform, as the robbers dashed out of the office. Held opened fire as soon as they appeared, but was quickly incapacitated by his wound. The two robbers jumped into the waiting car, which sped north to Pestalozzi into which it turned and disappeared.

Olsen as being about 25 years old, wearing gabardines and caps, and both having on glasses with tortoise-shell rims, entered with revolvers displayed. Going into the space behind the partition, they pointed the revolvers at the four men, and one of them gave a "hands up" order, which was obeyed.

The safe, at the east end of the office space, was open, and one of the men began examining it, having first taken from the cash drawer the money there, believed to be $60 to $75. While this man bent over the safe, the other man began searching the employes in turn.

Showed Great Nervousness.

He backed Fleischman toward the safe and both robbers demanded of him where "the money" was. Fleischman and the others replied that there was not much money in the office. This angered the men, who, according to Olsen, showed great nervousness.

While the man at the safe continued to ransack it, the other patted Berkel's clothing, not getting a $10 bill which Berkel had in a pocket. He then began to search Olsen, and his hand was upon a bill fold, containing $100, when the police interruption came.

Patrolman O'Connor's arrival in the building, outside the office inclosure, was seen by Olsen and the robber who was searching him. O'Connor approached, stooping somewhat, and fired through the glass door. The course of the bullet indicated either that it was deflected by the glass or that, as police authorities believe, O'Connor purposely fired high, in the fear of wounding some of the employes.

The shot shattered an electric light shade, and entered the wall behind Berkel, passing apparently between Berkel's uplifted hands.

O'Connor fired again, and again the bullet entered the wall, without wounding anyone.

O'Connor Shot Through Head.

The other robber, who had been at the safe, nearly or quite out of the range of O'Connor's shots, stepped forward, before the policeman could fire again, and fired once. O'Connor fell, shot through the head.

The two robbers dashed out, jumping over O'Connor's body, and were in the doorway, when Patrolman Mengel met them, at a distance of only a few feet. Mengel had the first shot, and one or both of the robbers, returning his fire, shot him in the head, through the right arm and through the right hand.

Patrolman Held, who had started across the street with Mengel, but had been held back momentarily by an automobile, ran up, firing at the robbers. A bullet pierced his right shoulder—it is not certain whether this shot was fired by one of the robbers coming from the office, or by the man waiting in the robbers' car. Held fired at the car twice, then, his muscles affected by his wound, he dropped his revolver as the robbers jumped into the car, whose driver was honking his horn vigorously.

Shots Fired at Auto.

Fleischman ran out of the Morris office, with Patrolman's O'Connor's revolver, which he had picked up, and fired four times at the robbers' automobile as it started west.

One of the first bullets fired by Held was found in the wall of the Morris office, at a place near where one of the robbers was standing momentarily.

The man who called Patrolman O'Connor, and then called the two other policemen, was Leslie Medley, an employe of the Morris plant, who was in the refrigerator department, and who dashed out after he saw the robbers enter the office.

Held, describing the fight to a Post-Dispatch reporter at the city hospital, explained that he and Mengel were in the South Side Trust Co. on special duty, while O'Connor, who was the regular patrolman on the beat, was on the sidewalk outside. Held had just returned from guarding a messenger of the trust company who had taken some money to the Federal Reserve Bank. Mengel was about to accompany a messenger who had a payroll to deliver at a point farther south.

"Someone rushed in and said there was some trouble across the street," Held related. "I drew my revolver and ran out with Mengel. The street was full of automobiles, and I couldn't see O'Connor, who I suppose had gone inside, but I saw Mengel fire at someone, then saw the man fire back and Mengel fell, his head lying on the platform.

Second Shot Defective.

"I fired at the man who shot Mengel, and saw him double over as if he was hit. I fired again, but the cartridge was defective, and just went 'plop,' so I don't think that bullet went far.

"Then they got me. I was hit in the right side of the chest, but I held on to my revolver and supported my right hand with my left so I could shoot. I fired the three shots remaining in my revolver into the rear end of the robbers' car. At first I didn't know which machine to fire at, there were so many of them on the street.

"I did not want to hit any innocent persons, so I made sure of which automobile to shoot at. I saw the bandits' machine swerve out from the curb into the traffic, and I think I saw one of the men shooting at that time.

"After my revolver was emptied, I reached with my left hand for more bullets and got them out of my pocket; but I was unable to break open the breech of my revolver because my right hand seemed to be paralyzed. Then, the next I remember, they were putting me in an ambulance."

It was found that the bullets fired by the robbers were steel-jacketed.

Patrolman O'Connor was known as "Big Mike"—he weighed 230 pounds—and as "Number One," to distinguish him from other patrolmen named Michael O'Connor. He was 42 years old, lived at 3420 Montana street with his wife and two young children, and had been a policeman more than 19 years.

Patrolman Mengel was 52, lived at 511A Wilmington road, and had a wife and two grown sons. He went on the force nearly 21 years ago, but was in other work for nearly two years recently, and returned with the status of a probationary patrolman.

The funerals of the two policemen will be held Tuesday at 9 a. m., O'Connor's at St. Thomas of Aquin's Catholic Church, Iowa avenue and Osage street, and Mengel's at SS. Mary and Joseph's Church, 6310 Minnesota avenue. Both will be buried with full police honors, and arrangements probably will be made for a joint procession, with the police band.

Both K. of C. Members.

Both O'Connor and Mengel were members of Laclede Council, 1196, Knights of Columbus. Officers of the council visited both homes, and will aid in the funeral arrangements.

Held is 49 years old, and is a widower with a married daughter at whose home, 3464 Giles avenue, he resides. He went on the force in 1899. He was known as a good revolver shot.

Chief O'Brien last night, discussing the question why policemen are more frequently killed than robbers in such encounters, said:

"The police are good shots as a rule. They are required to practice at the revolver range, and in addition they can go there when off duty and shoot with the city's ammunition all they wish to.

Policeman Must Be Careful.

"The trouble is that a policeman must be careful whom he shoots at, while robbers are usually reckless, not hesitating to endanger innocent persons. A policeman, before shooting to kill, wants to be sure whom he is likely to hit. When I pursued two fleeing men on Olive street, a few years ago, I could have killed them both, but I didn't know just what they had done, and I wouldn't take that chance, and the result was that I got shot myself."

The latest previous killing of two members of the Police Department occurred the night of Oct. 16, 1920, when Detectives William A. Moller and Preston B. Anslyn were killed by two men whom they had followed into a yard on Juniata street, near Gustine avenue. The men were not caught.

Man on Way to Bank Robbed of $70, Then Knocked Down.

Walter Stroh of 2846 Neosho street, bookkeeper at the Gewinner Sausage Co., 1429 South Broadway, was on his way at 7 o'clok last night to deposit $70 in cash and $150 in checks in the Lafayette South Side Bank, when he was held up at Broadway and Marion street by two men in a Ford automobile who pointed pistols at him and snatched a bank book containing the money and checks from his hand. One of the robbers then knocked him down with a pistol, causing a severe scalp laceration.

5 POLICEMEN KILLED IN LAST TWO YEARS FIGHTING ROBBERS

In the last two years, during which bank robberies, bank messenger robberies and payroll robberies have been frequently committed in St. Louis by armed gangs, using automobiles to escape, more than $90,000 has been taken from banks, $54,685 from bank messengers and about $24,000 in payroll holdups.

Five policemen have lost their lives battling with these robbers and several others have been wounded. Two robbers have been killed by policemen.

The first and most successful of the bank robberies was that of the Baden Bank, from which $69,000 was taken by eight men, who escaped in an automobile. The smallest amount obtained was $2500 from the Pine Lawn Bank.

The Meramec Trust Co. and Taylor-Easton Trust Co. robberies were unsuccessful, although they cost the lives of three policemen and one robber. The $20,000 taken from the Meramec and the $15,309 from the Taylor-Easton were recovered.

Seven Messengers Robber.

Between April, 1921, and Jan. 20, 1922, seven bank messengers were robbed on the streets or in street cars.

Between Dec. 24, 1920, and April 16, 1922, there were nine successful payroll robberies and a number were frustrated.

Erris Pillow, negro, one of the bank messengers who was robbed, was afterward murdered to prevent him from testifying against the robbers.

On June 12, 1919, Patrolman Thomas Ward was shot and killed and Sergeant (later Lieutenant) William Smith was wounded, dying later, in a battle with men who had robbed the Meramec Trust Co. of $20,000. Sergt. Smith was fired on from the basement of 4625 Minnesota avenue, where some of the robbers had taken refuge, and Ward was killed when he entered the basement to try to capture them. Earl Hunter and Charles C. Bergmann were sentenced to life imprisonment and Alvin West to 45 years. The money was recovered.

Cornered in Theater.

On April 5, 1920, Frederick Charles Smith, robbed the Easton-Taylor Trust Co., 4474 Easton avenue, of $15,309. Cornered in the Easton-Taylor Theater, next door, he shot and killed Patrolman Terence McFarland and wounded Sergts. William Henry and Michael Flavin and Patrolman Claude Adams, who recovered. The robber was wounded and died later. The money was recovered.

On Jan. 21, 1920, when seven men tried to rob the Water Tower bank at Twenty-first street and East Grand avenue, Probationary Patrolman Harry J. Shea killed Walter Fisher, one of the robbers. The rest fled, dropping the money. Shea was wounded.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

LITTLE ROCK, Ark., April 22.—Final details of the recent receiver's sale of the Missouri & North Arkansas Railroad will be closed at St. Louis Monday, when a deed to the road will be turned over to the newly formed company, which in turn will turn over the $3,000,000 purchase price to holders of the receiver's certificates.

At the same time, the $3,500,000 loan granted by the Interstate Commerce Commission will become available for the new company, known as the Missouri & North Arkansas Railway Co. A warrant for the loan was issued by the Treasury Department at Washington today, and a telegram was sent to the St. Louis Union Trust Co. of St. Louis announcing that the money was on deposit. The action stopped interest on the old road's outstanding debts.

KENNEDY MURDER INQUIRY LEADS TO DISCOVERY OF AUTO

Two Men, Who Went to Garage to Put License Plate on Machine, Are Arrested by Police.

Further investigation of the killing last Monday of Luke E. Kennedy, gangster, by men in an automobile, who fired 26 bullets into his body, led to the discovery yesterday of a Hupmobile chummy roadster in a garage at 4208 Natural Bridge avenue. Two men who had gone to the garage to place a 1922 license plate on the car were arrested.

The men are Ollie Vienup, 6601 Hamburger avenue, brother of Mrs. Edith Gersbach of 4237 Sacramento avenue, who was riding with Kennedy when he was killed, and who is held as an accessory before the fact in the case, and James Tunure, 25, who was arrested as a suspect in Mrs. Gersbach's home after the killing.

Vienup said the automobile belonged to Edward Hogan, 3635 Cass avenue, and that Hogan had given him the license plate to put on. He said Kennedy used the car three weeks ago, having borrowed it from Hogan, and that he, Vienup, tuned up the motor and repainted it for Hogan.

FARRAR GETS GREAT FAREWELL OVATION

Last Appearance With Metropolitan Opera Co. Marked by Emotional Upheaval.

By Leased Wire From the New York Bureau of the Post-Dispatch.

NEW YORK, April 22.—Geraldine Farrar's last appearance with the Metropolitan Opera Co. was her greatest emotional performance.

It ended late this afternoon with her being carried out of the opera house on the shoulders of her admirers, through a crowd of 5000 frantic persons who pushed the police aside and closed about her automobile, shouting and throwing flowers.

Then the automobile, surrounded by the crowd, moved slowly out of Fortieth street and up Broadway with Farar, still in her opera costume, leaning weakly upon her father and waving her hand.

And all the while, the police on the running boards and kneeling on the back seats of the automobile, begged the crowd to "act reasonable." Traffic was choked by the surging mass, until, at Forty-fourth street, an opening was made and the car shot away to Farrar's home.

The excitement began in the lobby even before the performance. Every seat and every square foot of standing room had been sold but 1500 more wanted to get in. There were 4000 inside and florist wagons were driving up to the Fortieth street entrance and unloading.

Excited girls, who carried their own bouquets, proclaimed to all the world that it would be "the greatest demonstration at the Metropolitan Opera House."

The opera seemed merely to serve as a background for Farrar. In the title role of "Zaza," a hopeless infatuation makes her the object of compassionate singing as a part of the opera, and that aroused the sympathies of the audience this afternoon even more. At the end, when the tumultuous, sombre music stopped, the 4000 persons in the opera house were in an emotional upheaval.

The floor of the stage was covered with flowers. Farrar stepped forward and raised her hand.

Hope of 20 Years.

"Let me get my breath," she said. "Twenty years ago I prayed and hoped and slaved that some day I might obtain an achievement within these walls, and become that very improbable figure, a prophetess in one's own country. But I never dreamed it would be anything like this."

"You deserved it," a voice cried. And there was another storm of cheers.

"I don't want a tear shed for me in this house," said Farrar.

"We can't help it," cried the same tremulous voice. "I will tell you why," Farrar continued. "I am leaving this institution because I want to go, but that does not mean a farewell to you. I have very many interesting plans, which will be disclosed later."

"Oh—h-h-h!" came a chorus of ecstatic yells from the "Gerry Flappers."

"And I might mention, just to whet your curiosity," said Farrar, "that out there among you now is a gentleman named David Belasco, who did me the honor to assist in preparing the first 'Zaza' and who has now done me the honor to waive the last 'Zaza' a farewell. He is a very tempting gentleman. And he has whispered things in my ear."

Thereupon the sounds emitted by the "Gerry Flappers" can be described only as ecstatic squeals.

GOMPERS PROMISES TO CORRECT UNION ABUSES

Veteran Leader Asks Lockwood Committee to Keep Hands Off Building Trades.

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, April 22.—Samuel Gompers, president of the American Federation of Labor, today appealed to the Lockwood investigating committee to keep hands off organized labor and let unions of the building trades industry put their own house in order.

When Samuel Untermyer, counsel for the committee, asked Gompers what he would say if he knew the committee contemplated recommending to the Legislature that laws be enacted to "halt the abuse of power by labor unions, by holding union members responsible as individuals for loss sustained to contractors through these abuses," the veteran leader half rose from his seat and replied:

"I should not only object; I should protest such action."

Asked what alternative there might be, he said, "Patience, while organized labor exerts itself to correct these abuses within the organization."

He offered to "do all in his power" to bring unions of the building trades industry to cease practices which he confessed were "unfair, and not in keeping with the principles of organized labor."

Gompers declared, however, that relief must come from within the American Federation of Labor, not from new laws, asserting "You can't bring the American workman into a legal straightjacket."

At the close of today's session the committee adjourned until May 3, when Gompers will be asked to resume his testimony.

The labor leader sat for three hours today and listened to a long recital of acts which, according to testimony, has obstructed building.

Untermyer sought to compare trade organizations of employers with labor unions, saying, "You believe one should be regulated; but the other should not," to which Gompers replied:

"I believe business men have a natural right to organize for mutual benefit; but I am in favor of their regulation when, as price-fixing combinations, they work to the detriment of the public."

Unions should hold their contracts sacred, he said, and should discipline members who violated them. But, he asserted, it would be wrong for a contractor to break an agreement, while a union man was justified in violating his side of the pact, if another contractor bid for his services at a higher figure.

NEGRO SUES DOCTOR AND WIFE

Asks $10,000 Damages for False Arrest in Connection With Theft.

Dr. Isaac D. Kelley and wife of 35 Portland place are defendants in a suit filed by James Crow, a negro chauffeur, who asks for $10,000 damages on an allegation of false arrest. Mrs. Kelley is a daughter of Mrs. William C. McBride of 29 Washington terrace.

Crow charges that Dr. and Mrs. Kelley caused him to be arrested Nov. 15 last, and that he was held over night by the police. According to his lawyer, the arrest was connected with an inquiry into the disappearance of a chinchilla coat. Another negro, Charles M. Byrd, a former butler in the Kelley home, recently filed suit against Dr. Kelley for $15,000 damages, also alleging false arrest.

SUMMER TRAFFIC MUST AVOID FOUR OF COUNTY ROADS

Reconstruction Work Will Close Manchester, Gravois, Lemay Ferry and Olive Street Routes Till Fall.

ALL OTHER RADIAL HIGHWAYS ARE OPEN

Program of Rebuilding Covers 36 Miles and Will Cost About $1,528,000, Manchester Alone Costing $600,000.

Four of the main highways in St. Louis County will not be open to traffic this summer, as reconstruction now in progress will not be completed before fall. They are the Manchester, Gravois, Lemay Ferry and Olive street roads.

The estimated distance to be covered in this program, on which approximately $1,528,000 will be spent, is 36 miles. On the nine other radial roads no construction work will be done this summer and they will be open to traffic, as will all the cross roads.

It is estimated that the Manchester road project will cost about $600,000, of which amount about $275,000 will be obtained from the Federal and State aid funds. There are five bridges to be built on this highway. Starting at the Rock Hill Station on the Missouri Pacific railroad there will be a concrete granite surface 20 feet wide laid as far out as the Denny road, a distance of three miles. From the Denny road west a concrete surface 18 feet wide is planned. This will extend to the Ethearton road, a distance of 13 miles, except for a distance of 2500 feet near the Barrett Station road, where conditions necessitate the use of hill-side brick.

Six Miles of Concrete.

Six miles of concrete surface is to be made on the Gravois road, starting at the Weber road, the point at which the present concrete section of the road ends, and extending to a point one mile southwest of the Kennerly road. The road will be 20 feet wide. There is one bridge and several culverts to be considered in this work. The estimated cost of this work is $199,000, about half of which will be obtained from the Federal fund.

The Lemay Ferry road project will cost approximately $244,000 of which amount $122,000 will be obtained from the Federal fund. One main bridge and a number of small culverts are to be made on this highway. The first three miles, from the Telegraph road to the Sappington road, will have a concrete surface 20 feet wide, and the remaining four miles will be of the same construction with a width of 18 feet.

Rebuilding Olive Street Road.

Reconstruction of the Olive Street road from a point a few feet west of the Wabash Railroad tracks to the Creve Coeur Creek has been started. The first 3500 feet of the roadway will have a macadam foundation with a heavy granite surface, 40 feet in width between the curbs. Beginning at Ferguson avenue and on west to the Hanley road the highway will have a concrete surface 21 feet wide. The entire road to this point will be reinforced with welded mesh, 56 pounds to the 100 square feet. From the Hanley road to the Denny road, a distance of four miles, the highway will be 24 feet wide. There will be two strips of concrete surface, each 9 feet wide, separated by six feet of natural rock asphalt. Starting at the Denny road and continuing to the Creve Coeur Creek, four and three-quarter miles, the highway will have a width of 22 feet and will be constructed of penetration bituminous macadam. It is estimated that this work will cost in excess of $320,000. University City will pay $31,500 on this project.

The radial highways open for traffic this summer are the Clayton, St. Charles, Big Bend, Florissant, Halls Ferry, Bellefontaine, Riverview drive, Telegraph and Natural Bridge.

The Antire road, between Eureka and Valley Park is being reconstructed with gravel. The cost of this project is not known, as bids have not been let, except for some grading. Dug Hill, three miles east of Eureka, is to be graded down.

Routes Suggested for Use.

Routes suggested by county engineers to be used in reaching resorts on the Meramec River and Creve Coeur Lake while the Manchester, Olive street and Gravois roads are being constructed are as follows:

Castlewood—West on the Clayton road to the Clarkson road, then south to Ellisville, and the remainder of the distance on the Keefer Creek road.

Fern Glen—Clayton road to Henry avenue, south on Henry avenue to the Sulphur Springs road, and then to the river.

Fenton—South on the Big Bend road to the Watson road and southwest on it to the river.

Meramec Highlands can be reached by the usual route over the Big Bend road.

Creve Coeur Lake—St. Charles road to the Fee Fee road, south on it to the Craig road, which leads to the lake.

County engineers say that most of the cross roads and radial roads that will be open this summer are in fairly good condition, sufficient, at least, for automobile traffic.

Ferguson is constructing 5700 feet of pavement on the Florissant road within the city limits, at a cost of $65,000.

MAN, 75, AND WOMAN, 80, WHO MET LAST SUNDAY, TO WED TODAY

Visitor From Stewardson, Ill., to Marry Neighbor of Relative He Came to See.

Robert Butcher, 75 years old, came, saw and captured. He came from Stewardson, Ill., last Saturday, he saw Mrs. Bertha Beal, 80, last Sunday, and he captured her heart immediately thereafter. They are to be married today in the presence of her grandchildren, and will depart at once for Butcher's home in Stewardson.

Butcher came over to visit his stepson's widow, Mrs. Carrie Eissler, 3229 St. Vincent avenue. Mrs. Beal, who lived at 3223 St. Vincent, two doors away, dropped in Sunday for a neighborly call on Mrs. Eissler. Butcher confided that he was a widower for the second time, and liked it as little as he had the first time. Furthermore, Mrs. Beal reminded him of his first wife. She admitted, for her own part, that widowhood had its disadvantages, and how active Mr. Butcher was for his age! He said the same to her, and many of them.

The next thing that Mrs. Eissler knew, her stepfather was returning the call of Mrs. Beal, and before another 48 hours had passed it became plan to her, as well as to William Erwin, Mrs. Beal's son, that it was a case of love at first sight between their elders. The latter did not delay the announcement.

The bride-to-be has two grandchildren, and the bridegroom has one. Butcher served under Gen. Sherman in the Civil War, and was wounded in an engagement at Rassaca, Ga., during the famous march.

'FRIENDLY' AND 'FERVENT' KISSES DISCUSSED IN DIVORCE COURT

Subject Brought By Testimony of Witness in Suit of Mrs. R. D. Sangster Against Husband.

Hearing in the divorce proceedings of Mrs. Nell H. Sangster, 5159 Raymond avenue, against Robert D. Sangster, Industrial Commissioner of the Chamber of Commerce, in the Court of Domestic Relations yesterday was enlivened by a discussion as to when is a kiss "just friendly" instead of fervent.

I. N. Ellidge, 3533 Texas avenue, former manager of the Ranelagh Apartments, 5707 McPherson avenue, testifying for Sangster, stated that he hd seen Mrs. Sangster kissed by L. W. Munkenbeck, a resident of the Ranelagh, in an elevator at the apartment in the fall of last year. On cross-examination by W. Blodgett Priest, attorney for Mrs. Sangster, Ellidge stated that, in his opinion, the kiss he had witnessed was more of a friendly salutation than a fervent expression of affection. The witness further testified that Munkenbeck had called Mrs. Sangster "mother" and "sweetheart."

Mrs. Emma Clingon, 4055 Labadie avenue, former owner of a restaurant in the Sterling Apartments, 5316 Pershing avenue, testified that Mrs. Sangster and Munkenbeck had frequently had lunch in her place and that Munkenbeck once told her that he and Mrs. Sangster were engaged and were to be married.

Mrs. Sangster had testified that her husband frequently had assaulted her with such force as to bruise her face and body, blacken her eyes and break her teeth. Her mother, Mrs. Lou Anna Hill of Eldorado, Ark., told on the stand of having seen Sangster whip his wife with a switch. Dr. Walter B. Yost, 1119 Union avenue, told of having treated Mrs. Sangster in October of last year for contusions of the face and side following an alleged beating by her husband. Edgar H. Keys, a dentist, stated that he had repaired a dental plate for Mrs. Sangster which she told him had been broken by her husband striking her in the mouth.

800 AD CLUB MEMBERS SIGN TELEGRAM TO HARDING

Message Urges President to Attend Convention of Ad Clubs of World at Milwaukee in June.

Seven hundred and eighty members of the Advertising Club of St. Louis signed a night letter that was telegraphed to President Harding last night urging him to attend the annual convention of the Advertising Clubs of the World at Milwaukee, June 11 to 15.

The telegram says that periods of depression and prosperity are largely due to mental causes, and that the one organization best qualified to correct this condition is the Advertising Clubs of the World. The President is urged to address the convention in person and "strike when and where the iron is hottest."

It was said at the Western Union that this was the largest number of names ever signed to a telegram out of the St. Louis office.

SLAYER OF BANKER GIVEN 15 YEARS AT SECOND TRIAL

Illinoisan Previously Had Been Sentenced to Life Term, but Supreme Court Granted New Hearing.

By the Associated Press.

GALENA, Ill., April 22.—Frank Willy, 57, who killed E. A. Fitch, a Galena banker, in June, 1919, today was found guilty for the second time and sentenced to 15 years in the penitentiary. He took the verdict calmly, saying, "It's a long time for an old man like me."

In September, 1919, after two weeks' trial, Willy was found guilty and sentenced to life imprisonment, but the Supreme Court granted a new trial.

According to testimony, the shooting followed a dispute over the alleyway door in a double house occupied by Fitch and Willy.

HYDE IN ANXIOUS EFFORT TO ATTAIN PARTY HARMONY

Peril to Administration's Standing if Pet Measures Fail at Referendum in November Bestirs Governor.

IS CONCERNED ALSO OVER LEGISLATURE

Executive Holding Dinner Parties at Jefferson City in Hope of Harmonizing "Old Guard" and His Friends.

By a Staff Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

JEFFERSON CITY, April 22.—The necessity of going to the people within a few months to defend the first stretch of his administration has driven Gov. Hyde to attempt to harmonize factions of the Republican State regime in the hope of obtaining partisan campaign efficiency at least.

The general by-election at which Democrats will make a determined effort to vote out some of the consequences of their crushing elimination from control of the State Government in November, 1920, will occur Nov. 7 next. At that time control of both houses of the Legislature, three seats upon the State Supreme bench, one United States Senator, 16 Congressmen and numerous local offices will be contested for. But of equal importance from the Governor's standpoint, the county unit school law and the consolidation measures which formed the backbone of his first administration legislative program, as well as Congressman and judicial redistricting bills and other measures suspended by referendum, will be passed upon at that time.

Two Republican Camps.

But this is not the first fight which will confront the Governor and his friends. For the Republican party in Missouri, as in many other states, has within it two pronounced camps, the "old guard," centering around National Committeeman Jacob L. Babler, Walter S. Dickey, E. E. E. McJimsey and their friends, and another which nominated Hyde for Governor and which contains many of the followers of former Gov. Hadley and Theodore Roosevelt.

The "old guard" never has been friendly to Hyde. This fundamental opposition and other discontent which has grown up within the party because various policies of the State administration has caused the Governor's advisers some foreboding lest men unfriendly to Gov. Hyde obtain a majority of the Republican nominations to seats in the two houses of the Legislature. So the Governor's friends will have to go into the Republican primary to try to name administration candidates for all of the legislative places to be filled.

Fighting for Its Life.

The real struggle will come with the Indian summer days preceding the November election, however; for after less than two years of control the State administration will be fighting virtually for its life in its effort to prevent Democrats from obtaining control of the Legislature. Even with both houses of the last Legislature safely Republican, only the iron hand of Lieutenant-Governor Hiram Lloyd with his Senate caucus of Republicans held the line for Hyde on repeated occasions.

An unfriendly Legislature literally could wreck the last two years of the administration. Democrats have been replaced by Republicans in nearly all branches of the executive department with painstaking completeness, until only the beverage inspection department and the bureau of labor statistics remain Democratic. Some of the ousted Democrats have been separated from their jobs somewhat ruthlessly. All of which has combined to produce a rancor in Democratic partisan ranks that might lead a Democratic Legislature to extremes.

Mental Picture Not Pleasant.

In such a contingency, departments, boards and commissions could be abolished and recreated in such fashion that Republican incumbents would be legislated out of office and Hyde would have to bargain with the legislators over new appointments. Appropriations could be held up and numerous other devices known to the scheming legislator employed to the Governor's discomfiture. This is the mental picture now in the minds of his friends.

Hyde's hope of carrying the county unit bill and any of his consolidation bills also is almost forlorn. A relatively small percentage of measures which have been submitted under the initiative and referendum, have been adopted by the people, and Hyde and his friends realize that they have only an outside chance of obtaining a favorable vote on any of these proposals. A vast amount of educational work of a most expensive sort has been found necessary to make a majority of the voters understand, much less support, any given measure.

In the face of this situation, with considerable discontent in rural Missouri over taxes and in other sections about other matters, Republican state leaders are not even united among themselves.

Harmony Long a Stranger.

Less than two months had elapsed after Hyde's inauguration before guerrilla warfare was on among Republican state officers over features of Hyde's legislative program. After that had been patched up, one disagreement followed another with regularity until Harmony in the Capitol had become a stranger.

Two weeks ago, however, Hyde determined to break the ice as the titular head of the state administration. So he gave a dinner at a local hotel to which representatives of all of his appointees and of the other elective state officers were invited. All responded except State Auditor Hackmann, who declined to attend or to have anything to do with a movement led by Hyde.

Some of those who did go went with misgiving, fearing that desire for factional advantage may have had a part in inception of the plan, but afterward Hyde defined the result of the gathering as "sweet harhony and a flow of soul." This week another dinner party was held and it is understood that the weekly assembly is to be a regular occurrence. Only male members and employes of the administration attend, and speeches usually are made by the elective state officers.

Outside of this gathering and a brief flurry over the prospect that Gen. Pershing might abandon his military post to return to Missouri and seek the Republican nomination for United States Senator, the Republican horizon was bare of development this week. That flurry was dispelled when Pershing was quoted as having declared that he is "not in politics." No change has been noted here in the watchful attitude of the Republican senatorial aspirants who appear to be waiting each other out.

SISLER'S RADIO TALK IS DELIGHT TO MANY

Baseball Man's Talk on Game Brings Congratulations—Two Other Speakers.

The wide interest in the St. Louis baseball teams this year was illustrated last night, when George Sisler, first baseman of the St. Louis Browns, talked to the district surrounding St. Louis from Radio Station K S D of the Post-Dispatch. There were two other speakers, both talking on important subjects, and there was a program of operatic music of exceptional interest, but none of the other numbers on the evening's program elicited as many comments from those listening in on the concert as did Sisler's talk. All through the evening telephone calls came in to say that Sisler's talk had been heard perfectly, and requests were received to congratulate the player.

Sisler's subject was the uncertainties of baseball, and he discussed the many things that go to make up a successful pennant-winning ball club. He told his hearers that the Browns were determined to come out in first place in the American League this season.

Radio Dance Tuesday.

In the two other talks of the evening the question of the National Guard and the work St. Louis is doing in the fight against tuberculosis were considered. Col. C. S. Thornton, commanding officer of the First Missouri Infantry, described the place of the National Guard in America's military program by characterizing the guard as the nation's first line of defense, that part of the army which is always ready, but which costs the nation the least to maintain and train.

Col. Thornton announced in closing that a radio section has been added to the First Infantry, and that an official test of the apparatus and its personnel would be made Monday night at the armory, Grand and Market street, to be followed by a radio dance on Tuesday. This, he said, is the first radio dance on record for the National Guard of Missouri. Lieut. L. A. Benson, instructor in radio at Camp Pike during the war, will be in command of the new section.

Talk on Tuberculosis.

Dr. Joseph F. Bredeck, assistant hospital commissioner of St. Louis, and the city's first tuberculosis controller, was the last speaker. Dr. Bredeck told that tuberculosis was the oldest disease known to science. Unmistakable signs of it have been found in the Egyptian mummies, he said, and diagnoses of it are on record as early as the time of Hippocratus, who lived about 400 B. C.

Dr. Bredeck told of the strides investigation into the cause and treatment of this disease has made since Dr. Robert Koch discovered the germ of tuberculosis in 1882. He stated that no other disease claimed so many victims, but he also declared that tuberculosis was not only preventable, but that it was curable also, if taken in time. Up to this time, he said, no genuine cure of tuberculosis has been found, other than good food, fresh air and sunshine and rest.

Program of Music.

The evening's music program was given by Edward J. Troy, tenor; Urban C. Dames, baritone, and Mrs. Edward Achard, soprano. It was of exceptional excellence.

The American army of the future and history in the making will be discussed in the program of Monday night. The speakers will be, respectively, Col. John N. Stratt, commanding the 102d Division, U. S. Reserve Corps, who will talk of organized reserves and training camps of the United States army, and Percival Chubb, leader of the Ethical Society of St. Louis, whose topic will be: "The New Romance of History." Chubb will make a comparison of Wells' "Outline of History" and Van Loon's "History of Mankind."

Musically, Monday evening's program will be specially devoted to St. Louis' celebration of music week, which opens today. The principal soloists will be Stuart C. Mahanay, violinist; Max Gold, pianist, and Raymond Koch, basso. Ethan Allen Taussig will make a short talk on the meaning and purpose of music week.

PROGRESS OF DIGGING AT CAHOKIA MOUNDS

Four More Altar-Like Basins, and Circular Trench Uncovered by Archaeologist Moorehead.

The digging of Warren King Moorehead archeologist of Philips Academy, Andover, Mass., who is exploring the earthworks of St. Clair and Madison counties, Illinois, for the University of Illinois, continues to disclose conditions and objects of great interest to him in his study of the life and habits of the prehistoric Mound Builders.

The mound in which on Thursday an altar-like, burned basin surrounded by a nine-foot circle of 35 holes resembling holes in which tepee supports may have been placed, yesterday disclosed four other such basins. As did the first basin, the four each contained ashes, the character of which will not be clear until they are chemically analyzed.

In addition to the four basins, a trench about five inches wide, in the form of as perfect a circle as moderns can draw, was found. The circle has a diameter of 13 feet. It surrounds the first altar, which is near its center and encloses about seven-eighths of the circle of tepee post holes. The sides of the trench are hard, baked clay of light color. The trench itself was filled with soft earth, so black as to make its outline clear and distinct. This black earth was removed, disclosing that the trench had a depth of about six inches.

Basins Two Feet Apart.

The second of the burned basins is about two feet from the first and within both the trench and posthole circles. It is approximately the same size as the first, 18 inches in diameter, but in the digging its contour was damaged.

The third basin is 16 feet to the south of the first and at a slightly higher level. It is circular, with a diameter of 15 inches. It has a depth of several inches and is filled with ashes.

The fourth and fifth basins are side by side, 10 feet to the north of the first, which is in the exact center of the mound at its base, 23 feet 6 inches below the surface. These also are circular except that each has a lip-like protuberance several inches long and from two to four inches wide. Adjacent to these basins is a very hard baked surface, the extent of which has not yet been determined.

In addition to these basins, the beginning of another platform covered with masses of charred bark or fibrous wood was encountered and will be explored to its limits, beginning tomorrow.

Finds Believed Valuable.

Prof. Moorehead is unwilling at this time to give any opinion as to the significance of the basins, the trench or the tepee holes, saying that a full exploration of the mound will be required to definitely determine the use to which it was put. However, he feels that the finds are valuable and ultimately may be interpreted quite logically. The diggers have cut a swath 30 feet wide and about 160 feet long through the mound to a depth at the center of 23 feet.

Another interesting find yesterday was a number of globules about the size of a black walnut. Each had a clay shell about an eighth of an inch thick, the center being filled with a substance resembling red ochre. These were dug up in the absence of Prof. Moorehead and he did not see them. He said, however, that they likely were similar to globules found in Ohio mounds, which were two half spheres of clay baked to hardness, hollowed out, filled with paint and cemented together—sort of prehistoric vanity boxes, as Mrs. Moorehead, who is here with her husband, suggested.

The altars are so fragile that the coming and going of numbers of people would imperil them, and for this reason Prof. Moorehead is discouraging visits of the merely curious. However, he said, he would welcome anyone who has a scientific interest in archeology in general or the mounds in particular.

WOMAN IS UNDER BOND AFTER DEATH OF MAN

Mrs. Marie Lewis Held as Accessory to Killing of Simon Wallace in Her Home.

At the end of an inquest into the death of Simon J. Wallace, of 1424A North Seventh Street, who was found shot to death Thursday morning in the home of Mrs. Marie Lewis, 4604 Olive street, Mrs. Lewis, the chief witness, was held as an accessory to the killing, under $5000 bond, which was deposited.

Her decision yesterday to testify at the inquest came after she had spent a day and night in jail, following her refusal to testify when the inquest began Friday. However, her evidence gave little light on the case.

She said she and Gregory Lewis, her husband, had been estranged, but were reconciled Wednesday night, and that he left the house about 12:30 a. m. She was awakened at 4:30 a. m. by three strangers in her room, who made her dress and leave the house, she said. Departing, she heard a shot, and saw an automobile drive away from the house.

A negro maid and her husband said they heard no shots, and knew nothing of the incident until Wallace's body was found.

The police have learned that Wallace was actively connected with a suburban garden gambling resort in St. Louis county, and have been working on the theory that the killing was an outgrowth of that connection.

Eight Homicides in Week.

There were 241 births and 119 deaths recorded in St. Louis last week. Twenty-seven persons died of heart disease, 26 of penumonia, 21 of Bright's disease, 19 of cancer and a like number of diseases of the circulatory system, nine of tuberculosis and two of diphtheria. There were eight homicides, six accidental deaths and four suicides. One death resulted from criminal carelessness.

Negro Child Dies of Burns.

Leon Davis, 8-months-old son of Clay Davis, negro, 2818 Clark avenue, died yesterday at city hospital No. 2 of burns suffered about an hour earlier when the bed on which he had been placed caught fire from matches, with which his sister, Leona, 2, was playing. The latter is in a serious condition from burns about the body.

Rickey's Men Perform in Class D Style Behind Pitching of Jess Haines and Bill Bailey.

SENTELLE'S DECISION CAUSES NEAR RIOT

Clemons Banished From Game, While Four Bench Warmers Also Are Given a Vacation.

By J. Roy Stockton,
Of the Post-Dispatch Sport Staff.

PITTSBURG, Pa., April 22.—Ragged fielding, which invariably accompanies weak pitching, sometimes as a cause, sometimes as an effect, marked the terrible beating administered to the Cardinals by the Pirates in the final game of the series here today. The score of 14 to 2 about reflects the impression made on the 15,000 fans by the two clubs. The one was hard hitting and brilliant in the field and the other was uncertain on ground balls, erratic at throwing and impotent before the curving shoots of young Johnny Morrison, the brilliant Pirate flinger.

Jess Haines started on the hill for the Cardinals and stayed there for four innings, in which the Pirates slammed him for nine hits and nine runs. Southpaw Bill Bailey replaced Haines and the enemy collected seven more hits and five more runs during the remaining four innings in which they batted.

Morrison, on the other hand, gave only eight hits, kept them well scattered and was given brilliant support.

Cards Play Class D Ball.

On the very first Pirate batter, the Cardinal infield turned an easy out into a hit and from then on their work was not worthy of a class D league inner line of defense. Jack Smith, Heine Mueller and McHenry also gummed up a play each and altogether, the Knot Holers made it hard for the spectators to believe that this same aggregation of ball kickers has a splendid chance to cop the National League flag.

So one-sided was the affair that it beggars an interesting description, unless St. Louisans will be interested to hear a recital of impotence, awkwardness and apparent stupidity. There was only one inning in which the Pirates failed to score and in that frame they had a man on first and one on third when Smith captured a long fly from Carey.

Enraged by the unkind fates and angered by apparent favoritism shown by Umpire Sentelle, the Cardinals nearly started a riot in the fourth inning, and they even lost that argument.

Carey got in the way of one of Haines' fast ones and Sentelle sent him to first, deciding that he had been hit. Stock called for the ball, tagged a runner and threw to first and claimed a double play, alleging first the ball had hit Carey's bat. Clemons supported this contention and the Cardinals surged to the infield and surrounded the umpire, shaking their fists in his face with shout as good results as they had when waving their bats at Morrison's delivery.

Clemons Banished by Umpire.

Clemons, Fournier and Stock were especially abusive, throwing their gloves high into the air to show their disgust. Sentelle picked Clemons as the leader of the belligerents and banished him from the game. Of course, his decision held good, the only result of the argument being that Doak, Barfoot, Mann and Schultz, who aided and abetted Clemons in his abuse, were sent with him to the showers.

An account of the Cardinal boots probably will be the best way of explaining the lop-sided defeat. In the first inning, Hornsby took Maranville's grounder rather lazily and his throw to first was a bit wide. It appeared to pull Fournier off the bag but the kind Pittsburg scorer called it a hit for the Rabbit. One batter, one error, though not charged as such. Carey, the second batter, singled to center and went to second when Heine Mueller fumbled and kicked the ball around. Two batters and two errors. Bigbee's sinbusters promptly scored Maranville and Carey.

Toporcer was the next offender. In the second inning, with two down and a man on third he raced into the outfield and dropped a fly ball which was so high that McHenry could have caught it with ease. That let in a run and the batter reached second.

In the fourth McHenry fumbled a ground single and Haines uncorked a wild pitch which enabled a Pirate to score from second.

Fifth an Errorless Inning.

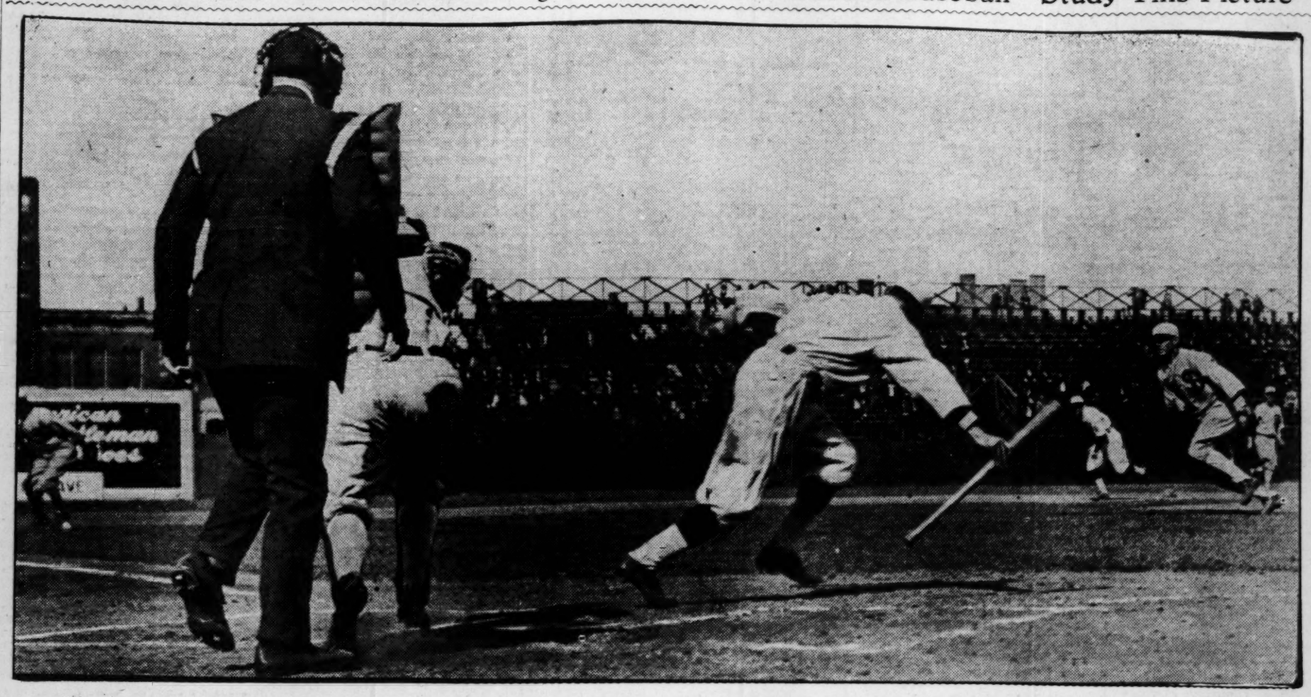
The fifth was an errorless inning, the only one in which the Pirates failed to score. In the sixth, Mueller limped and failed to catch Bigbee's short fly which, of course, was ruled a hit. Traynor hit a clean single to right in the same frame. Smith had no chance to catch the drive, but raced in and attempted to trap it. It sped past him and was good for three bases.

In the eighth there was more weird work. After one was out, Bailey walked two men, a wild pitch putting Tierney, the first walker, on third. Tierney and Traynor on first started a double steal. Tierney scored on Ainsmith's throw to Toporcer and Traynor continued to third and was given two stolen bases on the play when Ainsmith, leaping for Toporcer's return, was put out of throwing position. A moment later Ainsmith trying to pick a man off first, threw poorly and the runners advanced.

If you can beat that for a rapid succession of ungainly plays, throws and much etcetera, you are a wonder.

Today the Cardinals open a four-game series in Cincinnati and perhaps the change of scenery will make a difference. They certainly can't do any worse than they have in Pirate-town.

Who Said There Was No Such Thing as Concerted Defense in Baseball—Study This Picture



This play was snapped by Clint Murphy, Post-Dispatch Photographer, as Ellerbe attempted a bunt in the second game against the Sox. The pitcher, the catcher and the third baseman are all seen making a desperate and simultaneous effort to get the ball, which may be noted rolling toward the foul line, in the distance. On the baseline, Johnny Tobin is hiking for third.

WILLIAMS MAKES THREE HOME RUNS WITH SISLER ON

By Joseph F. Holland,
Of the Post-Dispatch Sport Staff.

"Babe" Ruth, baseball's exiled home run king, will probably tear his morning newspaper to shreds in faraway New York today when he reads an account of how Kenneth Williams, Brown slugger, shattered an American League record yesterday at Sportsmans' Park when he drove out three home runs in four times at bat and helped "Dixie" Davis take the third game of the series from the Chicago White Sox, 10-7. "Babe" Ruth's best effort was two homers in one game.

Two White Sox pitchers, Don Jose Acosta and J. Lum Davenport, were the victims of Kenny's club wielding, and it so happened that Sisler was on base each time. Acosta was humiliated twice.

For distance, it is doubtful if Williams' initial drive in the opening inning has ever been excelled. The ball swung skyward on a long arch from the plate and dropped for beyond the bleacher wall out on Grand avenue. The other two were just over the fence and fell into the bleachers as priceless souvenirs.

While Williams achieved a baseball height yesterday that should stand the test of years, he also contributed an attack that virtually forced he wild and unsteady "Dixie" Davis into a victory over the Sox.

Williams began his wrecking work in the first inning, after Sisler had driven Tobin over with the first run of the game. Kenny caught Acosta's third pitch and lifted it out of sight to give the Browns a three-run lead. It endured until the sixth when Hooper dropped one in the right-field seats with two on, tieing the score.

The wallop did little more than set the stage and prepare the laurel wreath. Sisler singled to open and Williams put the full power of his shoulders into his swing. The ball whisked on a line into the bleachers and Sisler scored ahead of Williams with a lead that was never relinquished. Severeid's single and doubles by Gerber and McManus followed in quick succession to increase the St. Louis lead to a 7—4 count.

George Sisler opened the avenue for Williams' record-breaker in the seventh, when he singled with two out. George stole second and went to third to wait until Ken paled the great Ruth's record with a third mighty drive to the bleachers in right center.

An odd feature of the achievement was that until yesterday Williams had failed to get a home-run drive. On Friday he had put two over the pavilion roof foul by a yard. But yesterday his drives were perfectly timed and he showed no more nervousness before his third success than his characteristics nonchalance of opening inning. Today he leads both leagues in home runs.

Williams' perfect driving was of such a sensational nature that it completely diverted attention from the wildness of "Dixie" Davis who gave 10 bases on balls before he was relieved by Shocker in the ninth with two out and the bases filled. Shocker, relieved "Dixie" with the sacks loaded and two balls on Hooper. Then Urban forced over another run by passing Mostil for the eleventh Chicago base on balls. Falk terminated the passing review when he forced Mostil at second with a bounder to Gerber.

The ninth opened with all the earmarks of the disastrous tenth of Friday when Chicago made six runs. Before it was over six Chicagoans drew passes and a seventh hit safe for a total of four runs.

Davis opened it by passing Falk, Sheely and Schalk. Yaryan batted for Davenport and gave himself the worst recommendation in the world by allowing the faltering "Dixie" to strike him out. Johnson followed with a single that scored Falk and Sheely. McClennan popped to Ellerbe for the second out, but then Davis again filled the bases by passing Collins. He pitched two balls to Hooper and Fohl replaced him with Shocker. Urban completed the "passage" of Hooper and forced in Schalk. When he walked Mostil to force Johnson over with the seventh run, things looked bad, but Falk rolled to Gerber and a toss to McManus at second effaced Mostil for the final out.

"Dixie" pitched good ball, but for his wildness and did not allow a hit for four innings. He gave only four during his period of service, but his wildness kept the frequency of Lee Fohl's pulse at top speed.

DELEHANTY AND LOWE SURPASSED WILLIAMS' HOME RUN FEAT

KENNETH WILLIAMS set an American League record when he made three home runs, but that is all. In past times other players have surpassed this.

In modern times the best marks were set by Ed Delehanty and Bobby Lowe, each of whom made four homers and a single in one game.

Lowe added to his distinction by making two home runs in one inning. His feat was achieved Decoration day, 1905, in a game against Cincinnati, Chamberlain pitching. Lowe played with the Boston club.

Delehanty, in 1906, made his record July 13 against Pitcher Bill Terry. Delehanty was with Philadelphia Nationals at the time.

Other notable performances are:

April 16, 1895—Lave Cross, Philadelphia, four homers in one game.

Aug. 18, 1882—Muldoon, Cleveland, four in one game.

Other records, minor league and ancient, range as high as seven homers per game.

Thank You, Mr. Williams

Central's Heavy Hitting Defeats Soldan Team, 9-5

Batting of Olson and Fox Is Feature of Mid-City Outfit's Victory.

M'KINLEY IS WINNER

South Siders Employ Bunting Game to Down Yeatman by 9-3 Score.

Central and McKinley high schools emerged winners yesterday in the weekly Interscholastic League twin bill at High School Field. Central humbled Soldan, 9 to 5 in the opener, and McKinley battered Yeatman, 9 to 3, in the final.

Central opened a barrage against the charges of Coach Cook and piled up six runs in the first three innings. Two errors, a wild pitch and a single by Heine Olsen, together with Fischer's hit to left, gave the Red and Black three in the initial stanza. Two more came in the next frame on an error, single and a double by Olsen. A walk, wild heave and a passed ball gave Central the sixth score.

Soldan, after scoring one in the second on singles by Fisk and Johnson came back in the fourth with three more. Fisk, Stanford, Hammock and De Stabler rapped out singles in this frame.

Central added two in the sixth and another in the eighth. Soldan scored its final run off Riehl, who went to the rescue of Nudelman in the seventh.

The feature of the game was a home run drive to the score board by Catcher Fox of Central in the sixth.

McKinley Plays Bunting Game.

McKinley opened with a bunting game and by this strategy completely baffled the Yeatman infield. Eight men faced Pitcher Stremmel in the first inning and six of them bunted. Four runs were pushed over before the side was retired.

Stremmel settled down in the second frame and retired the McKinleyites via the strike-out route. He duplicated this feat in the third, two men being called out on an attempt to bunt on the last strike. Stremmel was found for two runs in the fifth and was in trouble in the sixth, when Coach Hill sent Engler to the rescue. Engler retired the South Siders after three runs had been scored.

A walk to Schnurr, infield hit by Albrecht and Yeck's triple gave Yeatman two runs in the ninth.

CONCORDIA SEMINARY STARTS SEASON WITH VICTORY OVER M. M. A.

Concordia Seminary won its opening game of the season yesterday afternoon at Brock's Field, when they defeated Missouri Military Academy of Mexico, Mo., 7 to 4. Seven hits, one base on balls and nine errors tell the tale.

Aside from the faulty fielding, the game would have resulted in a pitchers' battle. Meichsner of Concordia issued three passes, fanned seven and allowed seven hits, including a home run by Wall in the first inning; triples by Brady and Lindemeyer and doubles by Lindemeyer and Eggebrecht.

Center fielder Heine of the seminary team starred at bat for Concordia, getting a double, triple and a sacrifice hit out of four trips to the plate.

Friday Concordia meets Shurtleff College at Alton and Saturday at Brock's Field.

Pikeway Athletes Defeat Drake in Dual Track Meet

Washington University Men Score Over Bulldogs 85 to 51, Winning 12 Firsts.

Washington University's track team won its second dual meet of the season yesterday, defeating the Drake Bulldogs by a score of 85 to 51. The Pikers landed first in 12 of the 16 events on the program and took second place in 8.

The feature of the meet was the brilliant work of the versatile Thumser, who was high man of the day with a total of 17 points. "Baldy" captured first place in the broad jump and high hurdles, second place in the javelin throw and pole vault and landed third in the low hurdles, a fall near the finish depriving him of first place in the event.

Anderwert's running was largely responsible for 15 points. He captured the 100-yard dash and the 220-yard dashes, and his splendid finish in the half-mile relay brought the spectators to their feet.

JIMMY RYAN, STAR AT McKINLEY HIGH, DIES

James E. Ryan, former Municipal League and McKinley High School pitcher, who died last Sunday, was just about ready to ascend to baseball heights when his arm failed him as a member of the Mare Island team shortly after he entered the Navy in 1917.

Ryan was at the time of his enlistment the property of the Kansas City American Association team. He was a cousin of Jimmy Conzelman, former Washington University and interscholastic star.

Mlle. Lenglen Will Defend World's Net Title at Wimbledon

By the Associated Press.

MONTE CARLO, April 22.

SUZANNE LENGLEN, French tennis star, has announced her intention of defending her title as world's woman champion at Wimbledon this summer. She will probably meet Mrs. Molla Bjurstedt Mallory, provided the American champion reaches the challenge round, as Mlle. Lenglen has not yet decided whether she will play through the tournament.

Playing in the singles tournament here today, Mlle. Lenglen had a narrow escape from defeat, when she succeeded in winning from Miss Bristed only after two of the hardest sets seen during the tournament. The scores were 6—5, 6—5, Mlle. Lenglen's arrangement this year being that the player who first reaches six games wins the set.

Pikers Trounce Oklahoma Again; Title Hopes Rise

Second Victory Over Sooners Achieved With Fries Pitching, Score 3—1.

A superior defense coupled with excellent hurling enabled the fourth-place Pikers to win their fourth successive Missouri Valley Conference game in defeating the Oklahoma Sooners for the second time, score 3 to 1, at Francis Field, yesterday afternoon. The Pikers have won every start so far.

The features of the game were the brilliant defensive work of the infield and the pitching of Southpaw Fries. Linnemeyer and Edgar, at third and short, handled between them ten chances, without any sign of an error, and some of their work bordered on the sensational. Wyman covered the keystone sack in great style and the only error of the Pikers, charged against him, was due to a hurried throw in trying to make a double play.

Fries was master of the situation throughout, allowing only five singles and striking out an equal number without issuing a walk. Only three flies were knocked to the outfield. Durkee, for the Sooners, also allowed but five hits, but most of them came when needed. He also walked three batters, and a wild pitch, coming on the fourth ball, was good for two bases and resulted in a run.

Title Hopes Soar.

Piker championship hopes became much more sanguine after yesterday's victory, as Oklahoma had previously defeated Nebraska, Kansas Aggies and Missouri.

Miske Easy for Caddock in Mixed Ring-Mat Match

Former World's Champion Wrestler and Noted Boxer Put Theory to Test.

CADDOCK PICKS LEWIS

Says Jack Dempsey Would Last Half a Minute Against Wrestling Champion.

Jack Dempsey's chance of winning the much discussed combination boxing and wrestling match with "Strangler" Lewis would look good for about one minute of the first round, according to Earl Caddock, former heavyweight wrestling champion, who says he and Billy Miske of St. Paul engaged in such a bout at Mike Gibbons' gymnasium six months ago, to determine the respective chances of the boxer and the wrestler.

Caddock, in an interview with a Post-Dispatch representative yesterday, said that Miske made one powerful lead at him and the next moment Billy was on his back, a position he assumed when Caddock ducked his blow, caught his leg at the knee and pinned his shoulders instantly to the mat.

"Dempsey's only chance to win from Lewis would be to knock him out with a punch," Caddock said. "Anyone who has seen Lewis knows that Jack could never do it, and he'd have that old headlock buzzing his ears in less than a minute. A defense in boxing is natural. A man attacked will instinctively put up some kind of guard and in this case Lewis would be able to ward off at least one of Dempsey's blows.

Difficulty of Defense.

"But wrestling is entirely different. The defenses against various holds must be learned through actual experience and competition. Dempsey probably has no more idea about breaking a headlock than I have about how to pitch to "Babe" Ruth. He'd just be helpless.

"The trial I had with Miske resulted from a discussion of this proposed bout between Lewis and Dempsey, in which anything but barbed wire entanglements would be allowed. Mike Gibbons and I said that Lewis would win without wasting much time, but Miske and Tom Gibbons stood pat on Dempsey's chances. We came to the conclusion that we'd test out.

"Bill put on his gloves and we stepped over to a mat. We squared off and Bill thought he saw an opening and let me have the full power of his right hand. I was able to avoid it and when the punch passed over I dropped, caught Bill's leg at the knee and had his shoulders on the mat in an instant.

One Clinch Enough.

"The belief that Dempsey could prevent Lewis from getting him is unworthy of consideration. The worst fighter in the universe could go into a clinch with Jack Dempsey, couldn't he? Well, one clinch would be enough for Lewis and no amount of body blows from Dempsey would prevent Ed's powerful arm from tightening on Jack's head.

"That match will never be arranged, even though all the heavyweight opponents of Dempsey should die tomorrow. It's too foolish to even consider and no one who knows wrestling and boxing with any thoroughness at all will regard it as anything but a conversational pleasantry."

Caddock is highly qualified to judge the case, both from his experience with Miske and from the fact that he has wrestled Lewis five times, losing thrice. He outweighs Miske 25 pounds, but the comparison is still a fair one inasmuch as Lewis would outweigh Dempsey by nearly 40 pounds. Earl would bet his ranch and farm that Dempsey would never get to Lewis in 18 seconds as he did to Fulton. And after 18 seconds, Jack's chance would be gone, Caddock declares.

Boxers have not the stamina and staying power of wrestlers, the former champion says. This, he contends, merely adds one additional reason to the multitude which he advances for Lewis' inevitable victory in such a match.

Famous Cup Horse, Despite Handicap, Makes Gallant Struggle Against the "Bulldog of the Turf"—Lucky Hour and Other Good Three Year-Olds Show Class.

HAVRE DE GRACE, Md., April 22.—Exterminator, the cup horse that startled the turf world a week ago by beating Billy Kelly, among others, in a six-furlong sprint, suffered defeat at the track here, this afternoon, after a long bitter stretch duel with Commander Ross's Boniface, at one mile and a sixteenth, a distance more to his liking.

The son of McGee, Fair Empress could not concede 11 pounds to Boniface, the bulldog of racing; and the latter under a masterly ride by Clarence Turner, won by a short neck after a furious drive through the last furlong.

The finish furnished a thrill to the big half holiday crowd in attendance. Both horses had many followers and the roar which greeted their stretch duel fittingly expressed the feelings of those who raised their voices to relieve the tension of the situation. Bunga Buck was third, six or eight lengths back.

Boniface was in close quarters for half a mile, but Turner pulled him to the outside and he raced into a contending position around the far turn, head and head with Bunga Buck. When straightened out, however, Exterminator, which had been pinched off for a few strides, moved up fast on the rail and gave battle, and a real battle it was to the last stride.

Lucky Hour, a son of Hourless, and one of Lexington stable's candidates for the $50,000 Preakness Stakes, ran the fastest six furlongs of the meeting in beating a fairly strong field in the third event. Outrun for half the distance he moved up freely rounding the turn and came away to win galloping in 1:12 3-5.

H. P. Whitney's Rocket was as easily second. This good looking 3-year-old was making his first appearance of the season and he followed the pace closely all the way. He was tiring through the last sixteenth, as if possibly a race short, but on the whole his performance was a good one and indicative of some quality.

H. P. Whitney's Enchantment was much the best in the Blue Grass purse for 2-year-olds. This well made gelding ran four furlongs in 47 seconds, which equaled the track record. He won easily, too, by three or four lengths and will bear watching in better company.

In the Clipsax States Whitney's Mainmast and Broomster ran one-two and did the route in splendid time. Broomster appeared good, but short.

Billikens Score In Western Meet

LITTLE ROCK, Ark., April 22.—St. Louis University athletes broke into the point scoring here today, in the senior finals of the Western District championship track and field games. Evans Declares Gamblers "Rode" Him at St. Louis

Says Backers of Guilford Resorted to Unfair Tactics to Insure Defeat.

By the Associated Press.

CHICAGO, April 22.—Announcement by President J. Frederick Byers of the United States Golf Association that pools at golf championships were under the ban, as they have been at tournaments of the Western Golf Association for several years, brought out Chick Evans' recital of what the backers of the pool did during his semi-final round last summer in the National Amateur championship at the St. Louis Country Club, where the man who "had" Jesse Guilford, won $7000.

The day of the semifinals rounds there was a tremendous rain that drenched the course during nearly all the play and reduced the gallery to such a small number that actions of spectators were easily discernible to the players. Evans was outplayed by Guilford after the first few holes, the defending champion not only being outdriven and outputted on the soggy course, but making several errors to which he rarely pleads guilty.

Aha! Here's the Golf Gambler!

"A group of men, with umbrellas, keeping apart from the crowd like conspirators," said Evans, "followed us from the first tee. I did not pay much attention to them at first, as I have never had a wager on any tournament in which I played and had not believed it possible that professional gamblers would change their proverbial plaids for golf togs and beset a links during a national championship; but at the fourth hole the referee, James Standish Jr., came to me and suggested that he wipe the mud from my ball on the greens as that had been allowed, adding: 'Of course we will clean Guilford's ball, too.'

"I did not at first take in the significance of this remark, as golfers in legions can vouch that it has almost been a weakness with me to give an opponent more than an even break; but when the force of the suggestion was borne home and my caddy had advised me that the suggestion had originated from the group of men, I lost my composure. It upset me completely and I was on the point of making a scene when it occurred to me that Guilford was unaware of any such tactics and I felt it would be unfair to him to take any action.

Gamblers "Rode" Evans.

"Insulting insinuations came to my ears from this group and I was satisfied that they were out to 'get my goat,' and I soon realized that they had succeeded by their adroit maneuvers. The match was lost for me, even if Guilford had not played the unbeatable game he did, and I am glad that he won, for he played the best golf at the meet. I am also glad that he was innocent of the attack made on me.

"I went to a nationally known golfer whom I had seen in this group and told him what I thought of the action. He said he knew the man at fault, but would not divulge his name. He likewise cleared the Boston friend of Guilford and said the heckler was a Western man. It was later printed that a Boston man had won $7000 in the pool by having Guilford, who knew as little about it as some horse on which one bets at a race track.

"I contend that it is unfair to the players to allow the gamblers to wager such large sums on them in this fashion. I am overjoyed to know that such things will be barred hereafter."

Patsy Flanagan Meets Tough Boy In Solly Epstein

Match Arranged Yesterday Promises to Be Hard Test for St. Louis Bantam.

With the City Boxing Commission still out of commission (by injunction), the game is going merrily forward here. Two shows are scheduled this week, although the Coliseum appears to have retired for the season.

The first program announced for this week was that of Sam Dixon. Samuel is operating at the Garrick Theater now, having shifted from the Future City Club and other locations that have proved unsatisfactory.

Dixon's main event for tomorrow night consists of a heavyweight match between Harry Foley and "Texas" Harry Tate, two big fellows. Presumably Tate is the "Texas" Tate who several years ago figured in the broil at Little Rock with Fred Fulton, and who later was knocked out at Joplin by Fulton in a second meeting. Foley is from Hot Springs. He is matched to box Tom Gibbons at New Orleans, May 1.

The real event of the Dixon card appears to be the bout between Harry Schuster and Frankie Martin, who fought a pleasing contest here at the last Dixon show. Another good match will be between the negro featherweights Lawrence Hawkins and Bennie Hall, two of the best boys in this district.

Epstein Has Faced Good Foes.

Epstein, who is to meet Flanagan at the Armory next Wednesday, bears a fine reputation. He is a rugged fellow who can box. He has been tried out against the best men of his weight and has decisions over Pal Moore, Frankie Mason, Young Marino, Johnny Rosner, Frankie Daly, etc., and knockouts of Patsy Wallace, Dave Sandow and Ed Lavery to his credit.

Ed Smith, the Chicago referee, refers to Epstein as a "vest pocket edition of the Jack Dillon." He resembles Dillon facially, as well.

Epstein is under the management of Sam Jordan, who for so many years handled the fortunes of Johnny Billeter, one-time lightweight wrestling champion.

Two other bouts will be added to the Armory card, but the principals have not been named.

Kansas Net Stars Win.

MANHATTAN, Kan., April 22.—Kansas University won all the matches in the second day of the K. U.-Aggie tournament here today. Alexander, K. U., won from Downing, Aggies, 6—3, 4—6, 9—7. Johnson, K. U., won from Wann, Aggies, 6—1, 2—6, 6—2. Johnson and Riley, K. U., won from Downing and Wareham, Aggies, 4—6, 6—3, 12—10.

How the New Constitution for Missouri Should Be Constructed

Prof. Isador Loeb, in the First of a Series of Articles Dealing With the Problems Before the Convention, Outlines the Fundamentals of an Up-to-Date Organic Law.

Original Character of a State Constitution Analyzed as a Basis for Further Consideration of the Gigantic Task That the Delegates Will Face When They Assemble Next Month.

THE POST-DISPATCH presents herewith the first of a series of articles by Dr. Isador Loeb of the faculty of Missouri State University, who has been an ardent supporter of the fight for a new Constitution for the State, on the manner in which the work of framing a new organic law should be executed by the convention which meets in Jefferson City next month. The publication of this series will be continued in the Daily Post-Dispatch until it is completed.

Dean of the Faculty of Business and Public Administration and Professor of Political Science and Public Law in Missouri University.

ARTICLE I.

ON MAY 15, a constitutional convention will assemble in Jefferson City for the purpose of amending or revising the Constitution of Missouri. The work of this body may vitally affect the interests of every citizen of this State. Hence, careful attention should be given to the important problems that will come before the convention.

Constitutional questions can be understood only in the light of their historical development. The first Constitution of Missouri, adopted in 1820, was based upon the political experience of the original 13 states and of the 10 other states admitted into the Union before that time. In the same way the present Constitution of this State represents the results of the last century of constitutional development in Missouri and its sister states.

It is the purpose of this article to throw some light upon the constitutional changes demanded by explaining the original character of a State Constitution and indicating the general way in which this has been modified by nearly 150 years of constitutional development. Subsequent articles will discuss more in detail the constitutional development in Missouri and the tendencies which have manifested themselves in the evolution of the more important parts of the Constitution.

The original state constitutions were adopted in the Revolutionary period and preceded the Constitution of the United States. Even after the adoption of the National Constitution the states retained their control over the great mass of governmental functions. The tendency to increase the scope and powers of the National Government which has been strikingly manifested in recent decades has caused many to overlook the real significance of the states and their important powers in one Federal system of government. While it is clear that the jurisdiction of the National Government has been greatly expanded as a result of judicial construction and amendment of the Constitution, it still remains true that the states have control over those matters which are of chief importance in the ordinary affairs of our daily life. These include the subjects of state and local taxation and finance, internal commerce and corporations, civil and criminal law, public health and safety, education, charities and corrections, local government, suffrage and elections. An enumeration of these matters that are left under state control indicates the great importance of a State Constitution which provides the important machinery of the government and defines the extent of the exercise of its powers in these fields.

Functions of Bills of Rights in Early American Constitutions.

The political philosophy of the eighteenth century was opposed to unlimited government even in a democratic state. Accordingly, in the most important of the early constitutions bills of rights were incorporated and these became the models which have come to be universally followed in the Constitutions of all American states. For the origin of these bills of rights we go back to Magna Charta and the great constitutional documents which were the outgrowth of the struggle between the Stuarts and Parliament in England. The fundamental principles of these instruments were repeated in the famous declarations of our Revolutionary period, of which the last and most important was the Declaration of Independence. Incorporated into the state constitutions, these bills of rights are restrictions upon all departments of government and create a field of individual liberty in which all persons are protected in life, liberty and property against arbitrary or discriminating governmental acts.

DR. ISADOR LOEB.

Apart from the limitations in the bill of rights and those resulting from the principle of the separation of powers and the establishment of the three great departments of government, the Legislature was left free to exercise all the powers of the State. The people had confidence in their representatives and there was no evidence of the modern tendency to place restrictions upon legislative powers and procedure. Aside from a few exceptions which disappeared at an early date the two-chamber Legislature was established in all of the early constitutions. Property and, in some cases, religious qualifications were established for voters and officeholders and, as a rule, only the members of the Legislature were elected directly by the voters. The distrust of the colonial Governor was reflected in provisions limiting the term and powers of the State executive who was appointed by the Legislature in about one-half of the states and elected by the voters in the remainder. The State Judges, with a single exception, were appointed either by the Governor or Legislature and usually held office for life.

As a result of the confidence reposed in the Legislature the early constitutions were short and fundamental documents. They did not deal with the details of legislation or of governmental organization or procedure, but left these matters to be regulated by statute. Under these conditions conflicts between Legislature and the Constitution were rare and the courts did not find frequent occasion to exercise the extraordinary power of declaring statutes unconstitutional.

Growing Lack of Confidence in Legislatures Is Indicated.

This necessarily brief outline of the situation at the close of the eighteenth century is in striking contrast to that revealed by an examination of the existing State Constitution. The limits of this article will not permit a detailed consideration of the causes contributing to this change, but the most important features will be indicated. In the first place, the development of principles of democracy in government has resulted in a great broadening of the suffrage with the elimination of religious and, as a rule, of property qualifications, and the establishment of universal suffrage for all adult citizens. The desire to encourage immigration caused some states to grant the suffrage to aliens, but the present tendency is to abolish these provisions. The last century has witnessed a growing lack of confidence in the Legislature and a corresponding tendency to repose increased trust in the Governor. The former has been due in part to unwise plans for State participation in banking, internal improvements and aid of railroads. In most cases the demand for these activities came from the people, but the disasters which usually resulted left a painful impression which was increased by the Legislature's abuse of its power to pass special acts creating corporations and conferring privileges upon them. There developed also a growing belief in the capacity of the voters to determine matters for themselves. Gradually, the constitutions have come to contain numerous prohibitions and restrictions upon legislative power and procedure. The Governor has been given a veto power which it has been made increasingly difficult for the Legislature to overcome. Many provisions of the Constitution now define governmental organization and other matters in detail. Finally, the initiative and referendum enable the voters to dispense with the Legislature in enacting laws.

There has been also a striking tendency to increase the number of elective officers. The short ballot which was the original rule has now been supplanted by one which calls for the voter's choice among candidates for a large number of State and local offices. This movement has extended to Judges who now are usually chosen for limited terms. Evils in the early system of appointment, the doctrine of rotation in office and a belief in the capacity of the voter to choose his officials are chiefly responsible for these changes.

Tendency to Easy Amendment of Organic Laws of States.

Most of the early State Constitutions were adopted by conventions and put into operation without being referred to the voters for their approval. It was not anticipated that frequent changes would be necessary. Some of the constitutions contained no provision for future amendment or revision, and none made popular approval a necessary part of the process. The democratic movement, however, has also affected this matter, and today, with few exceptions, ratification by the voters is necessary for changes in the Constitution, and in some states the voters, through initiative and referendum, may amend the Constitution without any legislative participation in the process. There has been also a tendency to introduce easier methods of changing the Constitution, with the result that there has been an enormous increase in the number of amendments adopted. Since 1900 nearly 2000 constitutional amendments have been submitted to the voters in the different states, of which about 50 per cent have been adopted. While most of these amendments were submitted by Legislatures, some came from constitutional conventions, and an ever-increasing number had their source in initiative petitions.

Many constitutional revisions have been made or attempted during the last two decades. Oklahoma, Arizona and New Mexico were admitted during this period with Constitutions adopted by conventions and ratified by the voters. Constitutional conventions have also made revisions or submitted a series of amendments of existing constitutions in Alabama (1901), Virginia (1902), New Hampshire (1902, 1912, 1919), Michigan (1908), Ohio (1912), Louisiana (1913, 1921), and Massachusettes (1917, 1919). The old rule that the Constitution did not require popular ratification was followed in Virginia and Louisiana, but in all of the other cases the Constitution or the amendments were submitted to and approved by the voters. Constitutions were also revised by constitutional conventions in Connecticut (1902), New York (1915), Arkansas (1918), and Nebraska (1920), but these were rejected by the voters. A constitutional convention that met in Illinois in 1920 has adjourned from time to time and has not as yet completed its task.

Long and Prolix Constitutions Becoming a Plague to People.

The general result of these changes has been a great increase in the size and complexity of State Constitutions. Some of the early State Constitutions did not contain more than 3000 words. In recent constitutions these figures have been multiplied more than 10 times. The Constitution of Louisiana, adopted last year, contains 127 printed pages of text including upwards of 50,000 words. There is a separate article devoted to limitations on the Legislature. The article relating to the judiciary covers 18 pages and deals in detail with city and other local courts as well as with the district and higher State courts and their administrative officials. Many sections of the State Constitutions deal with matters which are not of a fundamental nature and which were formerly left to statutory regulation. Thus, for example, the new Louisiana Constitution has special articles concerning levees and drainage districts. This has resulted in a notable growth in the conflicts between statutes and the Constitution and it has become increasingly difficult for the people to secure legislation that will adequately deal with new social needs. The Constitution and the entire machinery of government have become very complex, with resulting difficulty in determining responsibility and in realizing the popular will.

Mrs. Asquith Tells of Her Visits to President Harding and Woodrow Wilson

Assured Her That He Also Had Lectured and Gave Her the Genesis of the Lecture Idea—Assured Her of His Sympathy for France and Expressed Confidence All World Misunderstandings Would Be Adjusted.

Former President Was Looking Bright and Well and He Assured Her That He Still Had a Stern Fight Before Him—She Told Him He Had the One Fine Idea and That All the World Is Now Endeavoring to Follow It.

MR. WILSON'S eye was bright, his mind clear, and no one looking at his distinguished face could have imagined that he was ill. I could not conceal my emotion when I told him how often we had thought of him. The former President seemed hopeful about himself and said he still had much to do, as there was a stern fight in front of him.—MRS. ASQUITH.

By MARGOT ASQUITH

THE morning after Mrs. Vanderbilt's "bal poudre," I contracted a chill which filled me with despair. Having to lecture that afternoon (my fifth attempt in America and second in New York), it was vital to remove the unfortunate impression that sitting down and reading about horses had created upon my first appearance! Unless my secretary cuts out and pins upon my letters press criticisms of myself, I may not see all of them, and I had hardly been aware of the severity with which I had been taken to task the day after my first lecture.

People are too strong and busy in New York City to notice if you are ill or not; they have paid their dollars and are not likely to listen to what bores them; they wanted a little local gossip about my husband, Mr. Lloyd George or Princess Mary's trousseau.

I did not mind the abuse (I am press proof), but I did not want to disappoint my manager, a competent, kind and critical person, quite unmercenary and interested in his clients' success as much from an artistic as a business point of view, or my secretary, with whom I have contracted a lasting friendship.

Knowing that I had to speak not only that afternoon, but the next night, at Brooklyn, I reassured them by saying that, in spite of my cold, I was going to stand, walk about and amuse the audience by stories of Gladstone, Tennyson, Kitchener, politics, duels and drink. I did not add that I was so nervous that I would have to hold my head up high, as, if I dropped it, I would certainly collapse.

My dear friend, Mr. Paul Cravath, in introducing me, made an admirable speech and was more than helpful and encouraging. I wish I could remember and write down what my chairmen said of me and of my husband, but I am too anxious to listen, and a cannon ball going off would not prevent me from struggling to remember my speech; in spite of knowing that "Ladies and Gentlemen" will be as far as I shall ever get.

Embarrassed in Lecture Plan by Cold

When I stood up, after bowing with challenging languor, I spoke in a low and deliberate manner, which seemed as if it came from another person. I never looked at my notes until the end of the lecture, and after I sat down the audience was enthusiastic.

My son-in-law, Prince Bibesco, a man of acute and artistic observation, congratulated me warmly, and, speechless with exhaustion, I went to bed.

The next morning my chairman sent me the following review from a New York paper:

"The platform manner of Margot Asquith fills us with envy. We wish we could talk as she does, casually leaning against a table. We must confess to a limitless admiration for her technique. No visiting English author in many seasons has seemed to us so entirely at home as was Mrs. Asquith yesterday afternoon on the stage of the New Amsterdam Theater. Her utterance is crisp and clear, she is never under the necessity of digging in her heels and shouting. As her point approaches, she swings into it, facing the audience square and standing straight. We admired her versatility of delivery. There ought to be many clients eager to be tutored by Mrs. Asquith in the art of public speaking."

Next day I had a temperature and, as my daughter had contracted influenza, we were kept in bed and a trained nurse was sent to us by Dr. Eglee. A day or two later, however, I spoke in Brooklyn, motoring there wrapped up in a blanket and accompanied by my doctor, after which I remained in bed until I made my last appearance in New York. By then I had become quite fashionable and received over 80 letters a day, flowers, candy, books and poems.

My daughter Elizabeth's illness took away all my joy and had it not been for her husband and my cousin, Nan Tennant, tears and exhaustion would have tempted me to break my contract.

I arrived at Washington on the thirteenth and spoke the same afternoon. A Washington audience does not deafen you with applause, but Mr. Thomas Hard, my chairman, was so appreciative that he seemed to set the fashion to laugh and and cheer and all went well.

Her Call at the White House

On the following day, I went by appointment at 10:30 to see President Harding. After traveling to several wrong doors I was shown into an anteroom full of press men, talking and smoking round an open fire.

The President's secretary was extremely courteous and I was hardly kept waiting at all. Ushered into Mr. Harding's fine circular room we shook hands and sat down. A large black and tan Airedale terrier sniffed round my skirts and was ordered to sit in a chair by his master.

President Harding has a large bold head with well-cut features and an honest, fearless address. He is still perfectly simple, and extraordinarily easy and pleasant to talk to.

He told me he also had lectured and gave me an account of how lecturing had first started. It was a sort of club or society which began round Lake Chautauqua and spread all over the country.

It was the only way that either pleasure or information could reach distant and dreary little towns inhabited by thousands of men and women who had neither the fortune nor opportunity to meet famous people.

While he was telling me this I looked at the big writing-table in front of him. There was an old photograph of an extremely pretty, refined, middle-aged woman, and a framed engraving of George Washington. On the top of a bookcase I observed an interesting print of Abraham Lincoln. A fire in an open grate and large windows looking out upon a garden with trees completed a charming room.

Our talk was interrupted by the secretary's asking the President to speak on the telephone and he left me after a courteous apology.

On his return he found me looking at the photograph on his table and informed me that it was his mother. We spoke of Arthur Balfour and I told him how pleased my husband and all of us were that he had been able to go to Washington; that his quick mind, fine intellectual manners, and lack of insularity gave him an unrivaled understanding. The President responded with genuine warmth,

"I am very glad," he said, "that he attended our conference. As you were aware, Mrs. Asquith, he was known and liked here before this, and I can say he has added 200 per cent to his former popularity by the patience, tact, straightforwardness and ability he showed throughout our proceedings."

President Harding talked to me about the political situation in England and asked when I thought there would be a general election. I told him that the Coalition Liberals were the rich, ambitious, paying guests in a Conservative palace (or words to that effect); that in their recent attempts to force a general election they had tried to buy the palace, but that to their surprise and annoyance Sir George Younger, the keeper of the Tory purse and manager of their great party, had, with a courage undreamt of by his flock, put a veto upon this, and in a polite and public letter given the Coalition Liberals notice to quit.

Government by Conference

This independent action upset the influential Downing street press, entertained the Free Liberals and bewildered the docile Conservatives. The latter—having no Prime Minister of their own—are not only deeply indebted to Mr. Lloyd George for all he had done for them, but are committed to his leadership by the mutual bargain of the Coupon Kaiser election.

I told him I had no notion when the election might be sprung upon us, nor could anyone foresee its results, but that if there were many Sir George Youngers in the Conservative party it was just possible that the coalition might disappear.

We spoke of the Genoa conference. I said that frankly I was tired of government by conference; that starting from the fatal one at Versailles to the futile one at Cannes, they had been a source of mischief, misunderstanding and recrimination; that the only one at which the truth had been faced, discussed and spread was his own at Washington. I tried to give him some faint idea of the effect that Mr. Hughes' opening speech upon disarmament had produced in our country, adding how profoundly sorry I felt for France.

Our "hang the Kaiser," "search the German pockets" election of 1918, backed as it was by the whole Conservative party, had taken in the French republic; and added that half the irascibility, temper and annoyance with us which we were witnessing in Paris today arose from a feeling that they had been cheated.

I said with all the earnestness that I could command that neither the Liberal party, my husband or anyone else in England intended to quarrel with France; that it was equally clear that this view was held in America and therefore vital for the peace of the world that we should try and understand each other and all keep together.

Harding's Sympathy for France

Mr. Harding was eloquent in his agreement, told me how devoted he was to the French people and added that he felt certain the misunderstandings would gradually pass away. After signing and giving me a facsimile copy of the message which he had delivered at the close of the Washington conference, we parted.

I went to the Rock Creek Cemetery with my cousin, Nan Tennant, to see the Adams tomb by St. Gaudens. It is a great work and clutches at your heart. I sat on the circular marble seat and looked at the beautiful bronze statue. It reminded me of the lines in "Richard II":

"Oh! but they say the tongues of dying men
enforce attention, like deep harmony"——

Although the hooded and austere figure takes you far away from all that moves, and is an emblem of Death, the deep and pitying eyes speak to those who will listen, both of Love and of Hope. I thought as I looked at it what a transfiguring effect a statue like that might have could it be removed to Berlin or Paris.

In the afternoon I visited ex-President Wilson. His wife greeted me with affection, and immediately showed me into the library where her husband was sitting erect upon a chair near the book shelves.

Mr. Wilson's eye was bright, his mind clear, and no one, looking at his distinguished face, could have imagined that he was ill. I could not conceal my emotion when I told him how often we had thought of him.

The former President seemed hopeful about himself, and said he had still much to do, as there was a stern fight in front of him.

He asked me if I did not think things were looking better for my husband and "your great party," adding how closely and with what hope he and others were watching the present political situation in England.

I told him that he had had the one fine idea, and that all the world was fumbling to follow in its track; adding that the League of Nations was applauded upon every Liberal platform.

He made me promise to go and see him on my return to Washington, and after a short conversation about nothing in particular, the fear of tiring him made me get up and say good-by.

THE POST-DISPATCH PLATFORM.

I know that my retirement will make no difference in its cardinal principles, that it will always fight for progress and reform, never tolerate injustice or corruption, always fight demagogues of all parties, never belong to any party, always oppose privileged classes and public plunderers, never lack sympathy with the poor, always remain devoted to the public welfare, never be satisfied with merely printing news, always be drastically independent; never be afraid to attack wrong, whether by predatory plutocracy or predatory poverty.

LETTERS FROM THE PEOPLE

The Church or the Churches.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch.

THEY are to put a muzzle on any newspaper that opposes prohibition and send the editor to jail, and they are to order out the army to enforce the Volstead act. At least the New York State Methodists in a conclave at Syracuse have so ordained by resolution, and they call on the Federal Government for appropriate action. Thus in our own times we get a glimpse of fanaticism that confirms what seems to us to be the unreal or fantastic vagaries of history in its allusions to witch burning, the stocks, the pillories and the quartering of culprits for stealing a loaf of bread, for forgeries and for such crimes as are by no means so heinous as imbibing a glass of beer at a summer picnic. Astonished as I was at these ministerial resolutions at Syracuse, absorbed as I was at the forceful and logical protest of your newspaper, still my attention was arrested by the concluding paragraph of your editorial the other day in which you exclaimed that it is no wonder that the "church" is losing influence.

What do you mean, church?

I ask the question in perfect good faith, and as one of 65,000,000 Americans who is not a communicant of any religious denomination—a confession and a shameful lapse that I hope to correct—and I ask it without prejudice.

When the minister or the deacon of the Methodist Church or the Baptist Church or some other branch of Christianity rises to remark solemnly that the "church" must not seek to evade this or that great responsibility, using the term in the abstract, his message reaches me vaguely. When an allied Protestant fund is devoted to so-called welfare work or a "survey" of industrial conditions, as being within the scope of the "church," I am lost in a maze of metaphysical doubts.

If your editorial had hinted that "churches" are losing their influence, I could understand that you mean that all or some churches, or all churches, synagogues and temples, are declining. If you had said that several religious denominations or sects are declining in consequence of a fanatical devotion to measures undermining the liberties of the people your meaning would have been clear and, I think, your conclusions accurate.

Two great Christian religious bodies implanted throughout the world are not conspicuous for having promoted Volstead legislation and certainly are not in your mind when you see the church dimmed in virtue of adherence to a program of fanaticism.

When you and many others speak in the abstract of the "church" would you have us understand that you refer to some particular group of religious sects, or, what seems more probable, is the term employed to designate something vague and ill-defined—something which has an impressive sound, but which each of us must define and digest at his leisure as his fancy at the moment may dictate?

With reference to Volstead aberrations or blue laws, what do you mean, the church, when you speak in the abstract, or do you merely speak abstractedly?

T. U.

Doyle and the Doubters.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch.

CONAN DOYLE is obviously sincere in his assertions about customs and conditions in the other world, but his cocksureness about it all a little trying. He would be more convincing, probably, if he were not quite so certain. At the same time is it not equally erroneous to dismiss as worthless the psychic phenomena in which Sir Arthur finds such astonishing revelations?

If a table moves without the aid of any force we are cognizant of, then the great and imperative thing is to find out what causes the phenomenon.

From lesser to greater is the law of all growth, and while it is true that curiosity moves but does not lift, the fact remains that any movement is better than stagnation; better move backward than die of inertia. One sometimes gets a fresh impetus forward from awakening to the fact that he is slipping downward.

If to our "intellectuals" it seems that all this crude manifestation is but the reviving of so-called witchcraft, would it not be well to ask themselves if they know what the particular thing was which gave a person the name of witch? There are many reasons that would lead one to the belief that many of these unfortunates were mediums and had clairvoyant vision. The ignorant mind saw in this perfectly natural power the workings of the devil. I can recall, less than 40 years ago, that anyone who was rash enough to tell that he saw, for instance, someone whom the world called dead, he would have been shunned by most people and called queer, if not altogether insane. Today too many are blessed with this "clear vision" for the world to dare to persecute them openly or hang them on a Salem hill.

William James said shortly before he died: "We are just in the borderland of this great psychic world; vast are its domains and great is the reward of the ones who have the courage to enter and seek truth." Yes, it does take courage to reveal to a sceptical world new truths. So let us keep an open mind, and if we dare not be pioneers, at least let us refrain from throwing obstacles in the path of those who have the courage.

N. S.

THE STRUGGLE FOR RIGHT.

The American Bar Association has deemed the present condition of widespread disrespect for law in this country of sufficient gravity to justify the appointment of a committee of distinguished jurists and lawyers to study its causes and submit observations and recommendations. The committee is now at work and will visit a number of the larger cities in pursuing its inquiries.

In any intelligent study of lawlessness the subject must be dealt with in the two broad categories of criminal conduct, differentiated in legal philosophy by the terms malum in se and malum prohibitum. The former class of crimes, directed against persons or property, have been recognized for centuries by the common law as inherently immoral, and include such offenses as murder, theft, robbery and the like. The latter class comprises inhibitions which any legislative majority may impose at any time upon a community, and are directed against conduct not inherently immoral but presumably contrary to or promotive of the public welfare. The former class of crimes is under the fixed and permanent condemnation of the moral law; the latter are transitory and fluctuating, according to the changing views of changing legislative majorities.

There is really nothing very mysterious or abstruse about the recent crime wave that has swept over the United States and, in fact, over the whole world. Criminologists have long since found a close relation between crime and poverty; and periods of widespread business depression and unemployment, such as the world is passing through, have always been characterized by an increase in robbery and like crimes. If the present wave is more violent, the general undermining of morals incident to a great war is ample explanation, Treitschke to the contrary notwithstanding. It will subside according as prosperity returns and as the influences of home and ethics assert themselves upon individual conscience.

Disrespect for law in the sense of disobedience to legislative regulations of conduct, not in itself immoral or vicious, is quite another thing and may be easily corrected. True law is founded in the customs and habits of a people and that community is most orderly whose laws most nearly approximate the community customs. During the last few years in this country, however, we have witnessed a reckless legislative mania for new laws designed purposely to suppress fixed habits and customs, because, forsooth, some busy group disapproved of them. The resulting irritability and opposition is the most natural thing in the world.

An absolute government, wielding unlimited power, can enforce its will upon a people and bid defiance to its wishes. We have attempted it under our free institutions and appear surprised at its failure. If it is proposed to increase the energy of government so as to compel obedience the substance of free government must, of course, disappear in the process.

In one respect the existing disrespect for law, as that law is embodied in our new regulations of personal conduct, is a wholesome sign. Many of our regulatory laws have gone so far as to wound our personal sense of right and leave a conviction that the Government itself is practicing injustice. This feeling of indignation is founded, not in wickedness, but rather in the power of morality. It is this keen capacity of the Anglo-Saxon to feel injustice and sacrifice himself to right it that has given us Magna Charta and our Constitution of 1787. It is the old struggle for right under law which becomes a struggle against law when that law ceases to protect right.

No doubt King John considered the English Barons to be diabolically disrespectful of law. So all oppressive Governments have looked upon opposition. But the fact remains that without this saving grace in the human character the world would still be in the gloom of absolutism.

THE GOLDMAN APOSTASY.

The communist colony of New York again is fit for business as usual. It has held a meeting to denounce Emma Goldman for disturbing it in its cherished belief—the success of the soviet republic as an experiment in popular government—and feels itself reconfirmed in the faith. While attacked only by the corrupted bourgeoisie the cause of communism thrived. It would not have mattered what happened in Russia. But exiled Emma bearing facts for the aid and comfort of the master class—this was too much. The apostasy had to be condemned. The esprit of the cause must be restored.

Emma's former disciples, therefore, sought and found a member of their faith who had been in Russia to come and annihilate her statements one by one; they excommunicated and excommunized her as a vindictive renegade, and adjourned in the faith—or, rather, the determination—that the ghost of fact had been laid.

It was Rose Pastor Stokes who keynoted with the pronouncement: "This finishes Emma Goldman." We have not the least doubt that if Mrs. Stokes and her cobelievers had been in Miss Goldman's shoes they would have done, if they had had the moral courage, as she has done. And we have no doubt that Miss Goldman, staying in New York, would have denounced them as unsparingly as they are denouncing her.

There is only one way for determined believers to avoid collision with the facts, and that is to stay away from them.

SHALL THE ART MUSEUM STAY?

Comptroller Nolte's difficulties in making the city's income spread over the city's needs are appreciated. His case against the expenditure of thousands of dollars for art objects while the material needs of the city, its institutions and dependents go unsatisfied also has its appeal.

But in attacking the 2-cent tax on the $100 assessed valuation of taxable property for the support of the Art Museum, what is Mr. Nolte doing? He is reviving an issue which long ago was determined by a vote of the people, much to the gratification of educators, art patrons and cultured opinion throughout the country. He is reviving the question of whether community art in St. Louis shall be supported by a fixed income, free of politics, or whether such art shall survive or perish on what remains after the Board of Estimate has allotted the city's revenues for what it regards as necessaries.

The first reply called for by the Comptroller's benevolently inspired attack is best conveyed in a question, namely: Why should the city's budget authorities be concerned with funds duly constituted by law and entirely outside of their jurisdiction? The art fund enjoys the immunity of the school fund. It is authorized by the people and administered separately. There is no justification in law or logic for the covetousness of the guardians of other public budgets.

If the Comptroller is dissatisfied with the law governing the composition of the Board of Control of the Art Museum it is his privilege as a citizen to make protest and propose changes. There is merit in the point that the city should have representation on the board other than through a self-perpetuating body of citizens. But to compare the needs of hospital beds and budget deficits with the needs of an Art Museum is to open the question of whether the finest cultural and spiritual achievements of civilization are worth public support.

The best answer to that question is that if you abolish the art museums and the schools you will still have budget deficits, need of hospital beds and the cries of spoilsmen over the shortage of spoils.

If the Art Museum is to be continued as an institution for popular culture and enjoyment it must have an adequate income to buy the best works of art, which are costly but are essential to the function of an art museum. If it is to be beggar at the city hall, dependent upon the leftovers of municipal departments, it will not be worth maintaining. Mr. Nolte raises the question: Shall we or shall we not have an Art Museum?

ENGINEER GRAHAM'S DISMISSAL.

For the resignation of Alexander Graham as chief engineer, which, it was first reported, was demanded by the Highway Commission at the instance of the Governor, Chairman Gary now assumes full responsibility. Gov. Hyde is quoted as saying that he did not know that Graham was to be removed. Mr. Gary explains his action on the ground that "Graham had not shown sufficient initiative and had deferred too much to Windrow." Windrow is Gary's personal representative.

It may be that Graham was not the man for the place. Yet he has been in the department for five years and only a month ago was re-elected chief engineer by the commission. It would seem, therefore, that the commissioners, some of whom had been associated with him for a long time, had confidence in Graham's ability. Under the circumstances will not the public wonder how Chairman Gary, who has had very little personal contact with the department, having been in Europe the greater part of the time since his appointment to the chairmanship, could have been so sure about Graham's incapacity?

The fact that Graham is a Democrat is bound to figure in the surmise. That is unfortunate. If the public gets the impression that the Highway Department under Mr. Gary's chairmanship is to be operated as a partisan political bureau there are rocks ahead. The Post-Dispatch is reluctant thus to construe M. Gary's action, but it is undeniable that the action is likely to occasion public apprehension. Had Graham been a Republican would he have been abruptly ousted, with the ink hardly dry on his certificate of re-election? That is the question which Chairman Gary has challenged the Missouri public to ask.

Whatever the reasons for Graham's conge, the circumstances disclose Mr. Gary's inexperience in public affairs. Granted that the chairman of the Highway Commission must be privileged to select his subordinates if he is to make a success of the great project, it is, nevertheless, incumbent upon him to avoid even the appearance of spoils politics.

OUR UNSELFISH CONGRESS.

The present Congress, whatever its defects, has no symptoms of the feverish supersensitiveness that unhappily marked the last Wilson Congress, especially the Senate. The tariff bill reported by the Senate Finance Committee may be offered in evidence. So far from sitting up nights to see that the President does not pooch on its preserves, as the Wilson Congress used to do, the new tariff bill proposes to vest in the President the unprecedented power of raising or lowering tariff rates as conditions may require.

Nobody can say how the innovation will work. Indeed, nobody can say how the pending tariff bill, if enacted, will work. Admittedly it is hard to do business with customers who either have no money at all or whose money at Uncle Sam's counters is pretty nearly worthless. In such circumstances it does not seem like sound business practice to make trading still harder by high tariff schedules, as the bill proposes. Possibly Congress thinks the President will be able, with this extension of authority, to make the customs act function successfully. And, so, have given the executive a "free pass" over their constitutional rights.

The present Congress may be fumbling, cowardly and helpless, but its unselfishness in letting the President do all the hard work ought to be acknowledged and acclaimed.

AN ARGUMENT AGAINST WAGE CUTS.

Some rather striking testimony was introduced at the Railway Labor Board's hearing of the roads' demands for further wage cuts. The wife of a section hand, who appeared, she explained, in a borrowed coat, submitted the family budget. This budget showed a revenue of $70 a month, the husband's wages, as against monthly expenses totaling $90.15. The witness further told about her 10-year-old boy whom a school nurse pronounced tubercular, but whose case was diagnosed by a doctor as undernourishment. The boy's diet consisted of tea, bread and syrup. "The doctor said he ought to have milk."

It may be that such evidence of poverty and incapacity cannot be accepted as economic data, however appealing it may be to relief organizations or philanthropic enterprises. Yet the work of a section hand is necessary to the operation of a railroad. It must be done and somebody must do it. Must it be done at a wage that condemns the worker and those dependent upon him to charity or near-starvation?

The case of the section hand cannot be dismissed as a sentimentality. Nor can the railroads, in justice, ask the community or some other agency to provide in part for a class of railroad labor. The railroads may need more money, but a prior need is self-respect. There can be no self-respect in an industry that does not pay a living wage for indispensable labor.

The bankful rivers of the West, after their annual custom, are threatening the destruction of property and life and are actually pouring a power of imperial value into "old ocean's gray and melancholy waste." That power will some day be caught, imprisoned and subsequently released to till the farms and run the factories and illuminate the cities of the trans-mississippi empire.

BAYONET DIPLOMACY.

JUST A MINUTE . .

Written for the POST-DISPATCH
By Clark McAdams

WHO would have thought the re-election of our Jamie Reed would ever become a national issue? Yet it is nothing else. A number of Senators are seeking this year to renew their tenure in office, but in this case alone do we see ex-President Wilson and a considerable part of the press actively taking the field in opposition to anyone wishing to be a Senator.

Something of a stir for one man to make, wouldn't you say? It is almost enough to make Missourians of every shade of opinion as to Jamie, join in his defense. We are always told that Russia, while of many varying opinions as to bolshevism, has really perpetuated bolshevism by joining against invaders. Maybe you can tell us what the difference would be if all Missourians suddenly got behind Jamie against the common foe?

There are never more than a very few men in the Senate of whom most of us have any definite impression. Yet, strangely enough, the impression almost everybody in the country has of our Jamie is definite enough. People think he is one infernal nuisance, and they express this appraisal in an infinite variety of ways all amounting to just that. They think Jamie is a very bad boy, and they want him politically spanked. One might have supposed that in his recent brush with Mr. Wilson he would have been supported by most Republicans and Independents, but he wasn't. They were pretty unanimous in saying that he had tried to disguise himself for the moment as a Wilson Democrat, and this was quite generally declared to be characteristic of him.

Poor Jamie! He has enough people against him in Missouri without stirring up impondérables like an ex-President and no end of newspapers scattered all over the country.

The weather is like any of us—repentant after the damage is done.

It looks as if the Quakers had proved that the way to do a thing is to do it and not talk about it. We have heard mighty little from the Quakers about their relief work in Europe, yet it has been the real phenomenon of reconstruction.

A Milwaukee lawyer has been fined $14,500 and costs and sentenced to five years at Fort Leavenworth for violating the Volstead act. It is probably necessary to make a much more horrible example of somebody in Milwaukee than it is anywhere else.

Jack Dempsey, at any rate, can be lionized by Europeans without occasioning our resentment, which illustrates the great difference between politics and almost anything else. It flatters us to have Jack meet Kings and Queens where to have the President do so seemed to offend us deeply. One might imagine it would be just the reverse, and we believe it usually is the other way around in most countries. Maybe we are not like any other country.

Words have their fashions, no less than clothes. For instance, we find this in The Freeman:

> Whole bureaux, so we are told, which were created during the war emergency, are still retained intact, though the work for which they were organized is done.

And to think! We have been speaking right along of bureaus!

STATUTE OF LIBERTY FOR BRAZIL.

John H. Allen, treasurer of the Brazilian Memorial Committee, president of the American Foreign Banking Corporation, reports that up to date approximately $12,000 of the $35,000 needed has been subscribed for erecting the Statue of Liberty overlooking the harbor of Rio de Janeiro to celebrate the 100th anniversary of Brazil's independence.

Does this mean that Brazil is to have a prohibition law?

ALL ABOUT YOUR ECTOPLASM.
(Jack Blanton in Monroe County, Mo., Appeal.)

If you have ectoplasm you have power to communicate with the spirit world. We get this from Sir Arthur Conan Doyle, who seems to have delved deeper into the mystery of life after death than any other man. Ectoplasm, as most any schoolboy can tell you, is the denser protoplasmic layer of a unicellular organism or cell without a cell-wall, as if an amoeba or of a certain ova, a definition that is confirmed by the Standard Dictionary. If you have all this you have an ectoplasm and therefore are qualified to get messages from the other world. It is all very simple, almost as simple, in fact, as the newspapers which give to Sir Arthur vast amounts of space that might be filled with matters of real interest to the public.

Dear Just a Minute:—Some people cling to antiques never knowing the times are changing. For instance, to my amazement I observed an old-time negro boy hitching post in cast iron solemnly standing on a curbstone somewhere out on Russell avenue.

Its right hand was extended in a welcoming manner as if still expecting the old family horse driven towards it. There was something pathetic about its expression, and the thought came to me that the little cullud boy in cast iron was a great deal like some people I know. The automobile has displaced the horse.

How the world moves on and yet how many people there are who don't know it any more than that cast iron African boy? They are still thinking about the old family horse while automotive wonders pass before their very eyes. The glories of the world! What are they to a hitching post or a hitching post mind?

THE POOL OF LIFE.

Dark and deep
Of unknown depth,
The surface pitted by drops of rain,
Ever the same
Yet always changing,
A continuous movement of momentary pockmarks,
Indentations individual,
Tragically alike,
Transient upon the waters' level.
And gone forever—
At once replaced by others,
By endless others—
In their thousanded succession.
Not one
Nor all
Penetrate the vast unknown
Beneath the surface.

The MIRROR of PUBLIC OPINION

This column is designed to reproduce without bias the latest comment by the leading publications, newspapers and periodicals on the questions of the day.

JOURNALISM A PROFESSION.

From the Christian Science Monitor.

BY authority of the United States Government it has been decided that a newspaper man is a member of a "learned profession." The decision will bring deep relief to many persons in and out of the "game." For long there has been confusion on this vital question. Some newspaper men have described themselves as "journalists" which has moved others to define a journalist as a newspaper man out of a job. Others have frankly aligned themselves with labor, accepting the benefits and the deprivations of such alliance with apparent equanimity. Outside the "game" opinions were equally varying. Those whose personal affairs had been exploited thought newspaper men a race quite without the confines of decent society. Politicians and business men who were able, through influence, personal or commercial, to use newspaper men as their unpaid publicity agents, took something for granted and patted the agents on the back. Conversely, the public looked on newspaper men as "interesting," "energetic," rather impertinent men, occupying economically a position somewhere between the janitor and the college professor. Now all this uncertainty is happily resolved. The other day a newspaper man, native of England, resident for years of Canada, left the Dominion for the United States, there to pursue his occupation. But at night he was roused from his berth by a courteous but determined immigration officer, who told him he must leave the train. Protests proving of no avail, the newspaper man obeyed, and later submitted himself to further questioning by a "board." He was quizzed as to his antecedents, his occupation, the number of years he had followed it, which were many, the country under which he purposed going to the United States, the extent of his resources, the size of his family. At last it developed that the officials were trying to determine whether the newspaper man fell under the ban of the law which prohibits bringing labor into this country under contract. The issue, proving too big for determination by the officials at the border, was referred to the head of the American immigration authorities at Washington, and after some delay came the decision: "We find that a newspaper man is a member of a learned profession, and as such is not subject to the provisions of the contract labor law."

KU KLUX KLAN AND MISS RIVER.

From the Brooklyn Eagle.

THE pronunciamento of Gov. John M. Parker of Louisiana demanding the prompt and sharpest action for the suppression of the Ku Klux Klan derives some of its significance from the character of Parker, who is a fighter, whether under a Progressive or a Democratic banner, as more from the history of the Pelican State. The Governor says: "Where there is no organization there may be need sometimes for concentration of measures on the part of the masses, but in general men like ours you cannot take the law in your own hands for any purpose whatever, without working absolute injustice and undermining the foundation of order." Right, of course, but it is a reflection on the Governor's predecessors, nevertheless! It was on the night of March 14, 1891, that a mob murderers broke into the Parish Prison in New Orleans and massacred 11 Italians who had been stock accused of Mafia crime. Nine of them were day a newspaper man, native of England, resident naturalized. For the other two the Italian Government demanded $25,000 to relatives on the demand of the United States, there to pursue his occupation. But at night he was roused from his berth by a courteous but determined immigration officer, who told him he must leave the train. Protests proving of no avail, the newspaper man obeyed, and later submitted himself to further questioning by a "board." He was quizzed as to his antecedents, his occupation, the number of years he had followed it, which were many, the country under which he purposed going to the United States, the extent of his resources, the size of his family. At last it developed that the officials were trying to determine whether the newspaper man fell under the ban of the law which prohibits bringing labor into this country under contract. Not one of those mob murderers was ever punished. No effort was made to punish them. Indeed, several men active in the affair were prominent in State politics for many years thereafter. Does Gov. Parker mean that there is "no civilization" in Louisiana under Gov. Parker? Or does he mean that the State was more civilized murderers instead of glorifying them, as it did ago?

Washington Lively With Affairs for D. A. R. Visitors

Many Missourians Among Delegates at Convention; White House Army and Navy Reception Also a Notable Event.

20 Wyatt Building.

WASHINGTON, April 22.—Washington had a surprise for Easter in "Papa" Joffre, the famous French Marshal, who is on a pleasure tour throughout America, accompanied by Madame Joffre and their daughter. The gallant Frenchman was received with acclaim by the smart set of the capital as well as the official circles, and he was the recipient of many attentions, which ranged from inclusion on the pilgrimage of the D. A. R. to Mount Vernon to a dinner in his honor at the White House.

The Marshal was the shining star at the White House army and navy reception on Wednesday, which was postponed from February on account of the Roma disaster, and gave an auspicious opening to the Easter season. Two of Missouri's sons, Gen. John J. Pershing and Rear Admiral Coontz, led the respective army and navy lines past the receiving line.

In the blue room stood the President and Mrs. Harding and their assistants, Secretary and Mrs. Weeks and Secretary and Mrs. Denby. In point of numbers this was the largest number of guests ever appearing at a White House function, for more than 4000 were present. A springlike touch was given to the decorations by lavish use of Japanese cherry blossoms.

Many Missourians Present.

An especially interesting group included Mrs. Frederick Dent Grant; her son, Col. Ulysses S. Grant, III, who is serving as aid for Marshal Joffre; Prince and Princess Cantacuzene and Princess Bertha Cantacuzene. Other Missourians present were Mrs. John B. Henderson, Sr., former Gov. and Mrs. Joseph Folk; Senator and Mrs. Selden P. Spencer. Mrs. Spencer has had a strenuous week as chaplain general of the D.

Mrs. Joseph W. Folk occupied a box at one of the sessions of the congress. Mrs. Folk wore old blue chiffon and silver lace.

Mrs. John B. Henderson, widow of the former Senator from Missouri, attended the reception given by Mrs. George Maynard Minor at Continental Hall Tuesday night. Mrs. Henderson wore rare old lace and pink satin.

Representative Edgar Ellis gave an informal dinner party last week and Mrs. Ellis entertained at luncheon for visiting delegates to the D. A. R. Congress.

How to Make Strawberry Jam in 10 Minutes

By Ann Proctor

The finest strawberry jam you ever tasted—chock full of the natural color and flavor—can be made at home with in ten minutes after the berries are washed and crushed. I use the "Certo Process" because it takes only 1 minute's boiling, thus saving flavor and color, never fails, and is cheaper because I get 60% more jam from the same amount of berries.

To make ten half-pound glasses of Strawberry Jam:

Crush well in single layers about two quarts of ripe berries, using wooden masher and discarding all green parts. Measure 4 cups crushed berries and 7½ level cups (3¾ lbs.) sugar into good-sized preserving kettle. Mix well; stir hard and constantly. Bring to vigorous boil and boil hard 1 full minute, continue stirring. Take from fire and add ½ bottle (scant ½ cup) Certo, stirring it in well. Let stand 5 minutes only by the clock, stirring occasionally; skim and pour quickly into sterilized glasses.

By this short "Certo Process" you save all the color and flavor that is boiled away by the old method. Time and worry are saved, and you have 5 lbs. of jam for 2 lbs. of berries as against 3 lbs. by the old method, and the cost with 20c berries and 6c sugar is only about 9c per half-pound glass.

The above recipe and many others for making delicious jellies and jams by the "Certo Process" is found in the Certo Book of Recipes, a copy of which will be given to you by your grocer when you get Certo. Extra copies will be sent free if you write to the Pectic Sales Company, Inc., 108 East Avenue, Rochester, N. Y.

Use Certo this year in making all your jams and jellies. It saves time, worry and boiling. The "Certo Process" never fails and saves money, because you make half as much more jam from the same amount of fruit; it is endorsed by national authorities and cooking experts. Jelly and jams made with Certo keep splendidly.

PARIS WOMEN DANCERS WAR ON GLOVELESS MEN

In Return, Gallants Aver That Their Gloves Are Soiled by Filmy Attire.

Special Correspondence of the Post-Dispatch.

PARIS, April 14.—The women who dance in Paris (and the few exceptions don't count) have declared war on the gloveless man. They are tired of having the fragile veil of flimsiness that does duty for the old time corsage soiled by the hot hands of their partners. It is extremely disagreeable, say these fair victims of the modern laxity of masculine manners to discover the day after a dance finger prints of half a dozen men on what was an immaculate dancing dress a few hours previously. So there is talk of boycotting the "ill bred" men who refuse to wear gloves.

The retort from the masculine camp is not without its piquancy.

"Gloves!" exclaim the accused. "Of course we would like to wear them. Did we not always wear them till—till the women ceased to wear anything that really mattered above the waist line. A very few dances suffice to turn a pair of white gloves into a couple of limp and dirty rags when they have to come in contact with a moist flesh. If women will cover their flesh we will wear gloves once more."

There is a distinct decline in the number of women at the most swagger dancing establishments.

Will Crinoline Return?

The return of the crinoline may be foreshadowed by a fancy dress ball given the other day in one of the old aristocratic homes of the Faubourg Saint-Germain, and at which crinolines were the feature. Most of the dresses worn were, in fact, copies of gowns of the "sixties," and the effect was heightened by the women's queer ringlets and old-fashioned little round straw hats with flowing ribbons, which harmonized perfectly with the surroundings.

The interior of the house, with the furniture, is exactly as it was in the early days of the second empire, so that the dancers required no great effort of imagination to feel themselves thrust back a century or more. All the leaders of French society were present and wore crinolines.

Dolls in Drawing Rooms.

A drawing-room fashion which is becoming a craze with French women consists in placing huge dolls on the sofas and chairs. The great thing seems to be to have as many nations as possible represented, although each home is supposed to indicate its particular sympathies by a majority of dolls of the favored nationality.

British maidens with rosy cheeks and French girls with large, dark eyes are at present the most prominent, but they are likely to have "their noses put out of joint" by the Italian Signorina, who is becoming the rage of the Paris salons. She is usually dressed as a Colombine and has a pale complexion, faraway, melancholy eyes and a general air of languidness. Great efforts are made to portray in each doll the characteristics of its supposed nationality.

Life of English Dancing Girls.

Thousands of persons who have seen the fair-haired English dancing girls at the Folies Bergere, the Casino, the Paris, the Cigale and other Paris music halls, where their performances are a standing feature, might be surprised at the quiet, homely life these little exiles are able to lead in the gay city. The house in which they all live together is in Montmartre, near the Palis Pigalle. Strange indeed is the contrast between the healthful peacefulness of their home and the hectic character of the quarter in which it is situated—a quarter infested with night clubs and haunts of vice in every form.

Here the dancing girls can live in comfort on their salaries, shielded from the temptation (which is almost a necessity for their French sisters) to resort to other stratagems in order to make both ends meet. They pay $30 a month, or perhaps a little less, for room and board, and are not required to sacrifice a particle of their liberty. They are expected only to make their beds and to get home at night before 1 o'clock. Once a week they are "at home" to friends, when the pretty hostesses dispense tea and toast and cakes and smiles to their visitors, who are always numerous and have a merry time.

Services for Girls.

On Sunday mornings a Protestant pastor comes and conducts a service for the girls, for it is really that, with the best will in the world, they cannot be expected to go to church after a late Saturday evening performance and with a Sunday matinee to go through with before the ordinary evening show.

American Art School in Paris.

Yet another link has been forged between France and America by the founding of an American art school in Paris. Students who attend it—and they are already numerous, although it was only opened recently—will find themselves in the center of one of the most picturesque quarters of old Paris.

The Place des Vosges, where the school is situated, was famous in the time of Henry IV. The Palais des Tournelles, close by, was a royal residence in the sixteenth century. The actual building taken for the American school was the home of the Duc de Chaulnes in 1644, while much later it was occupied by the famous actress, Rachel.

The New York School of Applied and Fine Arts is responsible for the creating of the new institution, the object of which is to bring American students into even closer touch with the best in French art and with the treasures of

WRAPS AND COATS ONE-THIRD OFF

This exquisite wrap—model by Callot—was $375. In the one-third off sale—$250—an actual saving of $125.

Smart coats and magnificent wraps, the aristocrats of milady's wardrobe, are shown here in profusion. Search the world over and it is our honest belief that nowhere will you find a more engaging array of spring fashions than are to be had right here at most remarkable savings. Masterful reproductions of exclusive modes by such famed designers as Drecoll, Arnaud, Bernard, Patou, Paquin, Lanvin, Chenit, and Callot in the luxuriousness of marvella, velvetta, satin, Canton crepe, gerona and Crepe Knit in a bewildering display of the gorgeous colorings for Spring.

During this premature reduction sale it is your privilege to select any coat or wrap in our entire collection above $89.50 and deduct one-third from the marked price. For instance: any coat or wrap now priced at $450 is yours for $300—an actual saving of one hundred and fifty dollars. Any coat now priced $225 is yours for $150, and so forth. All garments will retain the original price tickets, and reductions will be made only at time of purchase, thus showing the exact savings realized on your selection.

SUITS AND COSTUMES ONE-THIRD OFF

For the suit enthusiast this notable collection holds an abundance of rich surprises. Exclusive, one-of-a-kind affairs and exact reproductions of imported modes embracing the gamut of Spring fashions in the fabrics demanded by the fastidious. Elaborate interpretations of the new three-piece costumes; smart semi-tailored or strictly tailored styles and jaunty flare-back and box coat suits for the miss. Suits for travelling and Northern resort wear this summer are to be in favor, and no woman, who anticipates a vacation will permit an opportunity such as this to go unheeded.

Suits—like coats and dresses—will retain the original price tickets. Saleswomen will figure the reduction of one-third as the garments are sold. Say you select a suit priced $175; deduct one-third and pay just $116.67—an actual saving of $58.33. Regardless of the price of the suit you select, providing of course it is $89.50 or above, this same process is effective. You save exactly thirty-three and one-third per cent in every instance.

Digestive Vaccination Recommended.

Microbe meals are being recommended as a pleasant means of obtaining immunity from certain diseases. Dr. Roux of the Pasteur Institute stands for this new form of vaccination which he has explained to the Academy of Medicine. The idea is to introduce into the digestive tubes large quantities of dead microbes, immunity being secured after two or three such repasts.

The method has been tried upon three men. After fasting 18 hours they were given 5,000,000,000 microbes of Maltese fever. They then fasted again for six hours. Two days later the men absorbed 5,000,000,000 more of microbes, and then, after another interval of two days, they were given a third meal of microbes. Considered to be now immune they were next inoculated with 500,000,000 virulent microbes of Maltese fever. Eighteen days later one of the men developed all the symptoms of the disease, which was checked, however, by subsequent inoculation.

The advantage of the new form of digestive vaccination is said to be that it does away with the painful and often dangerous features of ordinary vaccination. Its extension to many other diseases is predicted by Dr. Roux.

JACKSON'S

INNOCENT VISITOR IN CELL 9 HOURS AS MURDER SUSPECT

T. H. Edwards, Wealthy Resident of Salisbury, Mo., Held Incommunicado in Cell With Negroes.

THREATENED WITH KICKS BY DETECTIVES

Efforts of Nephew and Circuit Judge Required to Obtain His Release From Holdover.

After being held incommunicado for nine hours by the St. Louis police as a "suspect" in a gang murder investigation, as told exclusively in the Post-Dispatch yesterday, Thomas H. Edwards, prominent citizen of Salisbury, Mo., who had come to St. Louis on a business mission and was arrested while looking up the mother of a child now in the care of relatives at Salisbury, was released and allowed to go home, not, however, until a nephew, who is an attorney, and a Circuit Judge had intervened with the police in his behalf.

Edwards is 50 years old, a wealthy grain elevator operator and miller of Salisbury, former Mayor of his town, deacon of his church and former Sunday school superintendent. After attending to his grain business Monday and Tuesday of last week, he started the search for the child's mother, a relative of his sister-in-law, to inquire about support for the child.

The woman he sought was Lorraine La Vere, whose real name is Lorraine La Grasse. It is her child, now in the care of her husband's parents at Salisbury, that Edwards had been asked to inquire about. Edwards obtained from his nephew, N. Murray Edwards, attorney with offices in the Pierce Building, the woman's address, which was 4604 Olive street.

Meets Policeman at Door.

Thursday morning, about 8 o'clock, Edwards rang the bell at that address and stated his mission to a policeman who had opened the door from within.

"That stuff don't go here," said the officer, reaching out and taking Edwards by the collar. Although Edwards repeatedly explained his mission, he was arrested and taken to the Newstead Avenue Police Station in a patrol wagon.

An ex-convict had been killed at the Olive street address early that morning, but Edwards had not heard of it. It was the home of Gregory H. Lewis, former proprietor of a county roadhouse, and Lorraine La Vere, or La Grasse, was a lodger there.

Edwards was kept in a cell at the Newstead station one hour. He protested that he knew nothing of the murder. But a detective was insistent that he had not told all, and added: "You will tell what you know of this murder, or we will kick the hell out of you."

Edwards was removed to the holdover at Central Police Station about 9 o'clock and placed in a cell with seven other prisoners, some of them negroes. After repeated requests he was allowed to telephone to his nephew, who hastened to police headquarters.

Lieuts. Walton and Vasey refused to release Edwards, and the attorney, fter conferring with other police officials, including Philip H. Brockman, member of the Board of Police Commissioners, gave up hope of dissuading the police from holding his uncle.

Lays Case Before Judge.

He then called on Circuit Attorney Sidenas, who could do nothing because a charge had not been filed against the elder Edwards, nd young Edwards then laid the case before Circuit Judge Franklin Miller.

Judge Miller telephoned Chief of Detectives Hoagland, who said Edwards had been picked up on suspicion and that the police had no evidence against him, but added that he would be held until evening, as the investigation of the murder was still in progress.

Judge Miller then said to Hoagland:

"Chief, you set that man out there on Twelfth street where he belongs," and hung up the receiver, according to young Edwards. Then Judge Miller told Edwards to go over to police headquarters and get his uncle.

Edwards hastened over to Central Station and found his uncle waiting for him on Twelfth street, in front of the station.

The desk sergeant, who had locked up Edwards' watch and money, had gone home with the keys, and Edwards had to wait about an hour, or until 5 o'clock, before the keys were brought and his property restored.

OPPOSITE COLUMBIA THEATRE

"VIOLINS OF AUTUMN" AT LITTLE THEATER

Drama by Sourgouchev Depicts Autumnal Period of Woman's Life.

Ilya Sourgouchev's drama, "The Violins of Autumn," will be presented Wednesday night at the Little Theater of the Artists' Guild, under the direction of Dr. Gregory Zilboorg and under the auspices of the Artists' Guild and the Players. This will be the first performance of the work in the English language, as Dr. Zilboorg has completed its translation since his arrival in St. Louis. It will be repeated on Thursday and Friday nights, and on the evenings of May 2, 4, 10 and 11.

Sourgouchev, who is still in his thirties, is regarded as perhaps one of the most gifted of the younger generation of Russian playwrights. He wrote "The Violins of Autumn" for the wife of Anton Chekov. She was leading woman at the Moscow Art Theater.

When the Russian Theater was crushed, following the success of the bolshevist revolution, Sourgouchev fled to Africa, and lived for some time in the desert. It is said that at present he resides in Prague.

The play takes its name from a saying of one of the characters, that "Spring has its flutes, summer its trumpets, and autumn its violins, exquisitely tender." It deals with the autumnal period of a woman's life, when she must bid farewell to love forever; and the tragedy comes with a contest between a foster mother and her youthful adopted daughter for the same man.

Cast of Production.

The cast will be different from that presenting Chekov's "Uncle Vanya," which Dr. Zilboorg produced last week at the Artists' Guild. The principal parts will be taken by Mrs. Hazel Ewald, Gordon Sommers, Dr. Alphonse McMahon, Florence Walters and Gustavus Tuckerman. In addition, there will be about 20 persons in minor roles.

The fourth performance of "Uncle Vanya" will be given tomorrow night and there will be succeeding performances on the evenings of May 1 and 3. At tomorrow's showing part of the theater will be occupied by a group from the United Hebrew Charities, partly made up of persons familiar with Russian drama in Russian. On the evening of May 3 the theater will be taken by a group of Chamber of Commerce members, who, with their families and friends, will make it an occasion of reunion among those who made the trip to Mexico a year ago. The Little Theater makes a special rate for student groups.

Receptions Given "Uncle Vanya."

"Uncle Vanya" seems to be repeating here—this being its first production in the United States—its experience in both Russia and England, and is winning recognition for literary quality and spirituality. It failed in Chekov's own country before it was produced by the Moscow Art Theater and recognized as one of the outstanding dramas of Russia. It failed also, upon its first presentation in London, only to achieve a fine success in the same city when a Russian was substituted for the British director. A London correspondent of the Dial reported in its March issue:

"'Uncle Vanya' is the most beautiful and poignant modern play that I have seen. Also, in spite of underrehearsal and other disadvantages inevitable in work done under such circumstances, in spite, too, of its being a particularly difficult play to 'get over' to an English audience, it was the most effectively performed play of the year.

"Atmosphere is everything, in such a play, and the atmosphere was perfect. This was not because the actors, good as they were, were men of genius, but because the producer was a great artist. The importance of the producer is still not grasped in this country, and yet he is as important as the author and more important than any of the actors. Gordon Craig has been preaching this for years, and now Moscow has sent us a man to illustrate the fact. We are grateful for the presence in London of Comisarjevsky."

REALTY VALUATION CUT IS LEGAL, C. W. BATES SAYS

Former City Counselor Visits Incumbent With Real-Estate Exchange Men to Present Viewpoints.

A delegation of members of the Real Estate Exchange called on City Counselor Caulfield at his office today, to lay before him their viewpoints of the recent ruling of the City Board of Equalization, whereby the assessed valuation of real estate was reduced 10 per cent. The city counselor has been asked by City Assessor Ryder for an opinion on the validity of the board's action.

Charles W. Bates, former city counselor, who accompanied the real estate men, explained to Caulfield he had served some time ago, as a member of the City Board of Equalization, and that, in his opinion, the action of the board was legal. He said it is provided that when an increase in the assessed valuation of property is decided upon by the board, the owner of the property must be notified, but that this does not hold true when a decrease is made. The members of the board also accompanied the real estate men.

IMITATION OF SENATE SESSION TO BE GIVEN

Gathering to Be Staged at City Hall by League of Women Voters.

For the first time since Missouri grew to statehood and removed her capitol from the city, almost 100 years ago, St. Louis will next week be able to sit in at a "session of the State Senate," presided over by a Lieutenant-Governor.

The imitation session, over which Lieutenant-Governor Hiram Lloyd will wield the gavel is being organized by the St. Louis League of Women Voters and will be held in the assembly chamber of the St. Louis Board of Aldermen, Tuesday evening, May 2, for the entertainment and instruction of the delegates to the annual convention of the League of Women Voters that will be held at the Claridge Hotel May 2, 3 and 4.

Some of the Senators will be portrayed by themselves, while prominent St. Louis men and women will take the places of others. Bills will be introduced and acted upon, argued, filibustered, voted on and passed or rejected just as is done at Jefferson City. It is even promised that lobbyists, registered and unregistered, will be on hand for their regular button-holing specialties before and during the session.

Arrangements for the Senate session are in the hands of Mmes. Frederic B. Clarke, C. W. Swingley and Miss Marie Ames. Miss Ames is the author of the idea and is arranging the details. City and State officials will be invited to attend as will members of the Aldermanic Board.

The identity of the men and women who will be Senators-pro-tem, will be announced the latter part of the week.

JUNIOR LEAGUE FOLLIES TO OPEN TOMORROW NIGHT

ler "Mr. 1950," with a chorus of Puritan maidens and reformers.

"Syncopated Sirens."

The second act will open with the "sixteen syncopated sirens in a snappy succession of startling steps," featuring Misses Roberta Lewis, Dorothy McBride, Gloria Geisinger, Elizabeth Mauran, Elizabeth Bemis, Dorothy Pillot, Stephanie Jarvis, Dorothy Stewart, Eunice Hodgman, Mary Scudder Bond, Florence West, Florence Leland, Audrey Faust, Etta Randolph, Elise Garneau and Caroline Tyler.

Miss Annie Laurie Warmack will be the soloist in the "Land of Old Black Joe" and Brashear in "You're Just the Girl I've Been Looking For," and Mrs. George Wendling in "Wondering." Lansden McCandless and Richard Upshaw will be the soloists in the "Spanish Gardens Act," in which a chorus of pretty Spanish flappers will dance. The "Musskomova Mazurka" will introduce the following Russian ballet dancers: Misses Elizabeth Cook, Irene Goddard, Doris Drummond, Lucy Butler, Martha Pittman and Mrs. Alfred Murphy.

In a dance number, "Waltzes of Past and Present," Mrs. Cupples Scudder and Marion Niedringhaus will give a Mid-Victorian waltz as introduced by Lord Palmerston. Waltzes of other days will be given by Miss Elizabeth Mauran and Carl Koehler, and Miss Florence Leland and Clarence Maloy. The Follies will close with the "made-to-order" number, with Mrs. Harry Potter and Arthur Crunden and a big chorus.

The entire gallery for the Follies has been placed at 25 cents a seat to accommodate schools. Tickets are sold at Conroy's, 1100 Olive street.

"MAKING YOUR LETTERS PAY DIVIDENDS" will be discussed at the weekly meeting of the Women's Advertising Club of St. Louis at Hotel Statler tomorrow. The speaker will be Donley D. Lukens, sales letter specialist, and there will be an exhibit of non-dividend bringing letters and of those that bring returns.

If Ruptured Try This Free

Anyone ruptured, man, woman or child, should call at our office at once for free trial of the Rice Method, including the wonderful Lymphol Stimulating Application. Just put it on the rupture and the muscles begin to tighten; they begin to bind together so the opening closes naturally and the need of a support or truss is done away with. Don't neglect to call or send for this free trial. Even if your rupture doesn't bother, what is the use of wearing trusses all your life? Why suffer this nuisance? Why run the risk of gangrene and such dangers from a small and innocent little rupture, the kind that has thrown thousands on the operating table? A host of men and women are daily running such risk just because their ruptures do not hurt nor prevent them from getting around. Follow the example of the thousands who have accepted our great free trial offer and later reported solid and lasting cures. It is certainly a wonderful thing and has aided in the cure of ruptures that were as big as a man's two fists. Try and call today before serious trouble comes. Office hours, 9 to 5 daily, and Monday and Wednesday evenings, 7 to 9; Sunday, 10 to 1. If you cannot call at once, phone Olive 2397 or Central 1561, or write, and free demonstrating trial and book of valuable information about rupture will be mailed you without charge. William S. The Pittsburg heats water AS IT FLOWS

Opening any hot water faucet lights the heating flame. Closing the faucet extinguishes it. That's all you have to do.

Wouldn't it add immensely to your home comfort if you had a system that made hot water as easy to draw as cold? A Pittsburg Automatic will do it! No waiting, fussing or running down-stairs to light a heater when you want hot water up-stairs. Just open a tap and draw as much or as little as you want.

Pittsburg AUTOMATIC GAS WATER HEATERS

It is so completely automatic that you can practically forget where it is. You'll always have hot water at instant call, day or night, and just as clean as the cold water.

A Pittsburg uses fuel only when hot water is actually being drawn. It never wastes a foot of gas, because it stops heating when the hot water faucet is closed.

STEAM LOCOMOTIVE'S PASSING IS PREDICTED

Enginer Tells of Economy With Electric Equipment on C., M. & St. P. Road.

So manifest have been the advantages of electricity as a motive power over steam that authorities of the Chicago, Milwaukee & St. Paul Railroad are convinced it will be a question only of time and financial ability before all railways of the country adopt electrical power. This was stated Thursday night by L. G. Talbot, one of the electrical engineers of that company, in an illustrated lecture before faculty and students of the Washington University School of Engineering, a number of outside electrical interests and railway men of the city, at the university.

Two main lines in the transcontinental system of the C., M. & St. P. Railroad have been electrified. One of these is from Harlowton, Mont., to Avery, Idaho, a distance of 440 miles; the other from Othello to Seattle, Wash., 211 miles. It was pointed out by Talbot that these stretches of line cross four mountain ranges, encountering grades ranging from 0.7 to 2.2 per cent, one section of the latter extending over 21 miles. Two steam locomotives of the most powerful type were required to pull a train of 13 steel cars up this grade at a maximum speed of 19 miles an hour. A single electric locomotive brings the same train up at 25 miles an hour.

Performance of Electric Locomotives.

The electric locomotives used weigh approximately 300 tons and deliver 4300 horsepower. They can handle the heaviest passenger trains at 65 miles an hour in zero weather, a performance that could be duplicated only by three steam locomotives, the lecturer said. "Electric locomotives," Talbot asserted, "can run at full speed for 500 or 600 miles without harmful effects, whereas 150 miles is considered a long run for a steam locomotive, so that the former is dependable for a schedule from 25 to 50 per cent faster than the best possible performance by a steam locomotive.

"Not only do electric locomotives pull trains upgrade twice as fast as steam locomotives," Talbot declared, "but they can safely bring them down grade at 20 per cent more speed, due to regenerative braking, which means turning the electric locomotive's motors into generators and making the velocity of the train develop power. This does away with wheel braking, eliminates hot brakes, jerks, wear and tear on rails, and at the same time delivers back to the power station over 20 per cent of the electricity required to pull the trains up the grades. Thus it is that a heavy freight down a grade will furnish enough electric power through this regenerative braking to pull a passenger train up the same grade. This we have actually demonstrated."

All the mountain districts traversed by the C., & M. & St. P. have now been electrified, Talbot stated, giving it the largest system under that power in the world. The company has 61 electric locomotives, replacing 160 steam ones, and thousands of tons of copper were used, he said, the whole requiring an outlay of millions of dollars, no approximate amount being stated.

ORDERS ALL TRAFFIC TO STOP FOR FIRE ENGINES

Chief O'Brien Instructs Police Captains That Law Must Be Enforced.

Chief of Police O'Brien, in an order issued yesterday, states that police officers hereafter must bring traffic to a stop, wherever they may happen to be, when gongs of fire apparatus are heard. The order mentions that the accident at Skinker road and Forsythe boulevard last Monday night, in which three firemen were killed, would have been avoided if the automobile and street car which were struck by the the truck had stopped.

The order, which is issued to captains of the various police stations, follows:

"You will issue strict instructions to your men that whenever they hear the alarm of approaching fire apparatus they are to immediately station themselves in the middle of the street, wherever they may happen to be, and see that all traffic is brought to a standstill at the curb and remains there until the apparatus has passed.

"Street cars also must be made to obey the law, in coming to a standstill at the approach of fire vehicles and not be allowed to cross the street ahead of the apparatus.

"The lamentable accident of a few days ago, in which three firemen lost their lives in a collision between a fire vehicle, a street car and an automobile, would have been avoided had the automobile and street car complied with the law.

"Another menace to the safety of firemen is the parking of automobiles in the streets at night, without lights, that are required by law. In a short ride the other night the fire chief counted 26 machines parked at curbs without any parking lights whatever."

BEAUTIFUL WOMAN RELATES EXPERIENCE OF HAPPINESS AND HOME

After Suffering Considerably for Years

A WIFE'S OWN ADMISSION

"My marriage, four years ago, was a 'love marriage,' if ever there was one. I had known my intended husband for several years and there had never been a quarrel nor a cross word between us. We had a wonderful honeymoon and the first two years of our married life were the happiest years of my life. I adored my husband and he thought I was the most wonderful and beautiful woman in the world. Then a dozen little things began to fret and annoy me, everything seemed to go wrong. It seemed to me that every remark my husband made was critical or irritating and I caught myself making sharp and sarcastic replies.

Finally it got so that life seemed made up of just a series of petty squabbles. Often we would quarrel and not speak to each other for days at a time. I dreaded in the evening to hear the step that I had so often waited for with joy and longing. My nerves were completely exhausted and worn out; my face became sallow and haggard. I began to have frequent pains in my back and after I had eaten, my meals felt like a lump of lead. If the door slammed or some one startled me I almost jumped out of my skin. Finally, I went to the Doctor and told him my story. I told him that my husband no longer loved me and that his awful temper and terrible scoldings were making me almost an invalid. You can imagine how indignant I was when the Doctor told me it was all my fault.

He said that on account of my own highly nervous condition I had subjected my husband to a constant nervous strain and that the only trouble with either of us was that we were nervous and all run-down. Later all this I found out to be true, because after I regained my health and revitalized my own worn-out, exhausted nerve centers, and the same was done for my husband, I found him to be again the dearest husband in the world—his whole disposition entirely changed.

The above is a hypothetical case, which a physician says may well illustrate thousands which exist today. Homes are wrecked, children ruined, all through exhausted nerve force. Very few people realize the terrible physical and mental tortures often caused by a depletion of the nerve-vital fluid.

In such cases it is worse than foolish to waste your time taking stimulating medicines or narcotic drugs. Your starving nerve cells must have more nerve force, the same as a starving person must have food. This is best accomplished by increasing the activity and power of the nerve-force-making organs, the principal one of which is the blood. This can be quickly and most effectively accomplished by the free use of Nuxated Iron which not only increases the activity of the blood-making organs, but it feeds true, red blood food directly to the blood itself, thereby helping to create millions of new red blood cells. This wonderfully increases the power of the blood to help manufacture new nerve force, the same as enriching the soil increases its power to grow more wheat, corn or oats.

If you are suffering from nerve force exhaustion you can quickly and easily prove to yourself the power of Nuxated Iron to help overcome your condition and make you strong and vigorous again by the following simple test: Make a note of all your symptoms before you start, take Nuxated Iron for two weeks, then go through your list of symptoms again and see how many of them have disappeared and what it has done for you. If you have not obtained the most surprising results, all and even more than you expect, the manufacturers will promptly refund your money.

Detroit Jewel Gas Ranges

See us boil a kettle of water 18 inches above the burner.

See us bake with the oven door open.

See us bake with the gas turned off.

$5.00 down delivers a Jewel to you

During the demonstration—a liberal allowance for your old stove.

FREE
—with every Jewel Range sold during the demonstration—a solid aluminum roaster or a porcelain top kitchen table—you may have your choice.

Aluminum Roaster
The Aluminum Roaster is 18 inches long, 12 inches wide and 8 inches high. It will roast any kind of meat to perfection.

Porcelain Top Table
As illustrated, is enameled in white and has a seamless porcelain top. And there's a roomy drawer for kitchen cutlery.

AN amazing demonstration that is proving, beyond any shadow of doubt, the superiority of Jewel Ranges. Perfect, delicious, flaky baking with the oven door wide open—that's one of the things you'll witness, and it shows how evenly the heat is distributed in the Jewel pattern double-flue oven. And to demonstrate the intense heat of the top burners, a kettle of water will be kept boiling while suspended 18 inches above the burner itself.

A domestic science expert is here to explain the many features that assure you of better, quicker, easier and more economical cooking and baking when you use a Jewel Range.

Under her direction meals are being prepared on the Jewel every day, and you are invited to sample the result.

Remember, this demonstration takes place at our Ninth and Washington store, and continues throughout this week—every day—morning and afternoon. Be sure to see it.

MOST SOCIETIES IN OTHER CITIES FAVOR COMMUNITY CHEST PLAN

87 of 92 Organizations Which Are Members of Chests Reply Favorably to Inquiry.

Welfare organizations in other cities which have had their funds raised by Community Chests are almost unanimously in favor of this method of co-operative money raising, reports made at the meeting of the Community Council Department of Financial Methods yesterday indicate.

Out of 92 organizations which are members of Community Chests in other cities, and which had replied to letters of inquiry from St. Louis philanthropies, 87, as reported at yesterday's meeting by the agencies which received the replies, were in favor of the plan, three were in favor with reservations, and two were opposed. Out of 31 other agencies replying to St. Louis agencies, but not members of the Community Chests in their cities, 19 were in favor, three were in favor with reservations, two were opposed and seven expressed no opinion.

F. Herbert Wells of New York City, who has conducted several Community Chest campaigns, addressed the meeting.

UNORGANIZED SERVICE CAR MEN NOT TO INCREASE 25C RATE

Territory to Be Extended to Westgate Avenue From Hamilton and Delmar Avenues.

No increase above the regular charge of 25 cents is contemplated by the majority of service car drivers who carry passengers between the western part of the city and the downtown districts, despite a raise to 35 cents made recently by a newly formed organization of taxi operators, E. W. Watson of 4630 Enright avenue, said yesterday. He declared he was speaking for the unorganized drivers.

These unorganized men also will extend their territory several blocks west, he said, making Westgate avenue their terminus instead of Hamilton and Delmar avenues, as at present.

FATAL CARD PARTY SHOOTING FOLLOWED MUCH DRINKING

Witness at Inquest Say Player and His Victim Had Consumed Two Quarts of Whisky.

An inquest yesterday into the death of Henry T. Moench, 24 years old, who was shot and fatally wounded on the night of April 14 by his friend and neighbor, Henry Schuster, 41, at Schuster's home, 1218 Pine street, developed testimony from the wives and friends of both men that they were drunk, and that the quarrel had no cause in particular.

James Halloran testified that he, Schuster, Moench and another man had been playing cards in the kitchen of Moench's home, 1218 Pine street, and that they consumed two quarts of whisky. Later, Schuster's wife tried to make him go to bed, and did get him into his room, when Moench followed him, and an argument ensued.

The two men grappled and rolled on the floor, the witnesses said, and a shot was fired. Mrs. Schuster identified the pistol as that of her husband.

MARKETS INDIFFERENT TO GENOA CONFERENCE DEVELOPMENTS

2-MILLION SHARE DAY, THEN TRADE IS MORE ORDERLY

Influences That Underlie Bull Movement in Securities Varied and in Some Respects Antagonistic—Cheaper Money Influence.

By Leased Wire From the New York Bureau of the Post-Dispatch.

NEW YORK, April 22.—The Evening Post, in its copyrighted weekly financial review, says:

"Virtual indifference to the ups and downs of the Genoa conference has been an outstanding feature of the markets of the past week. Many traders and observers are notoriously prone to explain market movements in terms of concrete prices of current news, and the present instance has furnished abundant examples of this general tendency. Such inference, however, can find little to the way of actual justification. Most of the markets have moved with reference to their own individual positions.

"If events at Genoa were to be reflected in financial quarters, surely the foreign exchange market might be expected to prove the most sensitive. Yet the allied exchanges have continued to hang close to the best prices of the past two years and the reactions provoked by the threats of a break up in the conference were relatively insignificant. Sterling, for example, moved within a range of 4 cent. Trading, furthermore, was quiet.

"With the exchanges thus relatively insensitive, an attempt to explain the early week reactions in the securities market on the basis of political news obviously is poorly founded. As a matter of fact, securities have been behaving in a perfectly natural manner. Aggressive buying of stocks, with a large measure of public participation, reached a climax in a two-million share day on Monday. The advances achieved were so substantial that profit-taking was entirely natural. Subsequently activity slackened gradually and a series of fluctuations ensued, which was quite consistent with the passing of the peak of a particular speculative movement.

Influences Are Varied.

"The influences which underlie this bull movement in securities are varied, and in some respects antagonistic. Cheaper money plainly has been one of the most potent sources of strength. Greater activity in the allied automobile and railroad industries has also played a part in stimulating public interest. Some observers even assume that a period of secondary inflation is in prospect. Such a development is, however, most unlikely. Commodity prices, while firm, give little evidence of a sharp general rise, public buying of commodities is unlikely to become extravagant, and the cautious attitude of the Federal Reserve authorities suggest the opposite of an official intent to create a flood of cheap money or to encourage speculation.

"That the markets should ignore Genoa is after all, only what might have been anticipated. For several weeks conservative financial quarters have been skeptical as to the actual immediate results likely to be obtained. Fundamental economic considerations were placed outside the limits of the discussion, the desire to reach an agreement on the part of different participants was questionable, and the reliability of certain of the negotiators was slim. Besides, we are not living in a day of financial miracles.

"Even if the conference ends with little accomplishment, however, it is unlikely to have a depressing effect on the markets and may prove to have been of some service. The mere getting together of such a group, with the attenting publicity as to motives and intentions, will help to clarify world opinion. Certain economic eventualities will be made apparent. And by-products, such as the calling of a conference of the world's central banking authorities to consider the control of gote issues, may lead to real progress.

Steels Strong Saturday.

"In an active short session with volume of sales totaling well over the half million mark stocks displayed a firm tone. Interest was centered chiefly among the industrials and especially the steel shares. Belief that most of the mills had ample reserves of coal led to buying and some of the independents, such as Lackawanna and Midvale made new high prices. Republic, Bethlehem and Cricible also gained. United States Steel was bid up 99¾, but then receded fractionally. The rails were steady, but for the most part neglected with the exception of New Haven. The stock of this road added to its recent improvement by an early gain of a point. Bonds were steady.

"Good demand for European currencies came into the exchange market and prices generally were at higher levels. Volume of business transacted, however, was only fair. Sterling, francs and lire all improved their position, although gains were only moderate. Canadian exchange was a strong feature, the price at 98.12 reaching its previous high level for the year.

"Today was a holiday on the local cotton market, the exchange moving into its new quarters. Trading in wheat was brisk. Following its gain of 2¾ cents yesterday, the May future after opening ¼ lower quickly advanced 1 cents for a new high on the movement. A reduction in the visible supply, increased export demand and reports of further crop damage helped prices.

"The weekly statement of the Clearing House reflects more business activity with an increase in loans of $26,130,000, the total now standing at $4,650,204,000. This contrasts with a reduction last week of $19,041,000. Reserve in Federal Reserve member banks made another gain, increasing by $11,585,00 while net demand deposits rose $32,162,000 and time deposits $11,882,000. United States deposits amounted to $78,412,000 as against $57,618,000 last week. The aggregate reserve total $541,318,000 at which figure excess reserve was $7,613,890, an increase over last week of $4,791,120.

NEW MAJOR UNDERWRITINGS FOR WEEK APPROXIMATED $150,000,000

CONVERSION LOAN IS ANTICIPATED BY FINANCIAL LONDON

British Issue to Deal With Next October's Bond Maturities of £130,000,000 May Mark Top of Rise in Government Securities, Says Writer.

Special Cable to the Post-Dispatch and New York Evening Post.

LONDON, April 22.—Arthur W. Kiddy, editor of Bankers' Magazine and financial editor of the London Morning Post, in financial review today, says:

"The effects of the lower bank rate obviously were discounted and political developments possibly may now play a greater part in determining security movements. It is conceivable, however, that the zenith has not quite been reached, and whether the budget is to be a bull or bear point remains to be disclosed.

"Proceedings at Genoa so far must make America thankful she is not there. The real crux of the problem, namely, the exchanges and interallied debts, has not yet been touched. J. M. Keynes suggests in the Manchester Guardian that British credits to the extent of £50,000 be given Russia if the Bolshevists consent to certain methods of resuming debt service. The idea is scouted by the financial district.

Conversion Loan Expected.

"Good quarters expect the Government shortly to issue a conversion loan to deal with next October's bond maturities of £130,000,000. The loan is likely to be well received, but may mark the top of the rise in Government securities. Trade is quietly improving, but you may disregard press stunts of setting forth sudden and great activity. The Times announces the formation of a new company for the promotion of business in Russia, to be controlled by leading engineering interests, the object being to deal with the securing of foreign contracts. It is still believed that if our trade revives the first effect may be a fall in sterling because of our need of raw materials, and it is also believed that commodity prices may begin to rise.

"In some quarters the absence of a change in your Federal Reserve rate is criticised as inconsistent with your international responsibilities arising out of being the largest holder of the world's gold, although the difficult situation presented by Wall Street speculations is also recognized. Nevertheless, and distinct altogether from international politics, the financial district believes that post-war rehabilitations of international finance and trade calls for the close and intelligent co-operation of all state and central banking institutions.

Interest in Budget.

"Keen interest is displayed in the approaching budget. If it is to be a popular and electioneering budget the income tax and that on beer probably will be reduced substantially, and a portion of the war pensions will be capitalized. If sound finance is to be pursued, there will be no reduction in taxation, but a definite pledge of a further reduction in expenditure on a scale sufficient to justify taxation remission a year hence."

Foreign Exchange and Domestic Money

By Leased Wire From the New York Bureau of the Post-Dispatch.

NEW YORK, April 22.—The Evening Post in its copyrighted weekly foreign exchange market review today, says:

European exchange held firm during the past week, although there were intervals when variations in rates reflected uncertainty over the results at Genoa. At the beginning of the week New York was the only market in which foreign exchange business was transacted, and on that day sterling made its high record of the week, declining selling at $4.42¾. French moved up to a new high for the year on Tuesday when checks on Paris sold at 9.37c. Norway made a new high for the year on Monday when crown checks sold at 19.03c and a new high for the year was made on Denmark on Wednesday. There was a flurry in Chinese silver exchanges on Wednesday when China was a heavy buyer of silver in London. Hongkong advancing from 65.50c to 68.50c, and Shanghai rose from 74.00c to 79.59c, but these advances were reduced by a reaction on Thursday. Business in exchange on Greece was suspended until Thursday, because of confusion over the forced loan by the Government, but trading in drachmas was then resumed.

Good demand for European currencies and late fore exchange market and prices generally were at higher levels. Volume of business transacted, however, was only fair. Sterling, France and Lire all improved their positions, although gains were only moderate. Canadian exchange was a strong feature, prices at 98.12 reaching its previous high level for the year.

The following are Saturday's closing quotations:

Wall Street News and Comment

—SPECIAL DAILY—

By a Special Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

NEW YORK, April 22.—Trading in stock set a still more lively pace in the two hours of business this morning. Transactions approximated the million-share mark, which meant the largest average hourly total of any day so far with the exception of last Saturday.

This enormous turnover was accompanied by generally advancing prices, especially in the industrial list. It was not a wild advance, but rather steady inpour of outside buying orders absorbing the offerings which the Wall Street syndicates and the buyers of last autumn and winter were letting go.

The Bond Market.

Greater New York City tractions were the feature of today's bond market. New high prices for the year were reached by the Third Avenue adjustment 5s, Interborough refunding 5s and Hudson & Manhattan incomes, all rising a point to 2 points above Friday's close. Their strength appeared to reflect fresh confidence that the local transit tangle would be straightened out satisfactorily. Liberty bonds were unchanged, while the foreign Government external loans remained around their top prices with a new high for Chile Government 6s of 1946 at 106. Interest centered again in the domestic railway and industrial bonds. Previous high records were passed in a number of instances. Among them was an advance of over a point in Chicago, Milwaukee & Puget Sound 4s. Most of the gain occurred in the low-priced favorites. New Haven debenture 6s touched 58 for the first time this year and the Chicago & Eastern Illinois 5s of 1951 also got up to that figure. Chile Copper 6s were at their highest just below 91. Public utility and steel bonds kept strong.

Another Bull Market.

The fact that the general price average had reached a new high at the close of business Friday made trading sentiment very bullish as the market opened today. The influence was that the speculative element had got into new high ground and would not be checked, certainly over the week-end. New high records were made all through the industrial list. Stocks like Republic, Midvale and Lackawanna, which had been hanging behind for the last week or more, were taken up. Pullman was the leader of the equipment shares, closely followed, however, by Baldwin locomotive. Columbia Gas, after having several times gone to 85½ and then fallen back, finally got through this critical figure.

Low-Priced Rails.

What interest was taken in the railway group was confined to low-priced issues. The higher-priced dividend payers took little or no part in the general advance. Chicago & Eastern Illinois stocks had a remarkable turn-out movement which have been frequently before that this road is going into a merger with some of the other carriers in the Middle West. Deal talk was also responsible for the rise in Wheeling & Lake Erie. New Haven got up to 25 on very heavy trading.

Stock of Gold Doubled.

It is beginning to be better appreciated that this astonishing investment market is in part, at least, a manifestation of the existing gold inflation. Within the last seven years the stock of gold in this country has exactly doubled. It was $1,876,000,000 on the first of April, 1915; it was $3,750,000,000 on the first of April, 1922. Under the conditions of 24 months ago with production greatly over-extended, the prices were thus astonishingly inflated. It took all addition to the gold supply to support bank credits as they then stood. But the protracted period of liquidation along with the continued import of gold has created a reluctancy in cash resources. One result is seen in the constant lowering of money rates, which even this week reached a new minimum for the season. The other result is the unparalleled demand for investments because the vast surplus capital released by the trade depression of 1921 without which it could no longer find in its former channels. How long this investment movement is likely to go on before meeting a check is a hard question to answer.

The Investment Demand.

The central feature in the markets of the last week has again been the presence of a seeming inexhaustible investment demand. For nearly a year now this movement has been in progress. It has practically wiped out the enormous shrinkage which the war and the subsequent credit strain brought in investment values. Along with this it has readily absorbed new security offerings, greater by far in their total than anything known in a similar length of time in our history. Yet, with all, the supply of funds seeking employment in the security market appears to be as large as ever.

Fifty Cars Ordered.

The Baltimore and Ohio Railroad Company has placed an order for 50 new cars for use in passenger train service, including 40 coaches, 2 dining cars, 3 combination baggage and mail cars and 5 postal cars. This equipment will be constructed by the Pullman Company of Chicago, for delivery late in August or early in September, at an approximate cost of $1,200,000.

Steel Prices Again Advanced.

Nothing very striking has happened in the business situation during the week. The most important occurrence has been the further raising of steel prices.

Weekly Copper Review.

NEW YORK, April 22.—While business has been comparatively quiet, the copper market has shown a generally steady tone during the week, with quotations ranging from about 12¾c for spot and nearby metal to an asking price of 13c for standard issues. Iron was unchanged.

Linseed Oil Market.

LINSEED OIL—In lots of 1 to 4 bbls at $1.03 per gallon for raw and $1.05 for boiled.

Bond Demand Continues.

NEW YORK, April 22.—There was no abatement in the demand for bonds during the week, in which new underwritings, aside from numerous nominal offerings, approximated fully $150,000,000.

Greatest gains were made by many of the rails and utilities. Libby issues and several of the international war offerings reacting moderately from the previous week's record prices. Exceptions to this trend were shown, however, by Mexicans and several of the French group which held or extended previous gains.

RECEIPTS ARE SMALL, CATTLE AND HOGS UP

Combined Run Is Smallest of Season—Sheep Prices Are Lower During Week.

COMPARATIVE RECEIPTS.

	Last Week.	Prev. Week.	Year Ago.
Cattle and calves	12,054	16,974	16,080
Hogs	60,469	67,569	71,582
Sheep	3,856	7,533	5,369
Totals	76,379	92,076	93,031

With combined receipts the smallest of the season, cattle and hogs closed slightly higher and sheep and lambs were lower in the livestock market at the St. Louis National Stockyards the past week. Receipts of cattle and calves at 12,000 head were the smallest for any one week since July, 1921. Quality of steers and yearlings graded medium to common, few good lots being represented. Strong and active selling featured the steer trade every day except Wednesday when a lower trend was indicated. Values were up 25c for the period at the close. The best steers available brought $8 per hundredweight and a spread of $7 to $7.75 caught the bulk of all sold. Butcher yearlings, as steers, showed slight improvement up to Wednesday. The market closed about 15c to 25c higher. The top, $8.25, was paid for both mixed steers and heifers and straight heifers. The bulk of all yearlings moved through a spread of $6 to $7.75. Butcher cows advanced 15c to 25c on an average, the bulk clearing from $4.25 to $6 and best making $6.25 and $6.50. Canner cows at $2.75 to $3.25 and cutters at $3.25 to $3.75, advanced 10c to 15c. Bulls moved up 10c to 25c early, but weakened on the close. Beef classes are quotable at $4.50 to $5 and bolognas at $4 to $4.50. Canners vary from $3 to $3.75. Under light receipts and only fair demand, stock cattle averaged steady and a good clearance was made out of the country. Choice feeders reached $7.40 and the bulk of all sales of various weights moved from $6 to $7, a few selling from $7 to $7.25. Compared with a week ago stockers and feeders are 50c to $1 higher. Veal calves showed improvement for several days, but came in for a 25c to 50c decline Friday, which eliminated much or all of the earlier gains. The closing top was $8.25; bulk, $7.50 to $7.75.

Hog Receipts Fall Off.

Receipts of hogs fell away sharply, totaling only 60,469, compared to 67,569 last week and 71,582 a year ago. Despite this fact, however, prices were on the decline most of the time and the market averaged a dime lower, although late rallies more than offset early declines and the market actually closed 5c to 10c higher, with a top of $10.55, comparing on both days with $10.45 at the close of the preceding week. Bulk of the close of the week sold in a spread of $10.30@10.60. Compared to $10.30@10.85 a week previous. Pigs finished strong to 15@25c higher after a dime lower, although late rallies more than offset early declines and the market averaged a dime lower, although late rallies more than offset early declines and the market actually closed 5c to 10c higher, with a top of $10.55, comparing on both days with $10.45 at the close of the preceding week. Bulk of the close of the week sold in a spread of $10.30@10.60. Compared to $10.30@10.85 a week previous. Pigs finished strong to 15@25c higher after the decline of the week, with bulk of sales $10.50@10.75. Packing sows were 10c to 15c lower; no 600-lb. weights here. Heavy hogs closed 10c to 15c lower, with bulk of sales $10.30@10.50. Medium weights and lights closed 5c to 10c higher, with a top of $10.55, and bulk of sales $10.45@10.55. Packing sows advanced 25c to 35c; heavy feeders, steady. Compared with a week ago: Heavy hogs, 10c to 15c lower; medium weights and lights, 5c to 10c higher; packing sows, 25c to 35c higher; pigs, 15c to 25c higher.

Sheep Run Light.

Receipts at the sheep house totaled but 3856, this being one of the lightest runs on record. Moreover a good proportion of this arrival was billed direct. Receipts the preceding week were 7,533 and a year ago 5369. Shipping demand was cut off entirely and packers and city butchers were practically the only buyers, the market for this reason being slow and prices lower. Compared to the close of the preceding week present prices reflect a decline of 25c to 50 cents on practically all grades. A double deck of good wool lambs arriving on Monday sold to butchers at $15.75, which was 25c higher, but all of this advance evaporated in later sessions and the market dropped to a $15.25 basis late, with best clipped fives, $12.50@13.25. Few spring lambs sold from $15.00@17.50. However, as the spring lamb trade has not reached an important stage as yet and the market for the few coming is catch-as-catch-can with butchers the only buyers. Bulk of the fat wool sheep sold at $8.00, but late in the week a few choice went as high as $8.75. Clipped ewes sold from $7.50@8.00, canners $2.00@3.00 and chappers and bucks from $4.00@4.50.

Horses and Mules.

Horse and mule receipts were again light, the commission offering not exceeding 1000 head. Heavy rains and high water have been responsible for reduced shipments during the past several weeks and April runs are about one-half as large as those that arrived during this previous month. The market ruled active and fully steady with all of the desirable horses and mules. Thin, green and outclassed stuff, however, was not so easily moved. Most of the week's offerings were sold at auction.

Grain prices closed higher on the Merchants' Exchange at the week-end session after a slightly easier opening and early session. Wheat sold at a new high of $1.44⅝. The strength of July wheat was a feature. The Kansas crop report and lack of pressure were factors.

In the local cash grain market red winter wheat was 1c to 3c higher. There was better demand for all grades and clearance was good. Hard winter was nominally 1c to 2c higher. Cash corn was irregular, ½c higher to ½c lower. Offerings were fair to good. Cash oats were steady to ½c higher. Demand was fair.

The wheat and corn markets both opened slightly lower, May at $1.41⅞, July $1.27⅝, September $1.17. May corn 59¾c, July corn 63⅝c and September corn 60c. May sold down a full point from the previous close and then reacted, other futures following the trend. May oats was the natural leader. Liverpool wheat closed ¼c lower. Chicago receipts of cleaners buying distant deliveries of wheat has attracted attention.

The three Northwestern markets combined Saturday had 389 cars of wheat, compared with 495 a week ago and 666 last year. Minneapolis, today receiving 122 cars. Duluth 59 and Winnipeg 208.

Primary receipts of wheat were lighter than a week ago and lighter than a year ago, being 582,000 bushels, compared with 874,000 a week ago and 1,166,000 last year. Special to the Post-Dispatch.

CHICAGO, April 22.—Speculative force was all on the bull side and it mattered little what the news was so long as the buying power was so broad and selling pressure so light. A new high point for the season was established in July, while May sold within less than a cent of the highest point. Strength in Minneapolis May was the reason given for the buying. Minneapolis millers reported better flour demand, one concern selling 20,000 barrels, while local mills reported city buyers alarmed and are coming to market for flour. Kansas State report makes the wheat crop 105,000,000 bushels. A Kansas City newspaper estimates the crop at 117,000,000 bushels. Seaboard advices of good export buying, but Montreal says that elevators are two-thirds filled and no demand. Milling demand for wheat shows little improvement. Shipping sales were 2000 bushels of wheat. The market closed 1¼c to 3¼c higher: May $1.47⅛, July $1.29⅝ to $1.29¾; September, $1.20¼ to $1.20.

Corn was firm with wheat, but after a moderate advance selling appeared. Commission houses were fair buyers, but local professionals sold. There was an urgent demand for corn from exporters and heavy sales are said to have been made out of this and other markets. A cargo of No. 2 yellow corn sold at 3½c over May, c.i.f. Buffalo. The advance shut off the domestic demand and sales of only 15,000 bushels were reported. The market closed ⅜c to ½c higher. May, 61⅞@62c; July, 63¾@65⅜c; September, 67⅜@67½c.

Oats were lower early, but when wheat rallied shorts rushed to cover and prices scored moderately. The demand for cash oats was light and sales of 85,000 bushels were reported. The market closed ¼c higher to ¼c off: May 38⅝@38¾c; July, 41c; September, 42¼@42⅝c.

Provisions were higher. There was a better investment demand in evidence. Outside longs took profits on the bulge. Pork closed 15c higher, lard 15c to 17½c higher and ribs 7½c to 10c higher.

Cash sales of provisions were: May wheat: $1.46¾ to $1.45¾; July, $1.26⅝ to $1.27⅜. September, $1.18⅛ to $1.18⅜. May corn, 64¼c; July, 64⅝c to 64¾c; September, 66¼c to 67c. May oats, 36c to 37⅜; July, 40¾c to 40½c, and September, 42¼c.

CHILD DIES AFTER WIND BLOWS SCHOOL HOUSE OVER A FENCE

Only One of Several in Building to Suffer Serious Injury Near Springfield, Mo.

SPRINGFIELD, Mo., April 22.—Two weeks ago a terrific windstorm struck a small school in the country near here and carried away building, teacher, pupils and all. One little girl was injured so seriously that she died the next day, but although the schoolhouse was carried nearly 100 feet before it was dropped on the other side of a fence, none of the other children suffered more than minor bruises and scratches. Friends of Mrs. Elizabeth Eaves, the teacher, believe her heroism saved the lives of other children.

When the storm struck the vicinity of the school, Mrs. Eaves suspended studies and rushed to a door which had blown open, at the same time ordering the larger children in the room to close the windows and bolt other doors. The others she directed to lie on the floor, it is said.

With a roar the gale lifted the building and its prisoners from the foundation, carried them through the air over a fence and set them down about 20 yards away.

All the children except little Eva Nall were on the floor when it dropped. Eva was found several feet away, internally injured. She was carried to a nearby farmhouse where medical aid was summoned. Later she was taken to a Springfield hospital, where she died the next day.

OFFERS FARM, RENT FREE, TO THOSE FLOOD LEFT HOMELESS

David Podolsky, Laborer, Says 160-Acre Place Will Accomodate Two Families.

A 160-acre farm rent free for a year and at small rent for the second year is offered to families driven from their homes by the flood by David Podolsky, 54 years old, a laborer, of 2119 Carr street.

The farm is two and a half miles from Mineral Point, Mo., 60 miles south of St. Louis on the Iron Mountain railroad. Podolsky says it will easily accommodate two families. The house is frame, of five rooms. Water is supplied by a natural spring. About 100 acres are under cultivation, and the rest is in timber. Podolsky has a family of eight children, several of whom are employed. He has been in this country 36 years, and is an American citizen. One son served overseas in the world war. He owns his home on Carr street and also bought the farm out of his savings. He says the taxes on the farm, which became vacant this spring, amout to about $30, and this he would expect to be covered by the second year's rent. He has a Kinloch telephone, Central 778R.

NEW PLAYS AND FILMS AND NEWS OF STAGE AND SCREEN PLAYERS

Two Women Playwrights' Adventure Into Comedy, With Sad Consequences

Gladys Unger's "The Goldfish" and Frances Nordstrom's "Lady Bug" Appear on Broadway—De Wolf Hopper's Revue.

By Leased Wire From the New York Bureau of the Post-Dispatch.

NEW YORK, April 22.

A THREE-ACT comedy, "The Goldfish," by Gladys Unger, starring Marjorie Rambeau, was produced Monday night at Maxine Elliott's Theater. "The Goldfish" is satire shot from a blunderbuss. Its comic phrases march along with a tread as heavy as that of the great stone figures in Dunsany's "Gods of the Mountains." It is a play of the sort in which the possibility of making "Goethe" into "Gertie" is not enough for the author. She must go on and have a fling at "Goitre."

Miss Unger's play tells the story of a young woman, once a saleslady, who leaves her husband, a song-plugger, in search of social advancement. He is superseded by a dull, middle-aged business man, who in turn gives way to a captain of industry.

Left a widow, our heroine determines on a Duke, and soon has him won. Suddenly she realizes that this is mere tinsel. None of it compares to the love of a good man. Putting on the simple little frock which she wore in the days of her happy poverty, she summons the first husband. With a glorified smile she falls out of the Social Register and back into his arms.

Takes It Seriously.

THE worst of it is that Miss Unger has taken a great deal of the preposterous story quite seriously. Nothing is done by halves. When the playwright resolves to be funny, all her back and shoulders go into the effort.

Miss Rambeau, as the heroine, accepts her lot bravely and employs methods of great breadth. There are just a few amusing snatches, but even these suggest the patter of an energetic vaudeville act rather than scenes from a comedy. If subtlety of any kind should chance to poke its nose into this play, it would be crushed within an inch of its life. Fortunately, no brutal experiment of the kind has been attempted.

Wilton Lackaye plays the part of a Russian Count, and others in the cast are Lucille Laverne, Norma Mitchell, Wilfred Lyttel and Robert E. Haines.

Farce Attacks "Fads."

ALSO on Monday night a farce, "Lady Bug," written by Frances Nordstrom, was presented at the Apollo Theater. The cast includes John Cumberland, Marie Nordstrom, Lilyan Tashman, Leila Frost and Leon Gordon.

"Lady Bug" is explained by the author as being a farce based upon the prevalence of fads and reforms. As acted, it appeared that Spiritualism and Christian Science were foremost among the fads and reforms Miss Nordstrom had in mind.

The "Lady Bug" is a wife who brings complications upon her home and friends by her desire to be of service to unfortunate human beings, and then wriggles out of all her difficulties by preaching the doctrines, "Hold the thought!" and "If we think it is not so, then it is not so."

Stage a Bogus Homicide.

THE difficulties arise when the wife, as a member of "The Second Chance League," brings into her home a murderer just released from Sing Sing prison. This throws husband and friends into an uproar, so that the thing for the men to do is to find some means of being rid of the slayer.

Having conspired together, they pay the convict to pretend that he has killed the family butler, in the hope that the wife will then throw him out. But after the trick murder has been committed, she reveals that the man she brought home was no murderer at all, but a poor fellow from the streets. The real slayer had killed a guard and been returned to prison.

The evening is filled out by the usual criss-cross of schemes and lies on the part of the husbands to conceal their ruse, and the recurrent rantings of Miss Nordstrom on the subject of spiritism as a means of proving each turn of events to be just and proper.

De Wolf Hopper Disports Himself Gaily in "Some Party."

THERE is something for everyone in "Some Party," a new revue which was presented by and with De Wolf Hopper last Saturday night at Jolson's Fifty-ninth Street Theater. It is a mixture of musical comedy, dramatic sketches and minstrelsy. De Wolf Hopper himself is a blackface interlocutor, an operatic star, Uncle Tom, a plain monologist and member of a barnyard quartet, all in one evening. And De Wolf Hopper, if you please, was never better.

In the cast are Lew Dockstader, Nanette Flack, Jed Prouty, Herbert Waterous, Sam Ash, Scott Welsh, Jefferson de Angelis, William B. Mack and William Courtleigh.

A minstrel first part is given over largely to the funniness of the end-man, Mr. Dockstader, and a sort of "Passing Show" effect in which elegantly gowned women march in singing the principal song hits from the various musical plays of the season. The minstrel men sing sentimental ballads.

A burlesque of "Uncle Tom's Cabin" is seen, with Mr. Hopper as Uncle Tom and Sam Ash as Little Eva. Simon Legree is a tenor. This is called "Uncle Tom's Saloon."

Following this is a serious playlet, written by William Gillette, called "Among Thieves," acted by Mr. Mack, Mr. Courtleigh and Miss Percy Haswell. Mr. Mack's impersonation of an ex-bandit exiled for his health to Arizona is particularly effective.

There is a catchy little song number called "Rustic Ann," sung by the best vocalists of the crew in rural get-up, which is amusing, and when Lew Dockstader comes on with his portable radio set and communicates with "Mike" and "Warren" with the greatest nonchalance, the fun is uproarious.

It all ends with a satirical musical act built around traditional grand opera methods, conducted by Gus Kerker, its composer.

Musically, "Some Party" is now and then delightful.

"Sally" Journeys to Boston.

THE Ziegfeld musical comedy "Sally," with Marilyn Miller and Leon Errol, brought to a close tonight its remarkable run of nearly two years at the New Amsterdam Theater. The company opens an engagement of indefinite length Monday night in Boston. * * * After an absence of two weeks on account of illness, Frank Craven has resumed the role of Thomas Tucker in "The First Year."

Stanford Lodge, on Staten Island, which was presented to Laura Burt, an English actress, by Ellen Terry, Sir Henry Irving and other distinguished players, was sold at auction, with all its contents and valuable souvenirs, on Wednesday. Miss Burt is returning to England to live. She played with Sir Henry Irving in "Dante," and starred with her husband, the late Henry Stanford, in "The Christian," "Peg o' My Heart," "Dorothy Vernon," and Shakspearean repertory.

The Metropolitan Opera Co. closed its season tonight with a popular price production of "La Forza del Destino," with Manuel Salazar and Mmes. Peralta and Gordon in the principal roles. Anna Pavlowa and her ballet will take possession of the opera house next week.

Reinhardt Coming to America.

MAX REINHARDT, the famous German producer, is reported to have signed a contract to visit the United States this summer, for the purpose of supervising an American production of "The Mysterious Affair," now current at the Duchess Theater in Berlin. * * * Charles Dalton, recently leading man with Mrs. Fiske, has been engaged by the Theater Guild to play the role of a newspaper owner in a forthcoming production of "What the Public Wants."

In regard to the Theater Guild's presentation of "Back to Methuselah," George Bernard Shaw has written to the management: "The production is a great score for the American theater; I have never dreamed of proposing it in London."

WHAT THEY ARE DOING IN THE MOVIE STUDIOS

Russell Muth, a cameraman, narrowly missed dropping into the crater of Vesuvius when the airplane from which he was taking close-ups of the volcano went dead right above the center of the burning pit. Fortunately the plane passed over the crater and hit a tree outside. Muth was injured.

"The Four Horsemen of the Apocalypse," the photoplay from Blasco Ibanez's novel, was shown for the first time in Spain, early in April of this year.

Robert Edeson, the actor, says costume plays are gaining in favor among movie fans. "We are all a bit fed up on love among the oak-top desks. Perhaps it is the second reaction from the war. Our first impulse was to cast aside regalia forever. Now comes the inevitable return swing of the pendulum. We want back our color." And as a proof of his claim he cites the "Prisoner of Zenda," "The Three Musketeers" and "Orphans of the Storm."

"Omar the Tentmaker" is soon to be seen on the screen with Guy Bates Post in the leading role.

Dustin Farnum commutes from his home on Catalina Island to the studio at Los Angeles by motor boat.

Chaplin in "Pay Day" Is Leading Novelty of Dull Film Week

Missouri Will Have Repertoire Week, Reviving Famous Pictures of Past Seasons—"Orphans of the Storm" to Remain.

Charlie Chaplin's latest comedy, "Pay Day," is the feature of the week at the New Grand Central and West End Lyric Theaters. This is the famous comedian's second production of the year. In the cast are the star's brother, Sydney Chaplin, and Edna Purviance.

This picture is proclaimed as one of which Chaplin was author, director and star. It was completed just before he started on his recent visit to Europe.

In "Pay Day" Charlie is seen as a hard-working laborer, who when late for work attempts to pacify his boss by offering him a lily. He is first a ditch digger and later a bricklayer. His comic handling of the bricks is said to be up to his best high standards as a low comedian. Some of the funny episodes occur when after receiving his pay he "holds out" part of it from his wife and goes out with "the boys."

On the program also is a farce-comedy picture entitled "My Lady Friends," which is said to be a close second to the Chaplin film in the laugh derby.

Departing from its usual policy the Missouri Theater this week will run a different picture each day. This is a rivival of some of the famous pictures which have been seen here in the past, the schedule being as follows:

Today: "Male and Female," with Gloria Swanson, Bebe Daniels, Thomas Meighan and Freckles Barry.

Tomorrow: "Behold My Wife," with Milton Sills, Elliott Dexter.

Tuesday: "Dr. Jekyll and Mr. Hyde," with John Barrymore.

Wednesday: "Don't Change Your Husband," with Gloria Swanson and Elliott Dexter.

Thursday: "On with the Dance," with Mae Murray.

Friday: "Old Wives for New," with Elliott Dexter, Theodore Roberts and Wanda Hawley.

"Orphans of the Storm," with Lillian and Dorothy Gish in the leading roles, goes into its second week at the Liberty. This is a big and spectacular picture, directed by David Wark Griffith. It is a film version of "The Two Orphans," with stirring events of the French Revolution for a background.

The week at the Delmar and Criterion opens with "Conceit," a Selznick picture, with Maurice Costello in the cast after a long absence from the screen.

Leiber, Foys and the Marmeins at Orpheum

FRITZ LEIBER, favorably remembered here as Robert B. Mantell's handsome and brilliant leading man during several seasons, will pay his first St. Louis visit this week since he blossomed out as an independent star and manager. At the Orpheum, supported by his own company, he will present the oration scene from "Julius Caesar," his ringing delivery of which, some years ago at the American Theater, still lingers in the memory.

After withdrawing from the Mantell troupe, Mr. Leiber gave several seasons of Shakesperean repertory in New York, and won widespread praise as one of the best actors in these roles now on the English-speaking stage. Still in the thirties, he was for three seasons with the Ben Greet players; then he acted with Julia Marlowe; and later played nine seasons with Mr. Mantell in such parts as Iago, Othello, Laertas, Mercutio and Anthony.

The Orpheum bill also includes Eddie Foy and his "Seven Little Foys," nearly all of whom are little no longer; and the Marmein sisters, Miriam and Irene, who rank among the highest class dancers in the varieties. The Foy family appear in an offering called "The Foy Fun Revue," which has to do with the endeavors of a father of moderate means in providing a meal at a restaurant for a septet of hungry children. The Marmeins will be assisted by Ruth Marr, soprano.

Also on the bill are Joe Laurie, a diminutive comedian, in "What Do I Care?"; George Austin Moore, with songs and stories; Al Raymond and Tom Schram, in "A Syncopated Cocktail"; and Snell and Vernon in "An Artistic Diversion."

Columbia, Empress, Gayety.

CLIFF BLANCHARD, lately featured in Arthur Hammerstein's production of "Katinka," heads the program at the Columbia for the first half of the week, with an assortment of songs and patter, and a burlesque on that vaudeville illusion, "Sawing a Woman in Two." Harry Bond and a troupe will present a comedy sketch called "Our Wife;" a trio known as "Three Boys" will offer "pep, harmony and jazz;" Mayen Pearl and a company are to present a dance novelty; and there will be Hector, "the wonder dog." The film feature will be "Poverty and Riches," a photoplay version of Leroy Scott's story, "The Mother." Havemann's animal act, with lions, tigers and leopards, will lead the new bill opening Thursday.

Larry Reilly, an Irish actor and singer, leads off at the Empress with a playlet of County Mayo, "The End of the Road," in which he will be assisted by Mary Hampton and a cast of Irish players. Others listed are Dunbar and Turner, dancing comedians; Mabel Harper, with songs and comedy; El Cota, xylophone performer; Swan and Swan, jugglers; and Shaw's dog act. "Wife Against Wife" is the film offering.

Jack Reid, a former St. Louisan and one of the leaders on the burlesque stage, comes to the Gayety this week at the head of "The Record Breakers" company. He will give an Irish impersonation, and a study of a drug addict, besides numerous songs. He will hold a reception on the stage after every performance.

St. John Ervine's New Guignol Thriller

LONDON, April 22.

THE most thrilling item in the new Grand Guignol program at the Little Theater is one that was first produced many years ago, but wears remarkably well. It is "At the Telephone," by Andre de Lorde and Charles Foley, and many will remember its story—that of the husband who hears the murder of his wife by robbers over the telephone. He is 30 miles away, but he can hear every sound without being able to avert the final catastrophe. The gruesome little piece is in very competent hands. Mr. Franklin Dyall gives a remarkable rendering of the husband's part, and Miss Sybil Thorndike and Miss Barbara Gott also act admirably.

Of the new pieces, Mr. St. John tells a dramatic little story of an ill-assorted couple—a sister who has lost her husband and son in the war, and a brother who has just completed a particularly deadly invention, which is to make war even more horrible. The brother is immersed in the wars of the future. The sister is wrapped up in the war that has just passed. He tells her to take a "broad-minded" view of war, and she answers that, as a bereaved wife and mother, her view is bound to be narrow.

At length she loses all control of herself. For the sake of future sons and husbands, she begs him to destroy the papers relating to his deadly invention. He answers triumphantly that there are no papers. The plans are all in his head. She begs him to forget them. He refuses—and she kills him. Miss Sybil Thorndike plays the bereaved wife and mother, Ervine's "Progress" is the best. It and obtains a great success. Mr. Lewis Casson makes the utmost of the part of the brother.

After Tschaikowsky.

IN "The Nutcracker Suite," by Mr. E. Crawshay-Williams, the author slightly over-reached himself, and after a brilliant first act the second became a little ludicrous just at the time when it should have been inspiring most terror. It tells a story of a faithless wife (Miss Sybil Thorndike), who, with her lover (Mr. Ian Fleming), is lured by her husband (Mr. Franklin Dyall), to a lonely inn, of which he has become the temporary owner.

They are ushered into a suite,

New York Theaters in New Burst of Activity

NEW YORK, April 22.

NO fewer than seven events in the theaters are promised for next week, including a benefit for Rose Coghlan and a new play by Eden Philpotts, the popular English novelist. The schedule follows:

Sunday.

Apollo—A benefit performance for Rose Coghlan, with stars of stage and screen as entertainers, among them Fanny Brice, William Collier, Eddie Cantor, Charlotte Greenwood, Nora Bayes, Jack Hazzard, Florence Moore, Blanche Ring, Julia Sanderson, Joseph Santley, Peggy Wood, Van and Schenck, Fay Marbe, Joseph Cawthorne and Belle Story.

Monday.

Klaw—"The Shadow," a drama by Eden Philpotts, with Helen MacKellar in the principal role.

Times Square—"The Charlatan," a "dramatic novelty," by Leonard Praskins and Ernest Pascal, with Fania Marinoff and Olive Windham in the cast.

Greenwich Village—"Creditors," by Strindberg, as the second offering of a repertory season given by Ellen Van Volkenburg and Maurice Browne.

Tuesday.

Belmont—"La Rafale," by Henri Bernstein, beginning the French Theater Company's limited season of plays in the French language.

Wednesday.

Frazee—"The Night Call," a mystery play by Adeline Hendricks, with Helen Lowell, Dodson Mitchell, Brandon Hurst, Elsie Rizer and Nellie Burt.

Astor—"Bronx Express," originally a Russian play by Ossip Dymwo, now adapted to the American style by Owen Davis and produced by Mr. and Mrs. Coburn.

Largeny," which is still running at the Republic, is to be produced in London late next month, with Pauline Frederick in the leading role and an English cast. * * * William Leonard is performing the feat of appearing in two plays every night. He plays Ned Scoofy during the first two acts of "The National Anthem," at Henry Miller's Theater, and then hustles over to the Belmont to enact Edgar Loubet in the last two acts of "Montmartre."

Now Booth Tarkington is to write a play for Will Rogers. Florenz Ziegfeld promises to produce it, and Rogers vows that he's no cowboy if he can't "ride the critter." * * * Frank Moulan, who is to head the cast of the St. Louis Municipal Opera this summer, has resigned from the cast of "Just Because," and has been succeeded by Johnnie Fields."

"Margot" on the Stage.

SOME details have reached here concerning a one-act play, "Me and My Diary," which Grace George is using for a curtain-raiser to "The Exquisite Hour," in Chicago. It is a skit by Gertrude E. Jennings on the subject of Margot Asquith and her biography. Miss George plays Mrs. Asquith—or, rather, Lady Adela Boxgrove, as the character is renamed.

Her printed indiscretions cause one person after another to threaten and upbraid her. A Government official telephones to chastise Lady Adela for betraying a state secret. A parlor maid arrives to say that she has been libeled. Then comes a friend in a rage because Lady Adela has revealed a boudoir secret. Still another appears, but to complain of being left out of the book. And then arrives a former suitor to announce calmly that he is happily married. This is a blow to Lady Adela's vanity. The playlet is described as being light and not unamusing.

Carrol McComas, who has completed an engagement of two seasons in "Miss Lulu Bett," has been signed to create the leading role in Myron C. Fagan's play, "A Romance of Youth," which goes into rehearsal the middle of next month.

Repertory Season in Far West.

SAN FRANCISCO is to have a repertory season this summer, with Broadway performers and new plays. The series will begin on May 1 at the Columbia Theater, with "Her Friend the King," a joint effort of A. E. Thomas and Harrison Rhodes, in which both Henry Miller and Blanche Bates will appear. The second play will be Arthur Richman's "The Awful Truth," with Bruce McRae and Ruth Chatterton in the leading roles. A third attraction, a comedy by Thomas Buchanan, is as yet unnamed.

In the company, besides those already mentioned, will be Geoffrey Kerr, A. G. Andrews, Marguerite St. John, Annette Westbay, Paul Harvey, Bert Leigh, Cora Witherspoon, Louise Mackintosh, Elmer Brown and George Hadden.

would not photograph well for the movies. Although the girl might be very beautiful, in most cases the resulting photograph would not do her justice. The black of her hair and eyes against the whiteness of her dress would present a contrast too great for the camera. Skillful make-up and a dress that would not be too white would have to be employed to obtain satisfactory results. To appear white on the screen, clothes must be pink or yellow.

Over 10,000 Westerners have signed a petition asking Bill Hart to continue making Western pictures. "Frairie Jack" Edwards, a cowpuncher, has been getting signatures to this petition all winter. ST. JOHN ERVINES NEW THRILLER which the husband—in compliment to the affection of his wife for Tschaikowsky's Casse-Noisette Suite—has named "The Nutcracker Suite," only to find that they are imprisoned. The husband then appears at the window, and after a good deal of unnecessary bandinage, the ceiling begins to descend toward the floor. It is really a "Nutcracker Suite." The room has been constructed after the manner of the cell in Poe's "The Pit and the Pendulum," and as the curtain falls the lovers ahe just about to be crushed to death. Somehow, although well acted, the piece does not quite "get over."

The remainder of the program is made up of "Amelia's Suitors," a clever little burlesque of an old-fashioned farce, by Mr. H. F. Maltby, and "Colombine," a pretty, but rather prolix, playlet in rhyme, by Mr. Reginald Arkell.

Stravinsky's "Ragtime."

AFTER the film Theodora, now being shown at Covent Garden, there was given the other night a new series of divertissements by M. Leonide Massine and other members of the Russian ballet, which appeared some weeks ago at the Alhambra Theater. The dancers were given a great welcome by the large audience, especially M. Massine himself and Mme. Lydia Lopokova in their dance duets to music of Cimarosa and Stravinsky's "Ragtime." The latter seemed to amuse the house very much, in spite of the little invention shown in discovering movements to which the music would appear appropriate. One soon tired of the simple, if not childish, idea of the mechanical figure.

Mmes. Sokolova and Ursela Morton and M. Wojcikowski were the soloists in the "Czardas," to music of Brahms. Here the dancing, one thought, was too sophisticated altogether for the musical idea. Some amiable melodies of Johann Strauss were danced to in a happier style, and Miss Ninette de Valois may be mentioned in her trifle "cupidon," to music of Gounod.

Mr. Robert Courtneidge withdrew "Paddy the Next Best Thing," tonight, from the Savoy Theater, after its abnormal run of more than 800 performances. It will be followed at once by Mr. Denys Grayson's and Mr. Lyn Harding's production of the late Mr. Haddon Chambers' last play, "The Card Players," in which Mr. Godfrey Tearle and Mr. C. V. France are to play the leading parts.

OUTDOOR CLUBS TO FORM NATIONAL FEDERATION HERE

Convention of Representatives of Various Recreational Organizations to Open Tomorrow.

Several hundred delegates are expected to attend a convention to be held at Hotel Statler, beginning tomorrow and continuing through Thursday, at which the National Federation of Outdoor Clubs will be formed. The delegates will be representatives of various outdoor clubs of the United States and others who are interested in outdoor recreation.

In invitations being sent out by the St. Louis convention, Publicity and Tourists' Bureau, it is pointed out there is no centralized agency for all of the clubs at present, and that this can be brought about with the federation. Some men who are nationally known for their work in conserving and increasing facilities for outdoor recreation, will attend the meeting.

WENNERSTEN'S BOHEMIAN BLEND "M-H"

Wennersten's "M-H" is the new name for Malt-Hop, the Home Food Beverage. We found it necessary to call our product by our own name—WENNERSTEN'S—because people, as a rule, confused the coined name MALT-HOP with the Malt and Hops of some one else's manufacture. The new name assures you of receiving the genuine, which has been on the market for more than twenty-five years.

Now sold at pre-war prices: ½-gallon size, per can 60c, 6 cans $3.50, $6.00 per dozen; 1-gallon size, per can $1.00, 6 cans $5.50, $10 per dozen—light or dark. Berg's Best No-Boil, per can $1.25, 6 cans $7.00, $13.00 per dozen.

FALL CAMPAIGN THEME AT DINNER OF GRIDIRON CLUB

President, Vice President, Cabinet Members and Other Notables at Frolic at Washington.

LANDIS APPEARS WITH HOT-WATER BOTTLE

He Explains It Is for Use in Case Those Paying His Salary on Baseball Job Get Cold Feet.

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, April 22.—The Gridiron Club took the approaching political campaign for the theme of the frolic at its annual spring dinner tonight and for three hundred odd distinguished guests provided fun at the expense of public men and affairs.

President Harding, Vice President Coolidge, all the members of the Cabinet, Speaker Gillett, many members of both houses of Congress, the diplomatic corps, owners and editors of newspapers and many others prominent in business, financial and professional life sat at the guest tables.

When the dinner bell rang in old-fashioned style, President Harding, escorted by James P. Hornaday, the new president of the club and Washington correspondent of the Indianapolis News, led the procession into the banquet hall.

Landis With Hot Water Bottle.

Former Judge Landis was introduced with an appropriate parody on an old song, "Take Me Out to the Ball Game." Judge Landis explained that a contrivance around his neck was a hot water bottle which he always carried for use "in case the fellows who are paying me my salary get cold feet."

Between each course of the menu a one-minute skit was presented. One of these was the discovery of an explosive bomb, which, when opened, proved to be the bonus bill. Another centered upon George Harvey, Ambassador to Great Britain, impersonated by a club member, who demanded an opportunity to make a speech.

"President Harding," remarked President Hornaday, "is perfectly willing to let George make all the speeches he wants at a Gridiron dinner, for reporters are never present."

Rip Van Winkle Awakened.

Rip Van Winkle appeared and was awakened from his sleep with great difficulty.

"Has the Fordney tariff bill passed the Senate?" he asked.

"No," was the reply.

"Well," he remarked, yawning, "I might as well go to sleep again for another 20 years."

There was a laugh when omission of any reference to the coal strike was made the subject of an inquiry.

"Well," explained a member, "we always have a dinner in April and at the April dinner we always have a coal strike skit. It has become such a chestnut that this year we cut it out."

Letters were read which had been received in answer to this advertisement: "Wanted—A leader for the Republican party in Congress; experience unnecessary. Address the Gridiron Club, Washington, D. C."

Replies to Advertisement.

Wilbur Glenn Voliva, successor to Alexander Dowie, was alleged to have written: "I have proved that the earth is flat with a solid dome. So is the Republican party. Will take leadership." Charlie Chaplin suggested his availability as a distributer of pie. Henry Ford offered his services because, as his letter asserted, "I am an expert on rattles."

Elmer Dover, Assistant Secretary of the Treasury, was presented with the ax which Stevenson made famous, the presentation being made by a delegation in Indian costume.

"Take it, Paleface," said the bearer of the ax, "and may the Great White Father glory in your nerve."

References to Fall Campaign.

As the theme of the dinner was the approaching political campaign, the presence of Chairman Adams and Chairman Hull gave additional zest to the jolts impartially given both parties. The political skit was a combination of songs and dialogue, presented by club members seated around a stove in the "Squash Center Cash Grocery."

"When the women really begin to vote," remarked one of the farmers, with tears in his voice, "we will have to buy all of our tobacco from a bootlegger."

A song deploring the retention of the Democratic postmaster and tearfully pleading "for the jobs that we are needing," was sung with much spirit. Several pertinent—or impertinent—inquiries were referred to the man in the moon.

"Passing the Buck."

"Why the man in the moon?" someone asked.

"Well," was the reply, "as President Harding passes the buck to Congress and Congress passes the buck to President Harding, we have to pass the buck to the man in the moon."

Congress was dealt with in a parody on the old song, "Oh, Dear, What Can the Matter Be?"

Two new members were received into the club. They were Grafton S. Wilcox of the Washington Bureau of the Chicago Tribune, and Charles G. Ross, Washington correspondent of the St. Louis Post-Dispatch.

MUSEUM ACQUIRES RARE DEL PIOMBO PAINTING

Renaissance Portrait of a Musician Comes From Richtenberger Collection at Paris.

A recent notable accession to the collection of the City Art Museum is a fine Renaissance portrait in the Venetian manner by the distinguished painter, Sebastiano del Piombo (1485-1547), pupil of Giovanni Bellini and of Giorgione and later the associate of Michael Angelo and rival of Raphael. The painting comes from the well-known collection of Eugene Richtenberger of Paris, by whom it was thought to be a portrait of the celebrated lute player, Alberto della Ripa, Sir of Carois, a native of Mantua who removed to France and was pensioned by Francis I until his death about 1544. The supposition that the subject was a noted musician is supported by the fact that he has been depicted holding a musical instrument, a sort of guitar. The slender, graceful hands, which the artist has painted with great care, and the thin, nervous face, would seem to point to the same conclusion. He is dressed in a black tunic with light gray sleeves and a black hat. On the left hand is a ring set with agate and in the right hand he carries a small stick of ivory. About his neck is a gold chain supporting the apron which protects his coat. A rich green brocade forms the background to the figure. The entire picture is invested with the deep, luminous color, the soft, vibrant atmosphere, which were the distinguishing features of Venetian painting as developed under the brilliant leadership of Giorgione. Joined with this rare tonal quality, the portrait exhibits the most finished and consummate craftsmanship and an unusual feeling for the personal and individual character of the sitter. So marked is the latter quality that the spectator almost feels himself in the living presence of this elegant and refined musician whose life was an integral part of the splendor of the Italian Renaissance.

Life Story of Painter of Interest.

The life story of the painter, Sebastiano del Piombo, as related by the contemporary art historian and critic, Vasari (1512-1594), is of interest and throws much light upon the works of an artist who is now little known for the rather astonishing reason that almost all of his more brilliant paintings seem to have been ascribed to contemporaries who were more popular with succeeding generations. Among the painters to whom his works have been erroneously assigned are Raphael, Lorenzo Lotto, Bronzino and others. Modern critical research is doing much, however, to restore Sebastiano to his rightful place as one of the foremost artists of the Italian Renaissance, whose work, particularly in portraiture, rivals that of the great geniuses of the period.

Vasari relates that Sebastiano was an accomplished musician, playing especially well upon the lute. He acquired the first principles of painting from Giovanni Bellini; but when Giorgione brought to Venice his more brilliant and colorful style of painting, Sebastiano straightway became his pupil. His work in the manner of Giorgione soon attracted much attention and he was invited to Rome by Agnostino Chigi, reputed to be the wealthiest man on the Italian peninsula. In Rome he became the intimate associate of both Raphael—of whom he painted a portrait—and of Michael Angelo, with whom he collaborated in the production of many paintings, the latter supplying the cartoons in whole or in part. Under the influence of these masters his style underwent considerable change, but he retained his magnificent Venetian coloring.

Vasari's Account Discredited.

Modern critics discredit Vasari's account of how Michael Angelo was induced to supply Sebastiano with designs in the hope that by a combination of his own grand style of drawing with the Venetian color of Sebastiano, the work of Raphael might be eclipsed. But there is no doubt whatever that Michael Angelo supplied the drawings for Sebastiano's impressive painting of the Resurrection of Lazarus, which was executed in competition with Raphael's famous composition of the Transfiguration. Both were painted for the same patron, the Cardinal de Medici, afterwards Pope Cement VII, who during his pontificate showed his appreciation of Sebastiano's work by awarding him the office of Frate del Piombo. This was the source from which our artist derived his name Sebastiano del Piombo, his true name being Sebastiano Luciani. Following his investiture with the remunerative sinecure of applying the leaden seals to the papal diplomas, Sebastiano, strange to relate, lost all interest in the art at which he had toiled so long and successfully and discontinued painting almost entirely. Though he executed many religious and decorative compositions, he was probably best in portraiture. In speaking of one of his portraits, Vasari is especially laudatory: "The head and hands of this portrait are indeed a sort of miracle, to say nothing of the admirable manner in which the artist has depicted the velvets, linings, satins and other portions of the picture. Sebastiano did certainly surpass all others in the painting of portraits; in that branch of art no one has ever excelled the delicacy and excellence of his work." Though present-day criticism will not agree to the rank which Vasari has accorded him, the portrait by Sebastiano which the museum has acquired is of a quality to justify in many ways the enthusiasm of the sixteenth century writer.

"MUSIC WEEK" OPENS TODAY WITH A BAND CONCERT

Free Program at Municipal Theater Between 11 and 1; 100 Meetings to Be Held During Week.

SEVERAL DOWNTOWN CONCERTS PLANNED

Foundation of Municipal Musical Auditorium and of Annual Spring Festival Two of Objects.

A free band concert at the Municipal Theater in Forest Park, between 11 and 1 o'clock today, will usher in "Music Week," the purposes of which, as avowed by Director of Public Welfare Cunliff, president of the Civic Music Association, are these:

A general appreciation of the artistic, recreational and financial value of music to the everyday life of St. Louis.

The establishment next year of an annual Spring Musical Festival, based on the present celebration.

The eventual foundation of a Municipal Musical Auditorium.

It is announced that something like 100 different meetings will be held during the week, at which musical entertainment in one form or another will be featured. The Civic Music Association issued an appeal yesterday for additional speakers to make four-minute talks in various auditoriums where programs are to be given.

Today's concert at the Municipal Theater will be provided by 50 musicians supplied without cost by the Musicians' Mutual Benefit Association. Band concerts will be a leading feature of the week's observance. The St. Louis police band will parade downtown and give noon concerts tomorrow and Tuesday. The St. Louis Shriners' band will parade in the same section, Wednesday, and give a concert during the noon hour at the city hall. On Friday night the St. Louis Letter Carriers' band, No. 343, N. A. C. L., will give a concert at the city hall.

Opera Selections to Be Sung.

One of the interesting events of the week will be a concert at the Odeon on Saturday night, when selections from the operas to be given this summer at the Municipal Theater will be sung by the entire body of students from the Chorus Training School, which has been rehearsing at Jefferson Memorial. There will be choral and orchestral numbers by other organizations and speeches. Special programs are to be given during the week at many of the churches and schools.

Stocke, organist; an organ recital at 4 p. m., at the Salem Evangelical Church; and an organ recital by G. Herman Beck, at the Emmaus Lutheran Church, 2325 South Jefferson avenue.

Several Concerts Tomorrow.

Jenkins, organist; at 2 p. m., a concert under the auspices of the Twentieth Century Art Club, at Jefferson Memorial; and later, at Vandervoort's Auditorium, a recital of St. Louis composers.

Why Not the "Roots and Yarbs" of Olden Days?

In the "good old days" medicine was a fearful mess to put into one's stomach. Some "granny" in a community knew about someone who had heard of someone else being "cured" by a brew of such a bark with such a root.

In those days, even when it was known that a certain drug would help nature get a new start, a whole quart of vile brew was made to get at what is represented in a tiny grain of modern drugs.

And you had to take the rest of the stuff with it.

Nowadays, your doctor locates the trouble; writes a prescription calling for even the fraction of a grain of a pure drug—according as his knowledge of you dictates.

Now wait — don't say a word about oil stoves until tomorrow.

Today go into any store where they sell Florence Oil Cook Stoves.

There you will see one filled with oil.

The clerk will hand you a match, and the whole story is there for you to learn by yourself.

You turn the lever and light the burner. You turn it high and turn it low.

SCENE OF INQUISITION IS BEING REMODELED TO LODGE CARDINALS

By the Associated Press.

ROME, April 3.—Two floors of the ancient Palace of the Holy Office, near St. Peter's, where meetings of the Inquisition formerly were held, are being remodeled to accommodate visiting Cardinals and other papal delegates who find it impossible to procure accommodations here owing to the ever-increasing influx of tourists. The new apartments are expected to be ready for occupancy by Cardinals attending the next consistory.

The Inquisition was established in this palace in 1536 by Pope Paul III at the suggestion of Cardinal Carafa, afterward Pope Paul IV, for inquiry into cases of heresy and the punishment of ecclesiastical offenses. Meetings of the Holy Office are now held within the walls of the Vatican.

The Palace contains a large hall, decorated with gloomy frescoes of Dominican saints and also a considerable number of dungeons and cells, in some of which it was impossible for the person confined to stand upright.

When the Roman republic, under Mazzini, was proclaimed, in 1849, the tribunal was abolished, but was re-established by Pius IX in the following year, when the papal power again was set up.

Recitals by London Organist.

Gatty Sellars, organist at the Queen's Hall concerts in London and at the Crystal Palace Festival, will give two recitals, this afternoon and evening, at the First Episcopal Church, East St. Louis. The programs will be different.

GAY LAUGHTER

By W. E. Hill

The bad break and the laugh that came at the wrong moment. Charles has spluttered right out at Reina's unfortunate break—yes, sir, right out before everybody. In a moment or two Charles will have recovered sufficiently to explain that he happened to remember something funny that his friend Eddie Fry said last week, etc., etc., which, of course, nobody will believe. Then Reina will beg Charles to tell her what it was he laughed at and, of course, Charles won't tell her. And Reina will say, "Oh, Charles, I think you're disgusting!" and pretend to be mad the rest of the evening.

The man with the heavy comedy line who laughs loud and long. Loves to greet anyone carrying a bundle with "Say, fella, that's an awful load you're carrying!" (Pause for laughter of the all-join-in-kind.) Don't want to let any revenue officers get hold of you! Har, har, har!" (Mr. Walbein, who is carrying eight tomato plants home to the suburbs, is, of course, simply convulsed.) And if anyone stumbles the heavy comedy gentleman will say brightly, "Hey, you dropped something!"

The forced laugh of the visitor who is watching somebody's little girl show off for company. Caddy is making the weirdest faces. Her papa and mamma say that Caddy is a perfect little mimic. The trick is to stop Caddy, when once she is started being comic before a select gathering.

The mirthless laugh of the lady who doesn't quite get the joke and doesn't quite know on whom the joke—if it is a joke—falls.

There is a certain brand of mellow, whole-souled, all-boys-together laughter that you know at the first "hah-hah" will be followed up by "Now, Mr. Neubler, may I put you down on our list of contributions for five thousand maybe? Or else a very confidential whispered account of a dandy proposition in oil—only a few shares left to be disposed of, etc., etc.

The self-conscious laughter. Jenny has so much red, pink and white foreign matter on her face you can hardly blame her for simpering. Anything in the way of hearty laughter might do a great deal of harm to the ensemble on Jenny's fresh young countenance.

Joyless is the hollow laughter of the busy man appreciating a pleasantry over the phone!

Just a nice jolly giggle—and plenty of it.

The nervous young man of the very mild temperament who titters. Not awfully invigorating.

BREACH WIDENS IN INDUSTRIAL SITUATION IN AUSTRALIA

Correspondence of the Associated Press.

SYDNEY, N. S. W., March 16.—The conference between representatives of employers and employes, called by Premier Hughes in an endeavor to solve the industrial crisis which threatens Australia, came to an abrupt conclusion with the submission after several days of academic discussion of proposals by both sides, which revealed differences apparently impossible of reconciliation.

The employers accepted the principle of a minimum wage sufficient to maintain workers in comfort and reaffirmed the principle of piecework as the most effective means of production and increasing the workers' share of the wealth produced. The proposals suggested that profit sharing might be applied to industries wherever possible and included a 48-hour week and a reconstruction of industrial arbitration.

The workers' proposals declared that "only a socialization of industry with control in the hands of workers offers a solution for the impending collapse of industry." They recommended that a joint commission be established from representatives of Federal and State Governments, employers and trade unions, to devise methods to preserve continuity of operation during the crisis. They proposed that this commission should not reduce wages or lengthen working hours, should provide adequate employment insurance as a legitimate risk of and charge against industry and should provide an effective share for the workers in the control of industry.

The conference terminated with the submission of these proposals, the employers refusing to proceed with the discussion of the workers' suggestions on the ground that the system would result "as disastrously in Australia as it has in Russia."

NERVE BLOCKING

As practiced by many modern dentists today, I believe, after 3 years' trial, to be the greatest means of eliminating pain during what was once considered a painful ordeal in a dentist chair, such as grinding, extracting, filling and crowning sensitive teeth, and many other heretofore considered painful operations.

Mrs. Anita Diaz Now in America

Former Mexican Praises Simple American Intestinal Antiseptic

"I have used Adlerika (intestinal antiseptic) and find it wonderful for the stomach. It once stopped me from undergoing an operation for appendicitis—I was out West at the time. I do not want to be without Adlerika." (Signed) Mrs. Anita Diaz.

Intestinal Antiseptic.

There is now offered to the public a preparation having the DOUBLE action of an intestinal antiseptic and a COMPLETE system cleanser. This preparation, known as Adlerika, acts as follows:

It tends to eliminate or destroy harmful germs and colon bacilli in the intestinal canal, thus guarding against appendicitis and other diseases having their start here.

It is the most complete system cleanser ever offered to the public, acting on BOTH upper and lower bowel and removing foul matter which poisoned the system for months and which nothing else can dislodge. It brings out all gases, thus immediately relieving pressure on the heart. It is astonishing the great amount of poisonous matter Adlerika draws from the alimentary canal—matter you never thought was in your system. Try it right after a natural movement and notice how much more foul matter it brings out which was poisoning you. In slight disorders, such as occasional constipation, sour stomach, gas on the stomach and sick headache, one spoonful Adlerika ALWAYS brings relief. A longer treatment, however, is necessary in cases of obstinate constipation and long-standing stomach trouble, preferably under direction of your physician.

Reports From Physicians.

"I congratulate you on the good effect I had from Adlerika since I prescribed it." (Signed) Dr. L. Langiois

"I have found nothing in my 50 years' practice to excel Adlerika." (Signed) Dr. James Weaver.

"I use Adlerika in all bowel cases. Some require only one dose." (Signed) Dr. F. M. Prettyman.

"After taking Adlerika feel better than for 20 years. Haven't language to express the AWFUL IMPURITIES eliminated from my system." (Signed) J. E. Puckett.

Adlerika is a constant surprise to people who have used only ordinary bowel and stomach medicines, on account of its rapid, pleasant and COMPLETE action. It is sold by leading druggists everywhere.

Sold in St. Louis by Wolff-Wilson Drug Co., Johnson Bros. Drug Co. and other leading druggists.

SIMPLE WAY TO GET RID OF BLACKHEADS

There is one simple, safe and sure way that never fails to get rid of blackheads, and that is to dissolve them.

To do this, get two ounces of calonite powder from any drug store—sprinkle a little on a hot, wet sponge—rub over the blackheads briskly—wash the parts and you will be surprised how the blackheads have disappeared. Big blackheads, little blackheads, no matter where they are, simply dissolve and disappear, leaving the parts without any mark whatever. Blackheads are simply a mixture of dust and dirt and secretions from the body that form in the pores of the skin. Pinching and squeezing only cause irritation, make large pores and do not get them out after they become hard. The calonite powder and the water simply dissolve the blackheads so they wash right out, leaving the pores free and clean and in their natural condition. Anyone troubled with these unsightly blemishes should certainly try this simple method.

PAPA CLUB PLANNING FOR BENEFIT GAME

Proceeds Will Be Used to Buy Additional Playground Equipment for Children.

Meetings of the Papa Club Field Day Committee are being held weekly, at which details of arrangements for the benefit baseball game at Sportsman's Park, May 25, are being planned and carried out. Proceeds from the game will be used to buy additional playground equipment and like things for children of the city.

Judge Kenesaw Mountain Landis will attend the game and will pitch the first ball.

Park Commissioner Pape, in an address at a meeting of the committee Tuesday, said:

"Wherever playgrounds have been established, juvenile delinquency has decreased. A playground has an effective working radius of five blocks.

"St. Louis needs 25 additional playgrounds at once. We are only about 8 per cent efficient. Facilities for all-year-round recreational programs for children are needed badly. On account of lack of funds, no apparatus and very little equipment has been added for two years. The dressing rooms at the Fairground swimming pool are not safe and should be replaced by modern locker buildings.

"Transportation also should be provided for summer excursions for playground children on the steamer Erastus Kells. The city formerly appropriated money for this purpose, but last year no such appropriation was made and the children missed the trip."

CONGREGATION HOLDS SERVICE AT CHAPEL GROUND-BREAKING

The Rev. George Percival Conducts Ceremony at Northeast Corner of Lilian and Ruskin Avenues.

The congregation of St. Paul's Presbyterian Church gathered at the northeast corner of Lilian and Ruskin avenues last Sunday and held services, during which the ground-breaking ceremony for their new chapel took place.

The services were conducted by the Rev. George Percival, the pastor. The principal address was by the Rev. R. Calvin Dobson, secretary of the board of church trustees and church extension of the presbytery of St. Louis.

The chapel will contain the different departments of the Sunday school, primary, intermediate and Bible class. It will have a large basement, which can be used for drilling or gymnasium purposes, and is equipped with showers.

The first and second floor will contain the Sunday school classrooms. The second floor will have a kitchen, a dining room and ladies' parlors. The main auditorium will be built later.

The building will be finished on the exterior with velour matt brick with Bedford stone trimmings, and will be heated by electricity. The plans and specifications are by Albert B. Groves, architect.

300,000 GRANITE SLABS ON JAPAN'S ROYAL TOMB

Nation's Veneration for Great Leaders of Past Shown by Shrine of Meiji.

By the Associated Press.

TOKIO, April 22.—Japan's veneration for her great leaders of the past will be brought home to the Prince of Wales when he is taken on a pilgrimage to the sacred Tenno shrine, bordering on the ancient capital of Kyoto, burial place of Meiji Tenno, father of the present ruler and the great figurehead of the restoration period; and of Jimmu Tenno, founder of the empire.

The Meiji tomb is situated at Momoyama, a wooded eminence some five miles from Kyoto, a spot which the late Emperor is said to have chosen as his last resting place.

The tomb itself is remarkably simple, consisting of a huge mound of concrete, covered with 300,000 minute slabs of white granite, and so constructed as to withstand the ravages of time and nature. The mound rests on a terraced slope, behind which, amphitheaterlike, is a grove of trees, the open space in front being covered with fine white sand, while around it is a double line of stone fences pierced by "torii" gates bearing the imperial insignia.

This district is particularly rich in historical associations. It is the site of the famous palace of the dictator Hideyoshi, built in 1594, but now completely destroyed. It is said to have been the most magnificent mansion ever built in Japan. Here, too, not far from the Meiji tomb, is the mausoleum of the Emperor Kwammu, who in 792 founded the imperial capital of Kyoto, a distinction which belonged to this city until Meiji Tenno moved to Tokio in modern times.

The mausoleum of Jimmu Tenno is built on the low hill of Unebi overlooking the romantic land of Yamato, where in the dim ages was founded the empire of Japan. It is a large mound tumulus of stone and earth, surrounded by ancient trees and a double line of moats.

VOLGA, S. D.—Thousands of fish, it has been discovered, were killed in the lakes of the Volga district during the winter by smothering. The bodies of thousands of perch, pickerel, bullheads, buffalo and suckers have lined the shores of the lakes this spring, and hundreds of crows have been feasting on the bodies and picking the bones clean.

Do You Envy English Woman's Complexion?

Mrs. Asquith, famous diarist, in a recent interview, took occasion to remark that the English woman's complexion is far more beautiful than that of the average American woman. The truth of this assertion is admitted, if reluctantly, by all who have been in England. But Margot did not mention the fact that the ladies of her country are much given to the use of what is commercially known as mercolized wax, remarkable as a facial rejuvenator. This wax has the peculiar property of absorbing the soiled and lifeless particles of scarf skin as they appear, the fresh new skin underneath, with its bloom of youth and health, then being in evidence. The process is quite harmless, causing no inconvenience.

Mercolized wax can be had at drug stores here, as well as abroad, and if you will procure about an ounce of it and apply a little at bedtime, like cold cream, washing it off mornings, you soon will behold in your glowing cheeks a close resemblance to the wonderful transparent beauty of the English woman's complexion.

'PILL BOX' OF CHEPPY FAME TO COME HERE

Machine Gun Used in Capture of German Station in France to Be Set Up in St. Louis.

At least one of the "pill boxes," officially known as machine-gun emplacements, taken by the 138th (First Missouri) Infantry as it captured Cheppy, France, from the Germans on Sept. 26, 1918, will be brought to St. Louis as a war trophy and erected permanently, probably in Forest Park, Gen. E. J. Spencer, president of the Veteran Corps of the First Regiment, announced yesterday.

Gen. Spencer has appointed as chairman of the War Trophy Committee Col. H. D. McBride, secretary of the Veteran Corps, and as one of the members of the committee Capt. Roland R. Reinholdt, who organized and led the charge, supported by tanks, in which the "pill boxes" were wrested from their German defenders.

Such preliminary work as obtaining the consent of the American and French Governments to the blasting of one or two of the steel emplacements from their concrete foundations and the transporting of such emplacement or emplacements from Cheppy to St. Louis, already has been done by Col. H. S. Howland, who commanded the 138th at Cheppy, where he was wounded.

The first act of the committee created by Gen. Spencer was to advise Col. Howland that the Veteran Corps of the First Regiment had decided to sponsor the bringing of the war trophy and to raise the money necessary to meet the expense of blasting at Cheppy, transportation to St. Louis, remounting at St. Louis, providing suitable tablets, listing the St. Louisans killed and wounded in the engagement, etc., and to recommend that the arrangements for the blasting be perfected at once.

Military experts say the strongly fortified town of Cheppy, taken by the St. Louis regiment, was easily the most important capture effected by American troops on the opening day of the Meuse-Argonne offensive.

In announcing the decision of the Veteran Corps to bring a war trophy from Cheppy, Col. Spencer made public the complete report of Col. Howland covering the capture of the Cheppy "pill boxes," which, in the report, are referred to as machine-gun nests. The "pill boxes" were a part of the Hindenburg line, the breaking of which by the St. Louisans is touched on in the report.

IMPORTANT FACTS ABOUT THE INDUSTRIAL LOAN COMPANY

THIS well-known St. Louis company was formed about 10 years ago by prominent citizens, its object being to loan money to persons of good character at more reasonable rates than were then obtainable. Its capital stock of $300,000, together with funds derived from sale of 5% savings certificates, furnish the money for loaning.

Over $3,000,000 was loaned in 1921, the money being usefully employed in financing the economic needs of individuals and for the development and expansion of small business enterprises.

A $100 loan for one year costs $8 interest, deducted in advance and is repaid in 50 weekly payments of $2 each—or in monthly payments if desired. Larger or smaller loans on the same basis.

To promote thrift among citizens this Company, in addition to its loan business, issues five per cent savings certificates, which may be obtained in two ways: One way by cash purchase in amounts of $50, $75, $100 and up to $5000. The other way, in passbook form, for $1 and up, which permits small payments of a dollar or more at any time. In either form, the interest is 5%.

In the pass book form this is a very popular savings plan, not alone because of the liberal interest, but also because it is such a simple, easy way to save—and the money is always quickly available when needed.

At your dealer's this week A 10-Day Tube of Pepsodent. Present the coupon to any store named below. Make this delightful test this week. Watch the quick effects. The benefits will be a revelation to you.

When film-coats make teeth dingy — Pearly teeth which one delights to show — When teeth do not glisten — When film removal makes teeth shine and teeth they don't—the difference lies in a new way to combat film

A new method of cleaning has brought prettier teeth to millions. Also cleaner, safer teeth.

You see the results wherever you look. Teeth now glisten which before were dim. They show in smiles now where folks once concealed them.

This is to tell you the reason, then to urge that you make a free test.

They remove the film

These millions have gained whiter teeth by simply combating film in this new way.

Film is that viscous coat you feel. It clings to teeth, gets between the teeth and stays. The ordinary tooth paste does not effectively combat it. The tooth brush, therefore, has left much of it intact.

Film absorbs stains, making the teeth look dingy. Film is the basis of tartar. That is why teeth become cloudy and discolored. And some teeth—like smokers' teeth—become badly stained.

Film holds food substance which ferments and forms acids. It holds the acids in contact with the teeth to cause decay.

Germs breed by millions in it. They, with tartar, are the chief cause of pyorrhea.

Thus most tooth troubles are now traced to film. Those troubles have been constantly increasing for lack of a proper film combatant.

Now you can fight it

Dental science, after long research, has found two ways to fight film. Many careful tests have proved their efficiency. Authorities now advise them and leading dentists half the world over are urging their adoption.

A scientific tooth paste has been perfected to comply with modern requirements. These two film combatants are embodied in it. So one may now attack that film twice a day at home.

The name of that tooth paste is Pepsodent.

Other new effects

The saliva contains two great tooth-protecting agents. One is a starch digestant. That is to digest starch deposits on teeth before they ferment and form acids. The other is alkali, to neutralize the acids which cause tooth decay.

Certain food elements will multiply those tooth-protecting factors. But modern diet often fails to supply those elements regularly. Authority, therefore, desires the tooth paste to apply that stimulation twice a day.

Pepsodent does that. It multiplies both the starch digestant and the alkalis in the saliva. Every application gives these natural tooth-protecting agents many-fold effects.

Means a new dental era

Old-time tooth pastes, based on soap and chalk, depress these factors in saliva. They reduce this tooth-protecting power on which so much depends. And they do not end the film.

So Pepsodent brings a new dental era to people who employ it. It brings five desired effects which old ways do not bring. So millions of people have come to adopt it, largely by dental advice.

One week will bring delightful changes

Pepsodent will quickly prove itself. The changes which you see and feel will very soon convince you.

Present the coupon this week for a 10-Day Tube. Note how clean the teeth feel after using. Mark the absence of the viscous film. See how teeth whiten as the film-coats disappear. Watch how every use leaves the mouth in fresh, alkaline condition.

One week will show you what this method means to you and yours. Go start the test today.

B'NAI EL TO CELEBRATE 75TH ANNIVERSARY

Banquet Will Be Held at Columbian Club Tonight, and Bonded Debt Will Be Canceled.

The B'nai El congregation will celebrate its seventy-fifth anniversary this week. A banquet will be held tonight at the Columbian Club, when bonded indebtedness will be canceled. Friday night all the reformed Jewish temples of the city will be closed and united worship will be held at B'nai El Temple, Spring and Flad avenues, and a dinner will be held the following Sunday night, at which new members will be formally welcomed into the congregation.

The B'nai El congregation was formed Oct. 17, 1852, by the Emanu-El congregation, which came into existence in 1847, but which was depleted by the cholera epidemic of 1849. Some of its members joined the B'nai Brith congregation, formed in 1849.

The congregation at first occupied two rooms at Ninth street and Lafayette avenue, later moved to Fifteenth and Walnut streets, and in 1855 erected the first Jewish temple in the Mississippi Valley, on Seventh street, near Cerre. This congregation was one of the five that started in 1871, the Union of American Hebrew Congregations. In 1875 an edifice at Eleventh street and Chouteau avenue, formerly a Presbyterian church, was consecrated, and it was used as a place of worship until the erection in 1905 of the present temple.

Dr. Moritz Spitz became rabbi Nov. 3, 1878, and led the congregation until Oct. 16, 1920, when he became ill, while reading from the Torah. He went home, and died on the following Nov. 11. Rabbi Julian H. Miller, the present rabbi, was called from Mizpah Temple, Chattanooga, in July, 1919, and assumed office on Sept. 1, 1919.

How He Cured His Rupture

Old Sea Captain Cured His Own Rupture After Doctors Said "Operate or Death."

His Remedy and Book Sent Free.

Captain Collings sailed the seas for many years; then he sustained a bad double rupture that soon forced him to not only remain ashore, but kept him bedridden for years. He tried doctor after doctor and truss after truss. No results! Finally he was assured that he must either submit to a dangerous and abhorrent operation or die. He did neither. He cured himself instead.

Captain Collings made a study of himself, of his condition, and at last he was rewarded by the finding of the method that so quickly made him a well, strong, vigorous and happy man.

Anyone can use the same method; it's simple, easy, safe and inexpensive. Every ruptured person in the world should have the Captain Collings book, telling all about how he cured himself, and how anyone may follow the same treatment in their own home without any trouble. JOHNSON BROS. CUTS THE PRICE

$1,000,000 RIVIERA HOME FOR FORMER MISS VANDERBILT

Mansion of Once Duchess of Marlborough to Be on Rugged Promontory 1500 Feet Above Sea Level.

NOW THE WIFE OF FRENCH CAPITALIST

Grandeur and Simplicity of Middle Ages to Be Combined With Modern Conveniences in Structure.

By a Special Correspondent of the New York World and the Post-Dispatch.
Post-Dispatch Bureau,
20 Cockspur st., London, S. W.

LONDON, April 22.—"I have been able to obtain the first authentic details—hitherto jealously guarded—of the new residence which M. and Mme. Jacques Balsan, the French capitalist and sportsman and the former Duchess of Marlborough (whose maiden name was Consuelo Vanderbilt), are erecting on the Riviera at a cost, it is said, of more than $1,000,000."

So writes the Paris correspondent of the Daily Express, adding:

"The property consists of about 500 acres of pineland perched on a rugged promontory between Beaulieu and Monte Carlo, more than 1500 above sea level, and overlooking the quaint little medieval town of Eze, with a magnificent view of the entire littoral.

Description of Mansion.

"The residence is an octagonal pile in pure medieval style, with immense masses of masonry, giving the impression of great solidity and bulk. The simplicity—even austerity—and harmony of its lines recall nothing so much as one of these venerable twelfth century monasteries, such as one sees depicted in the engravings of Viollet Leduc. The building will, in fact, show many characteristics of the old monastic style.

"The ground floor, around which will run a broad open cloister of twelfth century style, will contain the large vaulted dining room, salons, reception rooms and library. The bedrooms, guest rooms and the private apartments of the owners will be on the first floor, with roomy loggias instead of the ordinary balconies. The basement will contain the kitchen, wine cellar, servants' quarters and the heating and lighting apparatus, both supplied with electricity from a private plant.

Great Scenic Sun Parlor.

"The most striking of all the rooms will be an immense circular salon or sun parlor on the ground floor, giving a magnificent view on one side of the famous Cap d'Ail and the Italian Coast; on another the Esterel Mountains; on another the Mediterranean, and on still another, the entire valley which leads up to 'La Turbie,' with the ancient temple for a background.

"The interior arrangements of the house are to conform, as far as possible, with its external austerity and simplicity. There will be little in the way of modern decorative art. Tapestries will take the place of the usual paintings, while of sculpture there will be practically nothing. The conception of this residence seems to be purely personal, reflecting the desire of the owners to combine the grandeur and simplicity of the middle ages with the indispensable conveniences of the present day.

"The furnishing of this house has been engaging the attention of M. Balsan for a number of years. It will provide him with a worthy receptacle for his magnificent collection of antiques.

Achille Duchene Is Architect.

"The stone that is being exclusively employed is taken from the same quarries that supplied the material for the famous Pont du Gard and which was used for a large number of monasteries of the twelfth century. The architect is M. Achille Duchene, who remodeled Blenheim House and from whose plans some of the finest residences in France, England, Belgium, Germany and the United States have been built.

"'One peculiarity of the new dwelling is that it will not be enclosed in a park, though its isolation will be all the more effective on account of the stern and rugged wildness of the site. It is expected that the house will be completed by the end of the year."

ORCHESTRA TO CLOSE SEASON

Helen Irene Elder to Be Philharmonic Soloist May 5.

The St. Louis Philharmonic Orchestra, under the direction of Frank Gecks, will close its twenty-ninth season with a concert at the Central High School auditorium, on the evening of May 5. Helen Irene Elder, soprano, will be soloist.

The orchestra's numbers will be the Vorspiel to "Die Meistersinger," the ballet music from "Faust," and three numbers from Mendelssohn's music to "A Midsummer Night's Dream."

Some few months ago, in the lobby of a well-known hotel in the East, a few prominent piano road-men and a well-known trade-paper man were discussing the relative merits of half a dozen of the best-known pianos manufactured in America. Towards the end of the discussion the trade-paper man turned abruptly to the road-men who were present and said:

"Which is the most carefully constructed American piano?"

"I will tell you the name of the most carefully constructed piano manufactured in the U. S. today," responded one of the road-men, "and I am not in any shape or manner interested in its production; it is

ACCESSORY DEALERS TO HOLD SHOW IN ARMORY.

Members of the Motor Accessory Trade Association of St. Louis were officially notified by President G. G. Giese of that association that a sanctioned Accessory Show would be held at the First Regiment Armory the week of May 22 to 27, 1922.

This show is to be given directly under the auspices of the Motor Accessory Trade Association and a Show Committee from that body will supervise its conduct. The manager of the show is J. H. Gennisson, who recently conducted an Automobile Show at St. Charles and others at other points and who for the past two years has been official decorator for the regular St. Louis Automobile Show.

It is planned to make the Accessory Show inclusive of everything appertaining to the motor car except the car itself. The Armory building is to be arranged with nearly 300 exhibit spaces and up to Saturday morning about half of these had been sold to exhibitors. The admission fee to the show is to be 25 cents. The building is to be elaborately decorated and a large amount of advertising is to be used in the newspapers and otherwise in an effort to bring to the city great numbers of out-of-town dealers in the St. Louis territory as well as the general public in St. Louis and vicinity.

G. G. Giese, president of the Motor Accessory Trade Association and of the Alastic Tire Cushion Co., is chairman of the Show Committee.

FIRESTONE TO HOLD SALES CONFERENCE

The first general sales conference of all Firestone sales representatives and branch manager throughout the United States to be held since 1917 will open tomorrow at Akron and continue for three days.

A special train in charge of W. S. Sabine, St. Louis Firestone branch manager, which will convey all salesmen from the St. Louis branch, and those from the entire southwest will leave St. Louis for Akron this afternoon. The special en route to Akron will stop at Indianapolis, where the factory representatives from that territory will join the party.

On approaching a grade crossing shift into second gear. This will eliminate stalling car on the crossing.

TOUR OVER ILLINOIS ROADS AN IDEAL JAUNT

First of Post-Dispatch Tours Routes Motorists Over 70 Miles of Good Roads.

With the coming rush of summer, which brings to the motorists a desire to answer the call of the open road, the Post-Dispatch with the co-operation of the Touring Bureau of the Automobile Club of Missouri, will publish each Sunday during the touring season a special one-day jaunt over various Missouri and Illinois roads.

These motor trips which will enable the motorists to enjoy Sundays and holidays during the Summer at the wheel of his car, will list several points of interest along the route as well as hotel accommodations in the various towns and byways.

The first of the tours, which is over Illinois roads, takes the motorists through Belleville, Collinsville, Marysville, Edwardsville, Wood River, Mitchell, Granite City, Madison and Venice.

The trip which takes in many points of interest along the route is approximately 70 miles in length, and over roads that, as a whole, can be classed as good.

Upon leaving St. Louis via the free bridge and as far as Edgemont, a distance of approximately eight and a half miles, the road is in fairly good condition. From Edgemont on to Belleville the road is concrete and in good condition.

In Belleville the motorists will be able to find several eating places, which make a specialty of serving home-grown asparagus and chicken dinners.

Leaving Belleville a good cinder road is followed practically all the way to Collinsville. From Collinsville to Edwardsville through Marysville the road bed is of cinders and concrete. The road from Edwardsville to Wood River is virtually all concrete, with several short stretches of cinders. A good brick road is then encountered from Wood River to St. Louis.

For those who desire to make only part of the jaunt and turn back to St. Louis the best cut off is at Collinsville, as designated on the map.

LEXINGTON ANNOUNCES NEW MODEL AT $1745

The Lexington Motor Co. of Connersville, Ind., is out with the announcement of a new five-passenger touring model at $1745.

According to the announcement, the price on this new "series 22" is $240 less than the lowest previous price on a Lexington motor car equipped with the Ansted engine, including the Moore multiple exhaust system, which saves fuel and adds power, and is an exclusive Lexington feature patented by John C. Moore, chief engineer.

The Ansted engine has been refined and improved in many respects.

Another feature of the new Lexington is the frame design. This incorporates the "double triangular center cross-member," on which a patent is pending.

Riding comfort has been achieved in the new Lexington by using front and rear semielliptic springs of exceptional length. The front springs are 38 inches long and 2¼ inches wide.

Other features are the equalizing cable foot brake system; the "one-finger" emergency brake system; the adjustable radiator mounting for the new drum-type head lamps; the flexible fabric disc universal joints and the unit power plant construction with inclosed flywheel.

Equipment is complete, including 32x4½ cord tires. A spare demountable rim is provided on the rear tire carrier.

UP AND AWAY!

From the mirror-waters of some wild lake, lost beyond the ranges, he rises in flight—Gray Goose—Pathfinder of the Skies. ¶ What power here, what acceleration, what perfection of poise and balance, motion with the poetry of ease—in this upward rush! ¶ These attributes Science has incorporated in a motor car. This power, this acceleration, this perfection of poise and balance, this thrill of effortless motion, you will find in the Wills Sainte Claire. ¶ That is the reason Gray Goose is our emblem, the seal of our sincerity.

TRUCK DEALERS DISCUSS USED TRUCK PROBLEM

An equitable basis for the appraisement of used trucks offered for sale or for trade-in was the subject of discussion at the meeting of the St. Louis Commercial Car Bureau, a division of the St. Louis Automobile Dealers' Association, at the Marquette Hotel last Monday night.

Committees of the bureau were appointed which will work out proper appraisement values for used trucks of the various vintages and ages. Another committee which was appointed presented to the meeting its findings as to the proper terms which should be adhered to by all members in the sale of new trucks. A third committee was appointed to report at the next meeting which will recommend a plan in detail for a credit rating system within the bureau.

C. A. Cole, chairman of the Commercial Car Bureau, presided, and H. F. Fahrenkrog, newly elected president of the St. Louis Automobile Dealers' Association, was a guest and speaker.

PACKARD ANNOUNCES NEW SINGLE-SIX

Announcement was made Thursday by the Packard Motor Car Co. of a new model Packard single six, which is now on display at Packard sales rooms.

In presenting this new car to the public Alvan Macauley, president of the Packard company, declares it to be the fulfillment of Packard's desire to establish an entirely new standard of value and of style in the field of the light-weight quality car.

Although, mechanically, the new single six offers no radical changes, it is a new, a larger, more beautiful car than the former model.

The radiator is higher and broader. The bonnet slopes into the body lines and shows a panel at the sides, with long, closely spaced louvers. Back from the radiator shell sweeps the characteristic Packard radiator and bonnet shoulder. The headlamps are of a new Packard design, heavily plated. The fenders are full-crowned and rigidly bracketed. The interior is well upholstered. There are also many other changes and refinements. The wheel base lengths are 126 and 133 inches, and the body styles include eight different types.

NEW MOON 6-40 MODEL NOW ON DISPLAY

It is constructed along the Moon lines with the silver radiator and straight line body. They have further characterized the new model by using the Versailles blue color.

This model 6-40 is on a chassis with a wheel base of 115 inches, and carries cord tires as standard equipment. The six-cylinder power plant is a product of the Continental Motor Co. and carries the "Red Seal" trademark.

The axles, both front and rear, are Timken, with Timken roller bearings, all four wheels, as well as in the differential. The entire electrical system, including ignition and lighting, as well as the starter, is Delco.

A Borg & Beck 10-inch dry plate clutch is used. The car is upholstered in genuine leather. The headlights are the snare-drum type. The door handles are silver nickel. The steering wheel, with a large rim and polished aluminum spokes, is set at an angle. The fenders are deep one-piece.

STUTZ

Efficiency That Can Be Acquired Only by Inherent Perfection

The success of the Stutz with the "DH" Engine and Constant Stutz Supervision is inherent. It is not confined entirely to additional intricate accessories to the fundamental power unit.

The Stutz owner first has cause to rely solely on the mature efficiency of the basic design, instead of multiplication of parts for an awful extravagance.

As a result, the Stutz, our belief, is more nearly 100% efficient throughout the entire range of motor car performance than any car built today.

It is worth more—the cost that can be acquired only as the result of inherent perfection of design.

NEW COLUMBIA LIGHT SIX ON DISPLAY

The new Columbia Light Six had its first showing in St. Louis Wednesday, when dealers from the St. Louis district met for a sales convention at the offices of the Advance Motor Co., local Columbia distributers, at 2939 Locust street.

J. G. Bayerline, president of the Columbia Motors Co., was the principal guest and speaker at the meeting. He told the dealers the story of manufacturing co-operation that made possible this new model. Mechanical principles and sales policies also were discussed.

The Columbia Light Six is built from standard units by manufacturers of national reputation. Its appearance in the motor world this spring is the result of more than seven years of study and planning on the part of Columbia engineers.

President Bayerline declares this new model is especially well adapted to changed conditions in the automobile market since the war. Analysis shows that 57 per cent of the car models produced are sixes, and that this type of car is growing increasingly popular.

The price of the new Columbia—$985—was made possible by unusual co-operation among the manufacturers of specialized units, who adjusted prices to a quantity production basis on the new model. The car is equipped with a Continental motor developing 50 horsepower, and Timken axles. It has a 115-inch wheelbase, yet weighs only 2400 pounds.

President Bayerline announces that entire factory production has already been contracted up to Aug. 1.

R. A. Long, engineer of the factory, and N. I. Taylor, of the Albee Corporation, who have charge of the factory advertising, also addressed the dealers.

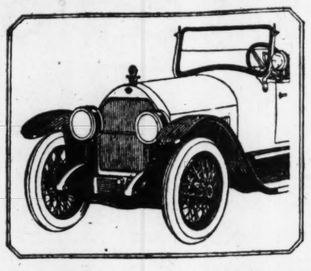
WHAT THE HIGHWAYS REALLY ARE DEFINED

Think of the highways for what they are, and not simply as winding ribbons between farm lands, or as merely graded surfaces of clay, gravel, asphalt, macadam and concrete, says George M. Graham, vice president of the Chandler Motor Co.

Let your imagination carry you farther and see the highway in relation to the task it performs. The highway is not simply a road. It is not simply a surface.

It is assurance of the civilizing influence of better communications between sections. It is a silent but persistent factor for the reduction of living costs. It is an humble but powerful foe of ignorance, since it is usually the route to education. It is the safeguard of your food supply. It is the guarantee to the public against the prostrating influences of industrial upheaval and interruption to distribution therefrom. It is the open air theater of enjoyment for the family. It is the connecting link between the home and the factory, the city and the farm. It is real estate insurance. It is the textbook of nature to our people. It is the call to the open air, the physician who makes no charge for his service.

When negotiating a corner or curve, don't jam your throttle on too soon. Bad skids occur in this way.



STUTZ

Efficiency That Can Be Acquired Only by Inherent Perfection

The prowess of the Stutz—with the "D-H" Engine and Compensating Spring Suspension—is inherent. It is not acquired artificially by adding intricate auxiliaries to the fundamental power unit.

The Stutz is the first fine car to rely solely on the mature refinement of its basic design instead of multiplication of parts for its splendid versatility.

As a result, the Stutz, we believe, is more nearly 100% efficient throughout the entire range of motor car performance than any one car built today.

Its attainments are the sort that can be acquired only as the result of inherent perfection of design.

Jordan Now at Pre-War Price

F. O. B. CLEVELAND

Jordan prices are down to pre-war levels.

People who have always admitted Jordan leadership—but have put up with smaller cars—are now buying Jordans.

Many a man who formerly felt it necessary to pay a high price and get a heavy car, to obtain reliability, has turned to the Jordan.

It combines quality with light weight and perfect balance.

Jordan knew that henceforth cars would compete, not alone in price, but in service. Service is what really defines value. Success gave him the courage to build a vastly better car.

The new Jordan is the lightest on the road for its wheelbase—and the best balanced. That's economy.

The body is hung low. Cushions are deep. There is no side sway—no jerky up and down vibrations. And that's comfort.

There's plenty of thrill in the exclusive Jordan motor—a silent forceful "wallop". That's confidence.

Jordan national economy average 24.1 miles per gallon. 18,000 to 20,000 miles for tires. High resale value. Low repair cost. That's thrift.

Spring shackles don't talk back as they so frequently do on ordinary cars. There is a stronger, non-weaving frame—a cowl ventilator—drum type headlights—lock on the transmission—Finest hand buffed leather—curtains carried in the doors—snubbers—optional colors, including the exclusive Crane-Simplex velvet finish. That's value and pride of ownership.

You can see what such a car at $1795 means in sales. We are delivering as promptly as possible. But a word of friendly warning—act now—get your Jordan today.

HOW TO PUT UP THE BEST RECEIVING AERIAL

By JOHN V. L. HOGAN,
Consulting Engineer, New York; Fellow and Past President, Institute of Radio Engineers; Member, American Institute of Electrical Engineers.

Almost the first problem encountered by the beginner in radio is that of constructing a proper aerial-wire system. Having secured a receiving outfit which will convert the energy of radio waves into audible sounds, he requires an arrangement of antenna wires which will reach out from his receiving room, intercept and collect a part of the electromagnetic wave energy passing through space, and lead it down to his apparatus.

There is no one type of wireless aerial which is "best" for all purposes, and this fact naturally complicates the selection of the most suitable form to use. Moreover, the experimenter is usually limited in the matter of supports which may be used to hold up his air-wires.

To receive radio telephone concerts from the big broadcasting stations, which now operate at a wave frequency of 833,000 cycles per second (corresponding to a wave length of 360 meters or 1180 feet), nothing is better than a long, single wire. This aerial wire should be at least 100 feet, but not over 150 feet in length, measured from the receiving instrument to the far end. As much of it as possible should be as high above the ground as can be arranged, and clear away from other conductors, such as telephone or electric light wires and building columns.

Difficult, But Best.

An ideal arrangement would be a wire dropped from a 100 or 150 foot flagpole to the receiving room. A very good aerial can be made by running the wire nearly vertically from the receiver to a tall tree, or a spar secured to gable or chimney) 40 or 50 feet above ground and thence nearly horizontally to another tree or supporting point about 100 feet away. The far end should be as high or higher than the end nearest the instruments, for best results. If there is any choice possible in the matter, the receiving appartus should be placed in a room on the ground floor.

Next in importance to a good aerial wire, a satisfactory ground or earth connection is perhaps the prime essential to securing best results from any radio receiver. Unless the feeble radio frequency currents generated in the aerial wires by the passing electromagnetic waves are given a free and unobseructed path through the receiving apparatus and into the earth, the loudest signals will not be produced.

Use Water Pipes.

For radio receivers no better ground connection can be had than through a water-pipe system. A network of iron pipe even within an isolated house is quite good; where the pipe extends underground for great distances (as in a town or city water system (it can hardly be improved upon for radio. In placing the radio receiver, a location should be selected which is within the shortest feasible, distance of both the antenna down-lead and the nearest cold-water pipe. A copper wire (either bare or insulated) of a size not smaller than No. 14 gauge, should be run directly from the apparatus to the water pipe, and wrapped firmly around the pipe. Good metal-to-metal contact must be established, so all insulation and oxidization must be removed by scraping the copper wire until it shines brightly. Similarly, all paint or coating must be scratched off the pipe at the point of contact before wrapping the wire about it.

If a water system is not available, the ground wire should be connected instead to three or more lengths of rod or piping driven deeply enough into the earth (at points 5 or 10 feet apart) to reach moist soil. Usually four pieces of ½-inch pipe about 5 feet long, driven at the corners of a 10-foot square and connected together and to the ground wire, will give reasonably good results.

Arlington to Speak.

Some day soon there will be a good story given out about the big Naval Radio station at Arlington, but just now it is a closely guarded secret. It seems that the radio experts of the Navy are experimenting every night with a special radio phone sending apparatus believed to have an especially long range. Whether the seagoing operators are trying to talk around the world or merely to distant Naval vessels will not be divulged, but some of the nightly test messages have been picked up by amateurs.

It is rumored that the radio phone experiments were extremely successful, messages having been heard in New Orleans and on the coast of Maine, and that within a short time Arlington will become the chief naval broadcasting station for the Government, using a 2650-meter wave which is expected to carry the voice of the speaker at least 1500 miles.

Air Mail and Radio.

The Post Office Air Mail Service is planning to equip its big trans-continental planes with radio phones, and the first one to be so equipped was flown to Washington from Chicago recently in just two minutes over six hours. Pilot H. Hamilton Lee made the trip of 715 miles at the rate of 119 miles per hour.

This type mail plane will be equipped with both receiving and sending radio phones having a radius of 200 miles, so that the pilot can keep in constant touch with the station he is leaving and the one he is flying to which should naturally aid him in navigating.

UNCLE SAM'S METHOD OF ASSIGNING RADIO CALLS

The United States has only three international call letters for radio signals out of the alphabet assigned for this purpose to civilized nations. Actually they are initial letters, for they are used with other letters in the alphabet in combinations of three or more, indicating a code name or station. All licensed commercial stations in this country are assigned calls by the radio section of the Bureau of Navigation, Department of Commerce, in accordance with the allotment of letters permitted by the International Bureau of the Telegraphic Union at Berne, Switzerland.

To be exact, the United States may use the three and four letter calls beginning with the letter N, all calls beginning with W, and combinations beginning with K, except from KAA to KBZ, which belong to Germany. These are not all available for commercial use, however, as the navy uses all calls starting with the letter N, while are Army is allotted calls from WUA to WVZ and WXA to WZZ.

A record of all calls is kept in the Department of Commerce on what are termed K and W charts, ruled into 27 squares each way, and used by horizontal and vertical alphabets to designate all calls. In the upper left-hand corner, in square 1, is inserted the name of the person or firm having the call AA, preceded, of course, by the chart or coast symbol W or K. If you had been first in line when the office opened you could have had WAA or KAA, the second applicant receiving WAB or KAB, but today you would get something like WWL or KQY, but more likely a four-letter call. The three letters are very scarce today and doubling has begun. Westinghouse Electric, Pittsburg, is an example, KDKA; several postoffice radio stations have four-letter calls.

The above system applies only to governmental and commercial sending stations, when an amateur, of which there are some 15,000 sending, applies for a call, international regulations do not apply and the international letters are not used.

For amateurs the country is divided into nine sections, each with a significant numeral. The district radio inspector handles the applications and directly upon inspection, issues a call. The first district is New England, and amateur chart No. 1, is arranged into alphabetical squares similar to the commercial K and W charts; where the letters intersect the senders name is inscribed. Call 1AA was assigned to William E. Heckman of Auburndale, Mass., as he was the first applicant in that section. The last New England applicant received call 1 WZ. California is in the sixth district; St. Louis is in the ninth; District of Columbia, third; Portland, Ore., seventh and so on over the country. To designate special land stations such as experimental, technical schools and special amateur senders, the letters X, Y and Z are inserted following the district symbol and preceding the other letters, as for example, 9ZF, Sioux City Radio Laboratory, Iowa, and 7XH Oregon Agricultural College.

While we have but begun, apparently the system is capable of expansion, as mathematical calculations on "combinations" will prove.

RADIO CAN MAKE COLLEGE OF THE COUNTRY SCHOOL

The wonderful possibilities of radio in the realms of education were pointed out by Owen D. Young, chairman of the Board of Directors of the Radio Corporation of America, in a statement made just before he sailed for France to attend a radio conference at Cannes.

"Every little red schoolhouse in the country has potential possibilities for becoming a college," he said.

"What is to prevent boys and girls from receiving courses of lectures via radio on various subjects so that they might take examinations and receive diplomas for good work? Mathematics, science, literature, history, art—all could be taught by authority. Another case of bringing the mountain to Mahomet, if it happens that the prophet doesn't find it convenient or profitable to go to the mountain.

"Of course, it is perfectly natural that the broadcasting of messages which have to do with entertainment, etc., should at present be the popular phase of a fascinating study, but the matter of international communication is of tremendous importance, and it is this question which will occupy our attention at Cannes. A station is now being built in Poland and another is contemplated in China. That will complete the girdle around the globe. Have you noticed how youngsters accept all these radio discoveries with perfect equanimity? It is funny but natural. They take it for granted. It is their day.

"It seems more marvelous to us 'oldsters' because we can make comparisons. We can figure back to the nonautomobile, nonaeroplane, nonwireless days—and the strides made in electrical science are colossal."

Naval Radio Record Established.

From Anacostia to Hawaii is a long jump, estimated at 5000 miles, yet it was learned recently that the Anacostia Naval Station H O F had been heard by a resident of Wailuku, Maui, Hawaii. According to Commander Hooper, in charge of radio of the Naval Bureau of Engineering, Mr. Clifford J. Dow of Wailuku reported that he heard Anacostia transmitting on 360 meters. It seems probable, Commander Hooper says, that this is the world's record for transmission on uninterrupted continuous waves at short wave lengths. The station has been heard a good many times on the Pacific Coast, and once in Cuba, he announced, but stated that this was the first report that had been made of receiving N O F messages in the Hawaiian Islands.

Hear the Ball Game at Home.

At the opening game of the Washington Ball Club with the New York Yankees, a Washington Herald sports writer covered the story, probably for the first time in history, with a radio phone. From the time the first batter stepped to the plate until the last one fanned, all local radio fans got the game inning by inning, if they listened in. Hereafter when the Washington team is in town the radio reporter will cover the game for all local fans who cannot attend, it is announced.

Canal Zone Radio Activities.

During the second week in March the radio stations in the Canal Zone under the navy carried over 7000 words daily, Balboa carrying the bulk of the traffic, 4065 words.

Pamphlet on Radio Apparatus.

Worn Out In Mind and Body

Your child is quick to observe disturbances in your mental attitude or physical condition. And when he asks: "What's the matter, Daddy?" there's a tone of solemn anxiety in his little voice. The depression stamped upon you reflects intensely upon him because of his profound solicitude. He at once drops his playthings and rushes to your side, but his happy smile has disappeared and his buoyant spirits are gone—replaced by a countenance of worry and a bearing of hopelessness.

You owe it to the happiness and welfare of your family to keep trim in body and tone in intellect. You are the sun and the inspiration of their lives. Dark, threatening clouds hover over their heads the instant you show signs of being "out of sorts" or "under the weather." Don't imperil their future by neglecting your health.

LYKO

will banish that "tired feeling" and dispel that worn-out look. It will renew your strength and vigor, overcome the ravishing effects of over work and worry, revive your spirits and increase your hold on life. Being a refreshing appetizer, a valuable aid to digestion and a wonderful promoter of the general health, because of its positive vitalizing and reconstructive value, its use is especially desirable in cases of subnormal conditions. If you suffer from nervous exhaustion, muscular or mental fatigue or deficiency of vital force due to general weakness or wasting illness, you'll find "LYKO" particularly beneficial. It tones up the entire system and keeps you feeling fit. Ask your druggist for a bottle today.

LYKO is sold in original packages only, like pasteurized cows. Refuse all substitutes.

DANDRUFFY HEADS BECOME HAIRLESS

If you want plenty of thick, beautiful, glossy, silky hair, do by all means get rid of dandruff,-for it will starve your hair and ruin it if you don't.

It doesn't do much good to try to brush or wash it out. The only sure way to get rid of dandruff is to dissolve it, then you destroy it entirely. To do this, get about four ounces of ordinary liquid arvon; apply it at night when retiring; use enough to moisten the scalp and rub it in gently with the finger tips.

By morning, most if not all, of your dandruff will be gone, and three or four more applications will completely dissolve and entirely destroy every single sign and trace of it.

You will find, too, that all itching and digging of the scalp will stop, and your hair will look and feel a hundred times better. You can get liquid arvon at any drug store. It is inexpensive and four ounces is all you will need, no matter how much dandruff you have. This simple remedy never fails.

TESTS OF PUPILS SHOW 93 PER CENT DEFECTIVE

Most of Minor Character—County Schools Well Toward Top in Such Examinations.

Ninety-three per cent of the children examined in the school health demonstration conducted during March in some of the school districts of St. Louis County were found to have some physical defect, the official report states. The report has just been received from Jefferson City by the St. Louis County Committee of the Tuberculosis Society of St. Louis, under the auspices of which the demonstration was conducted. Of the entire 1290 children examined, 1202 were found to have some defect, and a total of 3429 defects were found.

Many of the defects were of a very minor character, and easily corrected. All children having defects of any kind were at once recommended to the care of their family physicians for treatment. The showing stands well towards the top among the counties of the State where such demonstrations have been conducted, especially in the matter of malnutrition. A rather smaller percentage of undernourishment is shown in this report than in most such reports. Hugh McK. Jones, chairman of the County Committee, says,

Among the physical defects, those of the teeth are in the lead in the report. Nine hundred and fifty-one children were found to have defective teeth, and 621 have enlarged and diseased tonsils. Adenoids were found in the throats of 576 children. Malnutrition comes next in the list, and after that defective vision and defective hearing, respectively. Only one-third of the children examined were undernourished. A remarkable feature of the findings regarding teeth is that although so many defects were found, one of the schools made the best showing of any school in the State thus far surveyed, the children in that school having almost perfect teeth. Defects discovered other than those mentioned were eye defects other than defective vision, obesity, suspected trachoma, skin and scalp eruptions, enlarged glands, pediculosis, heart disease, pulmonary disease, mental and nervous trouble, orthopedic trouble, spinal defects and speech defects. Few cases of the last five ailments were found.

Eight schools were included in the survey. There was not time for further work, as the examining staff had engagements elsewhere. It is hoped to continue the demonstration in other districts, and the committee announces it will be glad to conduct such surveys on request. No demonstrations will be made except on request.

The finding of the survey also forms the basis for the 1922 program of the committee. This committee will go more actively into public health nursing in the county, especially in the line of follow-up work with children already examined. The committee believes a county public health nurse is an imperative need for St. Louis county. This will be one of the first undertakings under the new program.

FAMOUS OLD PRESCRIPTION FOR RHEUMATISM

From coast to coast the fame of a wonderful treatment for rheumatism has spread, until it is now estimated that the 30,000 drug stores in the United States each fill this prescription an average of seven times in a year, making a grand total of 250,000 bottles of medicine consumed by those who suffer from rheumatism.

This indicates efficacy in no uncertain manner, for it is a truism that merit is its own best salesman. Even the medical fraternity, always skeptical, now admit the most proficient within this splendid formula in their daily practice, as most any well-stocked druggist can supply the ingredients, which long ago became staples of the drug trade.

The formula, as quoted by a licensed physician, is as follows:

R 2040
Iodide Potash	2 drs.
Soda Salicylate	4 drs.
Wine Colchicum	4 drs.
Comp. Ext. Cardiol	1 oz.
Comp. Fl. Balmwort	1 oz.
Elix. Lactated Pepsin, ad. q. s.	8 oz.
Mix. Take 1 teaspoonful after each meal and when retiring.

This is a constitutional blood treatment, consequently must be taken over a considerable period of time.

NOTE: To subdue the acute pains of rheumatism, it is suggested the patient procure 5-grain Su-rhol tablets, and take as directed on carton. Immediate relief of pain should follow and the liquid formula ultimately overcomes the dreadful affliction.

HOTEL SITE VALUE UP 1000 PER CENT OR MORE SINCE '96

Half-Block on De Baliviere Avenue Sold for More Than $300,000 Cost Gerhart Company About $30,000.

HOSTELRY OF 600 ROOMS TO BE BUILT

Big Profits Recall Instances Where St. Louis Realty Has Been Turned Over in Quick Time at Enormous Increase.

By Berry Moore.

Real estate operators are speculating as to the profit that will accrue to the F. H. and C. B. Gerhart Real Estate Co., through the sale of the half-block on the east side of De Baliviere avenue, extending from Pershing to Waterman avenue, as a site for a $2,000,000 hotel to be constructed by a group of Eastern capitalists represented by J. L. Sprague, with offices in the Chemical Building. The price paid for the land has not been announced.

Contracts signed on Thursday in this connection, it is understood, provide for a consideration for the land in excess of $300,000. The price paid by the Gerhart concern for the same site in 1896, was not more than $25,000 or $30,000, or perhaps even less, veteran members of the St. Louis real estate fraternity declare. The Gerhart company refused an offer of $200,000 for this property five years ago.

While the carrying charges, including taxes, general and otherwise, and interest on the amount invested, have been onerous, lucrative rentals have been derived from the half-block for stands, according to Frank H. Gerhart, president of the company, especially during the World's Fair period, when it was a source of large profits. The land was adjacent to the World's Fair grounds and offered alluring sites for tents and amusement purveyors, who were excluded from the exposition grounds. De Baliviere avenue was the main thoroughfare to the World's Fair grounds.

Hotel to Have 600 Rooms.

The hotel will be six stories high and will cover the entire half block. It will have 600 guest rooms with baths, a roof garden, a ballroom and other attractive features. The site has a frontage on De Baliviere avenue of 360 feet by a depth of 150 feet on Pershing and on Waterman avenue, and is vacant, except for a few refreshment stands. The cost of the proposed building is estimated at $3500 a room, or approximately $2,000,000.

The F. H. & C. B. Gerhart Real Estate Co. has been among the most successful real estate operators on a large scale in St. Louis, and invariably has staked its claims on sites in the western part of the city. The concern has eschewed all stock investments on the theory that it is ill-advised to have one's money invested in that which one cannot directly control, according to Frank H. Gerhart.

It is said that Frank Gerhart had an opportunity to buy Kenrick Park, a triangle plot at Lindell and Vandeventer avenues for $1000, a number of years ago. He had $1000 with which he was going to buy a horse in Illinois. He was in doubt for a few days as to whether he should buy the horse or the triangle plot. He finally bought the horse. The city bought the triangle plot for a park for $50,000.

Realty circles recall generous profits derived through the purchase of advantageously situated sites in the West End by those in the vanguard of speculators in this area.

Louis Cella's Easy Money.

According to Lawrence Cartan, president of L. V. Cartan & Co., "Little" Louis Cella purchased for $28,000 the site on the east side of King's highway between McPherson avenue and Hortense place, occupied by the Racquet Club, and within less than 10 days sold it to the Racquet Club as a sit for its present building, for $30,000.

L. E. Dorr offered the Racquet Club for $32,500 for the site, which was wanted for a building for the Dorr & Zeller Catering Co. Cartan had tried to get him to buy the site for $30,000 a week before it was sold to the Racquet Club, but he had refused to pay more than $28,000.

The Dorr & Zeller Catering Co. recently purchased a site at the northwest corner of Waterman and De Baliviere avenues, which it is improving with a building from plans made by Preston J. Bradshaw, architect. The building, which will cost $125,000, is being financed by Mercantile Trust Co.

MISSISSIPPI VALLEY COMPANY REPORTS MANY GOOD SALES

The Mississippi Valley Trust Co., through its real estate officer, William R. Cady, reports a brisk demand for both improved and vacant residential property. "The difficulty of obtaining securities with satisfactory yields," says Mr. Cady, "has driven many investors to the real estate market. Three pieces of property belonging to the Missouri State University were disposed of by us in less than three weeks after having been listed."

Sales for the week were: 3225 Longfellow, two-and-one-half-story brick residence, containing nine rooms, conservatory and garage, sold for Marie Vogel estate to a client of the Mathews Real Estate Co.; 4210 Washington boulevard, 10-room brick, sold for Missouri State University to Dorothy McVey; 4012-14 McPherson avenue, four-family flat building, sold for Missouri State University to C. L. Hobbs for residence; 2655-57 Olive stret, two 11-room houses sold for Missouri State University to Frank Yawitz; 1401-3-5-7 Monroe street and 2305-07 North Fourteenth street, for Commiskey Real Estate Co., to H. D. Scott, stores, flats and five residences; sold for Ames Realty Co., 100x130 feet on east side of Melville avenue opposite Waterman, to Guarlford Realty Co., who are improving with two seven-room dwellings; southeast corner Kingsbury and Pennsylvania, lot 74x180 feet, sold for Ames Realty Co. to A. H. Hartman, who will improve with residence; sold for Leo Maginn, southeast corner of Washington terrace and Clara avenue, lot 125x195 feet, to L. Berger, who will improve with high-class residence; sold for L. E. Miller, lot 25 feet on south side of Northland avenue, east of Union, to W. F. Glauert.

HOLLYWOOD HEIGHTS SUBDIVISION TO BE OPENED

The Alfred Baker Realty Co. announces the sale of six and one-half acres in Webster Groves, fronting on Lockwood avenue, adjoining Sherwood Forest on the west, to H. Gilshauser. The sale was made through Charles A. Baker, agent. This property adjoins the Algonquin Golf Club. The property will be subdivided immediately under the name of Hollywood Heights, and will be an exclusive California-type bungalow section.

Street improvements on Hollywood place and Oaks court, both 40-foot streets, will be started immediately and will be included in the sales price to purchasers. The opening sale of lots in Hollywood Heights will begin Sunday, April 30. This property is unique in that it is restricted against residences and other types of homes, and is the one exclusive bungalow subdivision around St. Louis.

The company also reports a big demand for Sherwood Forest residential building sites. Four sales of 100-foot lots have been consummated within the past week to E. L. Spolander, C. K. Riesmeyer, G. A. Pickel and C. A. Clark.

NAVY POST OPENS BONDS STATION AT LIBERTY CENTRAL

Navy Post No. 294 of the American Legion has just established its bonds station in the main lobby of the Liberty Central Trust Co. No charges will be made for assistance in making out applications for the Missouri bonus. Application blanks are being distributed.

The service is for all ex-service men—sailors, soldiers and marines. The bonus station, for the convenience of those who cannot visit it during banking hours, will remain open daily, including Saturdays, from 9 a. m. to 6 p. m.

Pilgrim Church Buys Residence.

The Wanstrath Realty Co. reports having scold the residence at 4165 West Florissant avenue, opposite the Pilgrim Church, for the account of Walter F. Riley and wife to the Pilgrim Evangelical Church.

The First National Co. It will be occupied by the catering company, now at 3926 Washington boulevard.

100 Per Cent on Jai Alai Site.

Simon Van Raalte, president of the S. Van Raalte Investment Co., bought the site at the northeast corner of DeBalliviere avenue and Kingsbury place just before the World's Fair for $30,000 and sold it shortly afterward for $60,000 to a group of Havanna capitalists as a site for the Jai Alai building, the handball court of which was an outside feature of the big show of 1904. This was part of 960 feet owned by Van Raalte.

Again "Little Louis Cella," in 1909, through the Mercantile Trust Co., bought the southeast and the southwest corners of Delmar and Hamilton avenues, each 100x140 feet, in Washington Heights, for $80 a foot. He resold the two corners within less than a year for $120 a foot, according to L. V. Cartan. The frontage now is worth $500 a foot or more, real estate agents say. Both sites are improved with substantial business blocks, the southeast corner being owned by A. Magid, a client of James C. Campbell, and Le Grand Jones, associated, and the southwest corner by O'Neil Ryan.

The Mississippi Valley Trust Co., through Will Cady, has effected the sale of a plot on Locust street, east of Twelfth street, entailing a net profit of $20,000 on an investment of less than 90 days. Details of this transaction will be withheld pending execution of the final papers. Several transactions of large extent have been virtually concluded but are withheld from publication for business reasons. Two of these embrace large buildings occupied by retail concerns in the central business district. These are being engineered by Isaac T. Cook and the Mercantile Trust Co.

PRINCETON PLACE HOME SITES ARE SELLING

Thirty Lots in This Addition Have Been Sold by Weis-Meyerricks Company.

Princeton place was a mecca of both homeseekers and speculators during the last week. A total of 30 lots have been sold in this addition, according to Weis-Meyerricks Realty & Loan Co., agents for the property.

The majority of the buyers bought for home sites, and plans for many homes for the tract are in process of preparation. The demand for lots in this addition is such that several of the buyers have sold their purchases at snug profits.

This addition, which is at 6900 Gravois avenue, forms one of the most attractive sites for bungalows, houses and flats on the south side. The price at which the lots are being offered include made streets, sewers, side walks, in fact all surface improvements. Schools and churches of all creeds are within convenient reach. The tract is accessible by the Cherokee car line. With Gravois avenue as a center, Princeton Place is in one of the most rapidly developing sections of southwest St. Louis. The rate at which the lots are being absorbed would indicate that the tract will soon be out of the market so far as the present owners are concerned.

ROGER BABSON SAYS THIS IS THE TIME TO BUY

"My clients in the real estate business can do their customers the greatest service by opening up new tracts and encouraging people to buy land now on which to build later. Now is the time to buy house lots and lay plans, but not the cheapest time to let contracts."

The "Garden Spot" of Fine Homes.

Undoubtedly the choicest residential property in or about St. Louis is in this tract in University City — the "Garden Spot" of fine homes. And we emphasize that in here lies the greatest opportunity for profit in real estate in St. Louis today!

Two Blocks West of Delmar Car

University Park in University City

The illustration shows the choice location of this beautiful tract of land — known as University Park — surrounded by beautiful homes — held until the time was ripe—NOW—so situated, platted and restricted as to assure its value as residential property.

On Delmar Bl.—Take Delmar Car

To-Day COME — COME, LOOK, LISTEN—THEN JUDGE DON'T LOSE THIS CHANCE THROUGH NEGLIGENCE — To-Day COME

Come out today—on Delmar boulevard, two blocks west of Delmar car—don't neglect it—for the grand opening and offering of the lots in this choice residential tract for a profit or a home. Our representatives will be on the premises all day to aid you in choosing a lot and for giving any information you may desire. Be out today and investigate. There is no obligation to buy.

It Lies Along the Path of Values Where Profit Is Certain

This is opportunity knocking at your door. And proof of the CERTAINTY of a handsome profit for you is that this property lies directly ALONG THE PATH OF VALUES! Do you realize what that means? It means this—directly along the path where real estate in St. Louis has always been most valuable—along Olive and Delmar—where it is now the most valuable and where you can figure with mathematical precision that it will increase with every passing month. This tract of unimproved land is away down in price today. It did not advance with improved property, but it will SOON—mighty soon! So we are going to make it easy for you now to share in the big profits while the prices are low. Don't fail to be out today for the grand opening!

A SUBSCRIBER.—We have no recipes for sausages. Inquire of the meat markets, they may be able to furnish them.

F. L. B.—The Protestant minister should be addressed as Mr. Blank. Your minister can tell you best about the clothes to be worn for confirmation.

WONDERING.—The Creve Coeur Lake has an inlet and outlet. It rises from a small creek called Fee Fee Creek and empties into the Missouri River through the Creve Coeur Creek.

S. T. K.—1. Consult the Bureau of Mines, Jefferson City, Mo., for information regarding the lead mine. 2. Write the Agricultural Department at Jefferson City for names of New York concerns interested in egg shipping.

S. M.—The first automobile that was seen in St. Louis was in 1893, by Perry Lewis. It was an electric carriage made from an old road wagon. The first machines for practical use were run by doctors to make their calls. In 1899 the first steam cars could be bought for about $750.

GUS.—Mountainview is a post-village of Howell County, on the Kansas City, Fort Scott & Memphis Railroad, 23 miles northeast of West Plains. The population is approximately 300. Write to the Agricultural Editor, College of Agriculture, Columbia, Mo., for information relative to poultry marketing.

L. H.—Babylon is the Hebrew form and general designation of a city in Mesopotamia, which from about 2300 B. C. was the capital of the country known as Babylon. It is a combination of two words, bab meaning "Gate, and ill meaning God, and therefore in Babylonian inscriptions means "Gate of the Gods." The period of Babylon's greatest glory was between B. C. 1800 and the fall of the Neo-Babylonian Monarchy B. C. 538.

MRS. R. T.—The following is a very good and easily prepared mayonnaise dressing: Dry materials, 2 tablespoons sugar, 1 heaping teaspoon mustard, pinch of salt, one-half cup of vinegar to which add half cup of water, mix gradually to the dry material. Melt 1 tablespoon butter, add two tablespoons flour, and when cooled add one beaten egg. To this mixture add dry materials and vinegar. Cook all in double boiler until right consistency. Place in ice box until ready for use. Serve on vegetable or fruit salads by adding cream to the dressing.

J. C. K.—You will require a fishing license to fish at Spanish Lake.

G. W. W.—The St. Louis Bar Association is located at the Liberty Central Trust Building, Tenth floor. Frank Mohr is the secretary.

LIKE TO KNOW.—If you signed a subscription blank it did not give you the privilege of cancelling the subscription, you will have to pay the balance, but the amount is so small that there are hardly likely to sue if you refuse to pay.

E. P.—The person named as administrator of the estate need not be a resident of St. Louis, but a resident of the State is enough. A bond furnished by a bonding company is usually given, but the court can accept any bond of which it approves.

L. E. A.—If your husband's conduct forces you to leave, he cannot sue you for desertion on the ground that you have deserted him. You should sue either for a divorce or for separate maintenance, as you prefer. Your husband can be made to pay your lawyer's fees.

AN OLD SUBSCRIBER.—The property of the woman who died intestate, will have to go through the Probate Court and be handled by an administrator in the usual way. If the clear market value of the property going to the only son is $25,000, the inheritance tax will be $250.

WORRIES.—The pension dates from the time of filing the application for it. The Spanish-American War veteran's widow receives $12 per month during her widowhood and also $2 per month for each minor child (under 16 years of age) of the soldier.

M. C.—If the woman refuses to return to her husband, he could sue her for desertion. The husband has a right to change his mind about where he wants to live and practice his profession. Under the circumstances he should support his wife and should pay the expenses of her return trip.

R. J. H.—(1) All preferred stockholders who paid cash for their stock will benefit if the mentioned group of stockholders bring suit and win same against the company. Thus dose is found to be a tablespoonful. A coated tongue is likely caused by some derangement of the health, often of the digestion.

MAGGIE.—There is no drug or substance you can give your husband to take away his taste for liquor. Alcoholism is treated, any cures are effected by treatment, where the person sincerely desires to quit the habit, but such treatment is not public, but privately by a physician and with patients under control in an institution. After 3 years of expensive experimentation, we are ready to invite applications for a proposition that will appeal to the business man. This is a quality proposition and will stand rigid investigation. Our method of household cooking yet devised.

Housewives are eager to secure this article. The exceptionally attractive appearance of the cooker commands instant attention; the progressive plan of practical demonstration proves conclusively all of the advantages mentioned above. It is a quality product and will actually sell itself on the method of household cooking yet devised.

If you know you are capable of handling a house-to-house campaign, involving the hiring, training and direction of a big force of salesmen, this is a remarkable money-making opportunity for you. You can build a business that will be permanent and increasingly profitable from year to year.

The frequency of use of this cooker—3 times a day, 21 times a week and nearly 100 times a month—insures sales results proportionately greater than the big returns realized in the vacuum cleaner and washing machine campaigns, which have made millionaires of many manufacturers. We also are prepared to handle your installment contracts on a most liberal basis and co-operate with you to work out such and other selling plans; $6000 to $25,000 earnings are easily possible and an exceptional man can earn much more.

We are ready to talk business with you right now, and we will give preference to the man who is willing and able to assume complete personal responsibility and supervision for the territory assigned to him, maintain headquarters and deal with us on an exclusive distributor basis.

Address, MR. DUNCAN, Vice President, Suite 703, 20 E. Jackson bl., Chicago, Ill.

MISS KATHERINE MACDONALD

Moving Picture Actress Who Is Regarded as One of the World's Beauties

Her features are formed in a manner considered near to perfection, her head is gracefully poised on a slender neck, her mouth is small and lips full, her eyes are blue turning toward hazel, and her lashes are long and sweeping. Her skin is remarkably clear and free from faults.

TRAGIC FATE OF GIRL WHO STOLE HER SISTER'S HUSBAND

Mrs. Renzelman's savings of two years brought yellow-haired sister to America From Germany—Husband at first objected but his mood changed after the sister-in-law entered his home—Wife, slow to jealousy, at first saw no harm in friendship of sister and husband—Learning the truth she pleaded with sister all night to give up the man they both loved—Is now awaiting trial for murder

IN THE jail at Freehold, N. J., is Mrs. Herman Renzelman, awaiting trial for the murder of her sister, Gesine. From conversations with her comes this story, in which are involved the passions of mighty tragedy.

Two years ago Herman Renzelman and his wife bought a small farm near Eatontown, N. J., a few miles from Long Branch. It was a place of two acres, with a few trees, a frame house. They moved into the new home with considerable glee, and in the summer of 1920 Renzelman started his automobile service for the Long Branch colony. He prospered, bought new furniture for the house, did a little painting, acquired some chickens. For the baby there were new clothes. For Mrs. Renzelman, who had been saving every penny to send to her parents and sisters in Germany after the war, a gorgeous silk dress was purchased.

This couple had had no peculiar history. Their domestic life had been as reasonably happy as can be expected by people who have to guard the spending of every nickel. They had been married 13 years. Two of the three children born to them had died. There was a baby a few months old. The last but one of Mrs. Renzelman's sisters married in Bremen. There was left Gesine, 27 years old, a supple blonde woman. Gesine was lonely with her parents, and wrote to her sister in America telling of her solitude.

Here was a problem for the fond Mrs. Renzelman. Love for her sister, compassion for the lonely girl, contrived to awake in her a desire to assist in some way the achievement of Gesine's happiness. Perhaps in America, she thought, Gesine will find someone to fall in love with her, then she could get married and be contented here. Mrs. Genzelman spoke to her husband, suggesting that they save enough money to pay Gesine's passage to America. They could arrange a position for her with one of Herman's patrons in Long Branch, until the right man should come along.

Herman, a slow man, was not eager to take upon himself the burden of this new expense. He argued that he had all he could do to make ends meet with the payments that had to be made on the farm, and that this sister would be a nuisance. But Mrs. Renzelman, softened to vast pity by the arrival of new letters from Gesine, insisted upon the gratification of her desire.

So she wrote Gesine, proposing the venture, suggesting it at first, then offering help directly. Gesine was immediately willing to come to America. "But," Mrs. Renzelman wrote, "you will have to wait until we can put aside the money. It will take a while. The baby has to have new things all the time, and with the high prices here now it will not be so easy."

And indeed it was not easy. Month by month Mrs. Renzelman put away a few dollars in the Eatontown bank, saving here by denying herself, there by scrimping on the food, until Herman would grumble at the meagerness of the fare and proclaim that that sister was taking the meat right out of his mouth.

So it went for two years. At last there was money enough for the passage and for a little wardrobe to clothe Gesine, to cheer her up after her long wait and to usher her into the new land with gayety. The money order was mailed. In October, 1921, Gesine arrived at Hoboken, and was driven in a car by Herman, at the urgent pleading of his wife, to the farm at Eatontown.

That first evening of the reunion of the sisters was a time of jollity. They could not, it seemed to Herman, let one another alone for five minutes. All the while it was "do you remember this," and "remember the time we did that," and the kissing and the crying was enough to drive a man crazy. Then the dinner was magnificent, with haasenpfeffer and dumplings, noodles and a great cake, upon the baking of which Mrs. Renzelman had spent her most careful art.

The next morning Herman, who was driving for a wealthy family in New York, promised to start right away and find a place for Gesine. He left for town, and the sisters had the house to themselves. It was decided between them that, until the position could be secured, Gesine should live on the farm. Mrs. Renzelman was happy to have her beloved Gesine with her during the day, while Herman was in the city. And when he was kept out late by his employers, or when roads were snowy and he stayed in town in the cheap room he had rented for the purpose, the women spent the evening talking over old times.

The first months of winter came, and still Gesine lived at the farm. She would go to town occasionally, but it was difficult for Herman to get her a place, and Gesine and he would return to Eatontown with bad news. But it made no difference to Mrs. Renzelman, for Herman liked Gesine and did not grumble any more about the trouble, the expenses, the darned bother of it. In fact, he and Gesine were getting along famously together. They kissed each other as if they were brother and sister.

"What harm is there in that?" Mrs. Renzelman thought. "Isn't he my husband, and isn't she my sister? Why shouldn't they kiss each other as much as they please? I'm glad they're getting on so well, after all the fuss he made about bringing her over."

Thus she managed to ignore for a time the subtle intimacy that had woven itself between Herman and Gesine. Even when she came into the living room, with its family portraits, red plush hangings and green carpet, and found the two in an embrace, she laughed away the horror which passed over her like a quick wind.

At last, in November, Gesine got a position with a family in New York, and sad was the parting of the sisters. Put it had to be, so Mrs. Renzelman resigned herself to the nights of Herman's absence. The farm, remote from the visits of neighbors, was not a place for merriment, with the curious little thoughts that would come to the wife's mind, little thoughts like daggers that pricked the heart with fear. But she was strong, strong enough to ignore those foolish ideas.

One evening, when Herman had been away for five days without writing a line to say what he was doing, Mrs. Renzelman was sitting alone by the lamp in the living room. Falling into a reverie, she suddenly became agitated and paced the room up and down. Why had she not heard from Herman? For hours she resisted the voice which told her to hurry to New York. Then she went to bed. And the next morning Herman came, with a story which pacified her.

But when, two days before Christmas, Mrs. Renzelman received from both Herman and Gesine letters saying that they would not be able to come out for Christmas dinner, she packed a small bag and went to New York. There she found Herman and Gesine living together in Herman's room.

The three talked. Mrs. Renzelman found, to her astonishment, that in her heart was a strange tenderness for her sister. She could not be hard with her. What Gesine needed, she heard herself saying, was good advice. She urged Gesine to come to the country alone with her. How could sisters be angry with one another.

In this mood of affection Mrs. Renzelman persuaded Gesine to come to Eatontown. There they talked through the night in the bedroom, Gesine in the mahogany bed, which she had been induced to occupy by her abject sister, and Mrs. Renzelman on a cot at the other side of the room. When dawn came Gesine had promised to give Herman up.

This was the day before Christmas. It was passed happily by the two women in preparing Christmas dinner. Again, the night was spent in talking over the future and planning happiness. It was decided that Mrs. Renzelman should close the country house and go to live in New York, where she could take care of Gesine.

On Christmas morning Herman came home, and, in good humor, entered into the mood of the occasion. At dinner both he and Gesine promised that Mrs. Renzelman would have no further cause for worry. But he insisted that she stay in the country with the baby, for the baby's health. As for Gesine, he would break his relation to her.

But when Herman and Gesine went away together the next morning blackest melancholy seized Mrs. Renzelman. She could not tell, now, whether she was being deceived or not. Her sister, whom she adored—could it be that after these two intimate nights, after all the promises, she would go back to Herman? And could she trust him, who looked at Gesine, even in the moments when he was swearing faithfulness, with such passion? Night after night, for a week, after Herman and Gesine had gone, Mrs. Renzelman lay awake, plunged into the deepest despair. And again she went to New York and found Herman and Gesine together.

There followed reconciliation, promises, the return of the husband to Eatontown and his disappearance. Mrs. Renzelman again traveled to the city in January and again found him with her sister.

Though now her husband openly declared his love for Gesine and defied his wife to separate them, she still loved her sister and felt toward her only a desire to safeguard her future welfare. Believing that another heart-to-heart talk would help, she induced Gesine to go again with her to the New Jersey farm. Once there, Gesine became sullen and then furious. She burst forth against her sister, cursed her for an in-

"I love your husband and he loves me. You might as well make the best of it, sister."

$30000, UNLOADED on SIDEWALK SAVED the BANK

The sight of real money thrown from truck relieved four-day strain on Salem (Mo.) depositors — Withdrawal of funds for investment in natural gas stock had caused bank to be closed—Rival banker came to the rescue in a spectacular way — Money obtained in St. Louis rushed to Salem and thrown on sidewalk in front of closed bank like a load of coal — Bank examiner smiles and opens the door to the magic knocking of dollars and cents

"Dump it on the sidewalk."

"WHERE'LL I put it?" asked the driver of the truck load of money.

A commanding voice rang out in answer:

"Dump it on the sidewalk."

"What? Shovel off $30,000 just like it was a load of coal?"

"You heard me!"

No, this is not a wisp of dialogue from a stage melodrama. Neither is it an excerpt from the scenario of a moving-picture thriller. The story that is to be woven around it would be unsuited to stage or screen because it has no villain. There also is another point of difference. The $30,000 was not stage money or movie-lot currency.

It was the best money the St. Louis market could afford—$15,000 in silver, that made a great rattle in its canvas bags when it hit the sidewalk, and $15,000 in paper which fell with a substantial thud, suggestive of the solidity of our justly celebrated Federal reserve system. To those who heard the treble of the coin and the subdued bass of the paper as the bags and bundles hit the sidewalk it was better music than that of the best silver cornet band they had ever listened to at the State Fair.

The winter sun was casting long, pale shadows down the main street of Salem, Mo., in the Ozarks. It was a brisk afternoon in the shadow-making business because an unusually large number of the 1771 inhabitants of Salem had gathered in that main street. Farm wagons, saddle horses and flivvers were ranged along the curbs and their owners were milling around in front of the point of interest in the picture, which was none other than the Farmers' and Merchants' Bank.

Folks in Salem and elsewhere pass banks every day and scarcely notice them. To many persons the open door of the bank is no temptation to thrift. Their attention is not arrested by gilt letters a foot high proclaiming the magnitude or solidity of a bank.

But when the door does not stand invitingly open and a little scrap of paper pasted on it proclaims that it has been "closed by order of the State Banking Commissioner," every wayfarer stops in his tracks and waits to see what's going to happen next.

In this particular instance, in January of the current year, the Farmers' and Merchants' Bank of Salem had been tagged with one of these bits of paper. Immediately it became a center of attraction. Checkers, solitaire and all other Ozark winter diversions were put aside and on each of four days everybody with a conveyance or good legs made a daily visit to the main street and camped there until time to go home for supper.

This had been going on for four days when, as has been said, the winter sun was casting long shadows down the street on the first day of February. Interest in the future of the bank was growing tense. Among the watchers outside were many farmers and small merchants whose deposits were tied up in the closed bank.

There was much discussion and speculation. By all the rules of life as laid down in the drama and the movies somebody should have been gloating over the discomfiture of the Farmers' and Merchants'. Some such thought as this caused a few in the restless crowd to try to trace the gloat down to its lair.

After nearly four days of discussion somebody gave voice to his conclusion on this subject:

"I'll bet Frank Dent is tickled to death about this."

Frank Dent is the president of one Salem bank and has a large financial interest in another. Both of his banks are in the same block and across the street from the Farmers' and Merchants'. Some of those who had the melodramatic viewpoint could picture him at that very moment standing at a convenient observation point in one of his banks and gloating over the misfortune of a competitor.

Four days of strain give rise to unhealthy thoughts when overwrought depositors get their heads together. When that stage of brooding is reached there is nothing like a counter diversion to turn disordered thoughts into other channels.

In this case the diversion came with startling suddenness and effect.

"Look at that darn fool cuttin' that corner!" shouted one in the crowd. All eyes were turned to where he pointed. Out at the west end of the street an automobile truck was straightening out after a perilously short turn. Its muffler was open and the driver was adding to the din by sounding the horn. A man with his overcoat collar turned up was on the seat with the driver. Two others were in the truck sitting on its cargo and as they came nearer a thrill went through the crowd.

"By golly, boys, those fellows have got guns in their hands!" shouted a man on the edge of the crowd.

"Tell 'em it's too late to rob this bank," cross-fired another.

The speeding truck sped down the street and turned in to the curb in front of the Farmers' and Merchants' Bank, ruthlessly scattering the crowd which quickly closed in again to see what was going on.

Then it was that the driver asked:

"Where'll I put it?"

And the man on the seat with him replied:

"Dump it on the sidewalk."

Having given the order he turned down his overcoat collar.

The man on the seat with the driver was none other than Frank Dent, guiding genius of two rivals of the closed bank.

The unloading of the $30,000, "like a load of coal," had a magical effect.

The door which had been closed by the majesty of the law for four days swung open and in that portal stood a bank examiner. For the first time since his arrival in Salem he smiled. At the same instant, it seemed to long-worried watchers, the winter sun shone brighter and the long shadows lost their pallor.

The bank examiner, still smiling, gave words of cheer to the men who alighted from the truck, though they still had guns in their hands. It was their appointed task to guard the money until it was safely stowed in the bank's vault.

For long enough to tell its mute story of the salvation of the bank the pile of money was left on the sidewalk. The crowd feasted its eyes on the pile of bags and packages. For four days the watchers had been looking at the grim front of the bank and regarding it as a place where money had been but now was not. Then suddenly money had been materialized at the exact focal point of interest. The strain was lifted. At last they could go home to suppers that would be relished and to sleep that would be dreamless. When the currency and bills had served their purpose in feasting the eyes and setting at rest the anxieties of the depositors it was taken inside. It was after banking hours, but before the wondering crowd broke up Frank Dent announced that the examiner had authorized him to say the bank would be open for business the next morning. A few minutes later an official notice to that effect was pasted on the door. The wearying vigil was over.

The closing of the Farmers' and Merchants' was brought about by an odd chain of circumstances.

If you ask most anyone who was in that crowd which witnessed the dumping of the load of money he will tell you the bank was gassed.

If that sounds strange and unbelievable you will investigate and come to the conclusion that this Ozark farmer's diagnosis was about right.

The bank was temporarily crippled by the fact that depositors within a very short period drew out more than $30,000 of their deposits to buy stock in a company which was prospecting for natural gas at Chanute, Kan.

Early this year two representatives of the gas prospecting company made a systematic canvass of Salem and the surrounding hill country, selling the company's stock. There was not, and is not now, any suspicion that the stock was not all that it was represented to be.

Some of the investors say that a former officer of the bank, when asked for an opinion as to the stock, told his questioners that so far as he could judge it was a sound investment. At that time he could not foresee that this opinion might cause many of his own depositors to withdraw money from the bank and put it in the stock. Anyway, that is what happened and when a bank examiner went over the books he found that the withdrawals had impaired the capital and surplus to such an extent that under the law he must order the bank closed.

Soon after the bank closed Frank Dent, the rival banker, held a series of conferences with officers and directors of the Farmers' and Merchants'. The result was that he agreed to furnish the necessary money to reopen the bank. With H. A. Bennett, president of the closed bank, he came to St. Louis and arranged to get the money and to have it transported to Salem.

With considerable secrecy plans were made to have a truck and two specially deputized guards in waiting when the train reached Salem in the afternoon. There were few persons about the station to observe the transfer of the money from the train to the truck, as nearly all residents of the town and surrounding country were up in town watching for what was going to happen next at the bank. Thus the stage was all set for a real thriller with a smashing climax. The early acts were on a darkened stage, but the dumping of the money, "like a load of coal," was in the full glare of all the spotlights. It made a big hit with the audience.

After seeing that show, with the final curtain going

How Fairyland Opens for a Farmer's Daughter

Emma Calve, famous opera singer, has "discovered" Kathleen Kersting of Wichita, Kan., and will take her to France as her personal pupil and possible successor — Musicians declare that 13-year-old girl has the perfect voice of a woman, although the diva who adopted her says she has much to learn—Charming and extraordinary story told of the little girl who has said ever since she was 3 years old that she would be a prima donna :: ::

THIS is to tell how Kathleen Kersting's dream came true.

When April began, Kathleen, who is 13 years old and in her first year at the Wichita High School, looked forward to nothing more exciting than the continuation of her vocal lessons under the local teacher. She might sing at the moving picture houses occasionally, and participate in the school theatricals. Her mother would take her to hear such visiting musicians as had Wichita on their itineraries. That was all, except that Kathleen Kersting had dreams.

When April goes out she will have virtually finished packing the things she expects to wear in Paris. Her high school work will have ended; there will be no more lessons under the local teacher of vocal; no more school theatricals; no more singing for the movies. She will be Mlle. Kathleen Kersting, personal pupil of Mme. Emma Calve, famous diva, and will be preparing for the journey to Madame's chateau in the Pyrenees, where will be launched the course that (if the sequel of the dream comes true) will lead to fortune and to glory.

It is a fact that, through the cloudy skies of Kansas, the splendors of fairyland have burst upon this farmer's daughter with a suddenness and allure rarely to be found in this world of frustration and disappointment. Only those whose birth is attended by the good fairies have such luck as this. After hearing all the circumstances, one feels that the head fairy at the time must have written down in his gold-backed book that this child would one day sing "Carmen" before the world's great folk.

Briefly, the thing that happened was this: Mme. Calve, now in the afternoon of a glorious career, being on a recital tour of this country, visited Wichita to fill an engagement. There she heard of a marvelous girl singer, daughter of Henry Kersting, a retired farmer. So interested was she by the reports of local music teachers that she asked the child to sing for her. As a result of the trial, the diva extended a pressing invitation to Kathleen to accompany her home, there to receive free instruction and training.

They will sail from New York May 6, accompanied by Kathleen's mother. Madame has held out to her pupil the possibility that, if all goes well, she may make her debut on the operatic stage at the age of 16!

The Post-Dispatch staff writer who visited Wichita to make inquiry about this remarkable episode found that the facts fully justified the previous reports. Later, he saw Mme. Calve in Kansas City and received the necessary confirmation from her.

Madame, as befits her prestige and knowledge, desired to be very conservative in the matter of predictions. "This is a little girl," she said in English, plentifully mixed with French phrases. "Many, many things must happen before she can sing opera. For the future I cannot say. She has a voice of fine quality and great range. It is a golden voice, very large and mature—the voice of a woman.

"But I am very much afraid all this publicity will spoil my little pupil. She must not hope for too much. She is very promising, of course—otherwise I should not take her. But there is hard work for her to do; how much she hardly can realize."

But, curiously, the impression the writer had of Kathleen was that it would take a great deal to spoil her. Stranger yet, she seemed to have a very distinct realization of the arduous work and long training that intervene between her present and her visioned future.

In many respects she is an unusual child. Hardly pretty, she has an elfin charm of manner and expression that suggest talent. She is sturdy, boyishly friendly, and most frank. Old gentlemen make much of her. Yet the most marked of her outward characteristics is a sort of elusive wildness. One would expect her to dance, or run, or burst into song upon impulse.

One impression was that she is a born actress—an impression borne out by stories of her brief past. It began when she was 3 years old, when somebody took her to see a performance of "Silver Threads Among the Gold." Succeeding that great event, the Kersting household witnessed a never-ending series of theatricals, in which Kathleen acted all the parts for the benefit of her dolls. Of course, she didn't remember much of the lines, but that was no obstacle—she simply imagined others as she went along.

"I can see her yet," said her mother, "fishing window curtains out of the laundry bag, pinning them to her shoulders for a court train and parading around the room before her dolls. She would make up all sorts of speeches—haven't only knows where she got her high-sounding ideas."

Now, this may all seem normal enough to those who have little girls of their own. It is not strange for them to trump up costumes and make speeches to their dolls. But the thing eventually palls on most of them. In the case of Kathleen Kersting, however, the tendency grew more pronounced with age. It was accompanied by a noticeable penchant for singing and dancing, and these traits, too, became more marked as she developed into a robust schoolgirl, with merry gray eyes and thick brown braids.

Although not Catholics, her parents sent her some years ago to a convent. There she figured in several escapades, and all of the same character. She was forever organizing unauthorized theatricals, with herself in the leading roles. The good nuns were considerably distressed by the persistence of these surreptitious performances, but the mother superior recognized her talent and took pains to encourage its expression.

All this time she had continued to sing, and her voice grew out of all proportion to her fast-growing body. When at home, she was besieged with requests to sing for friends of the Kerstings, and had sung in public before she was 10 years old. As a matter of fact, there was a strain of singers in the family, which probably explains Kathleen's unusual ability.

Her paternal grandfather, Richter Kersting, was a tenor in Germany, and even in his old age, after he came to America, was known through the countryside as a fine singer. Her father also possesses a good voice, and has been a member of various male choirs. Nevertheless, while her parents knew she had a good voice and were duly proud, they little realized the degree of its excellence until within the last year.

Some eight months ago a friend of the family, a man who particularly liked her, informed her father that if her parents didn't give her vocal lessons, he would. This was not necessary. When Kathleen was a baby, her father, then past middle age, had amassed sufficient property through the sweat of his brow and his knowledge of crops, to leave the farm. For a time he conducted a hotel in Wichita, and further increased his competence. The friend's offer stirred him to send his daughter to Mrs. Martin Flannagan's school for voice.

The result was astounding. In a few months trained musicians were pronouncing the child a phenomenon, and this opinion was supported by various stars who visited Wichita on tour. In fact, Mme. Calve's offer was not the first of its kind. A Chicago virtuoso told the Kerstings if they could arrange to live in that city he would train their daughter without charge. But this was not possible.

Since then, however, there have been numerous local demands for her talent. Her parents have permitted her to sing occasionally in moving-picture houses, and her earnings from this source helped to buy her an automobile. It was not the first money she had earned by singing. When she was 4 years old, her mother related, Kathleen was wont to acquire sundry quarters and half-dollars by singing before the guests at her father's hotel.

"And I said then I'd be a prima donna some day, you remember," Kathleen interrupted. "It's a fact; she did," Mrs. Kersting confirmed. "She's always had the idea. Nobody could make her believe anything else. We always thought it was such a funny notion."

"Well, no doubt you're very much surprised over what has happened?" asked the interviewer of Kathleen.

"No," she said, as if reluctant to confess it, "I can't say that I am exactly surprised. I'm glad, of course."

"But you didn't dream a month ago that you'd be in France a month from now, studying under one of the world's greatest singers?" "I didn't think it would happen so soon," she replied with modest defiance. "But I expected to be there some day. I've always believed I would—I've always said I would. I'd have been awfully disappointed if it never had come true."

Nor could there be any question of her sincerity. One saw that this child with the accent of the Western town—this little girl who had never been east of Topeka in her life—had never for a moment doubted her destiny. It was the sort of confidence that is born in one, as much a part of her nature as the texture of her golden voice.

But getting back to what happened when Mme. Calve came to town—her secretary telephoned the Kersting residence and said that Madame had heard of Kathleen, and would like to hear her sing that evening. The Kerstings didn't dream that opportunity was knocking at their daughter's door. They were just a trifle weary of having their little girl sing for superior strangers. They said they couldn't arrange it that evening. Luckily, Madame was in a complaisant mood. Very well, she could visit them the next day. Would that do? It would.

The diva brought her accompanist. Kathleen wasn't very nervous. She sang "Rose in a Bud," a semi-classical piece. She had not finished the first verse when the famous star jumped up from her chair. She swept the youthful singer into her capacious embrace.

"Magnifique!" she cried. "The voice of a bird. Ah, I must have you! You will come with me to France, my child. I want you. Who knows—perhaps you shall take my place!" Which, considering that the world has yet to produce the equal of Mme. Calve's "Carmen," was no small praise.

Then she bundled the accompanist off the bench. "Enough," she commanded. "We will see." And, for more than an hour, she had Kathleen vocalizing, often joining in with her own famous voice, as if to encourage her pupil by the comparison.

On the following day there was a two-hour conference between Mme. Calve and the Kerstings. "But I want her to finish her second year in high school," pleaded the mother. "Won't you wait a year?"

Kathleen Kersting, to whom a great adventure unexpectedly came.

"Not a day," was the emphatic response. "I will not have other people playing with this voice. If she goes, she must go back with me."

"But she cannot go away and leave her parents this way," was the protest.

"Then come with her," was the prompt rejoinder. "LeCabrieres—my chateau in the Pyrenees Mountains—it is very large. There is room enough. Let her mother be with her."

And so it was arranged. The only individual who seems to lose by the arrangement is Henry Kersting, the father. But he is not the sort to complain. A massive granite monument of a man, wearing a blue shirt and overalls, and smoking an old pipe, he laughed as he said to the writer:

"Oh, I'm going down to the farm and batch with my boy, Fred. I'm not worrying any about myself. I figure it's the baby's big chance, and I'm determined she shan't lose it. We've always been pardners—Babe and me eh, Babe?" he chuckled, nudging her. "Her brother'll miss her, though," he said, referring to the son who is "batching" down on the farm. "This place is a rough-house from the minute he gets here until he goes back."

"I've got the best old brother on earth," declared Kathleen. "I don't know how I'll get along without him."

And that's the sort of people the Kerstings are. Make one think of red apples, and milk in the springhouse, and new chips of oak.

In her suite in the Baltimore Hotel at Kansas City, Mme. Calve received the correspondent. "I do not understand why you make such a fuss of it," she expostulated, with Gallic gesture. "Tell me, now, why is it a story?" She was told.

"But—I have a conscience," she exclaimed, thumping her broad chest. "It is the duty of the artiste, you see. I have a fine professeur one time. To me he said: 'Je donne—I give you the light' "—she illustrated by holding out a desk lamp. "You must pass it to the next generation.' Ah, is that not right? It is my duty, you see. And, then, America have been very kind to me, n'est-ce pas? I am grateful. You see?"

Then she voiced the fear, as told, that too much praise would not be good for her pupil. "There are so many things," she repeated. "She must study languages. She must learn literature, grace, presence—ah, so very many things. If this child will be a Melba, a Tettrazzini, I cannot say. She has not a phenomenal voice."

But, apparently, that was just what she did have. What did Madame mean? What is a phenomenal voice, then? Her answer made it clear. "I have known but two phenomenal voices," she replied, "the voices of Patti and Caruso. Myself—Melba—Tettrazzini—good voices, yes, but not phenomenal." After which it appeared that Kathleen need hardly be discouraged by the lack of a "phenomenal" voice, as Madame used that adjective.

Somebody had suggested to her that her pupil was of German extraction. "But that—I do not care—German, Italian, Russian—it is nothing! The voice, the voice!" she exclaimed, rapidly.

This was not her only philanthropy of the sort, she explained, and told how, a few years ago, when on tour in Australia, she encountered a very beautiful girl with a remarkable voice. As in this case, she took the child home to France. For several years she tutored her. That girl is Mlle. Vacia, who made her debut in January at Monte Carlo in the opera "Amadis." "Vacia" is a transposition of the letters of "Calve."

Of Kathleen, Madame said: "She is a very sweet child; what you call—natural." Of her new teacher, Kathleen said: "I could love her. It isn't because she has been so wonderful to me, but anyone can see how nice she is."

Kathleen can hardly wait for May. There will be a week in Paris, and then Le Cabrieres. They will return in October. Perhaps if Madame decides on a recital tour, her pupil will be home for the winter. If not, they will remain in New York to study. And when spring comes—France again.

"How many years will it take?" Mme. Calve was asked. She shrugged expressively. "Perhaps three years, perhaps 10. I do not know. I cannot lie. She has a good voice."

Our Sun Is a Typical Dwarf Star

A MOLECULE is about eight-thousands of one-millionths of an inch in diameter. Giant red stars like Betelgeuse and Antares are from 250 to 500 times the diameter of our sun, 864,400 miles across. But Prof. F. H. Seares, astronomer of the Mount Wilson Observatory, has found that the molecules and the stars, the smallest and the biggest things in the universe, obey the same law. In the air, for instance, the particles of oxygen and nitrogen are flying about freely in all directions but in such a way as to divide up the energy of motion equally between them. That is, in any gas, the big molecules move slower and the little molecules faster, so the average energy is about the same for all. It has now been discovered that the stars likewise follow the rule of the equal partition of energy so that the massive stars have the lowest velocities while the small stars, on the other hand, move with high speeds.

When the stars are classified according to their intrinsic brightness or candle power and their temperature it is found, as first shown by Hertzsprung and Russell, that the hottest stars do not differ widely in intrinsic brightness, but that among the cooler stars—those which are red—there are enormous differences in luminosity, amounting to 10,000 fold or more; and, what is more extraordinary, there is a gap between the two extremes of brightness, within which we find no red stars at all. We thus have the so-called giant and dwarf subdivisions of stars.

The classification according to intrinsic brightness and temperature thus reveals two great divisions of stars, both of which run through the entire scale of temperatures: the giants which, roughly, are of the same order of brightness, all very luminous; and the dwarfs, which merge with the giants among the very hot stars, but become fainter and fainter as we run down the temperature scale. Our sun is a typical dwarf star of intermediate temperature, whose brightness is about 1-100th that of an average giant.

The Long, Dull Sobering-Up of Swinburne

Mrs. Watts-Dunton, widow of the devoted friend who saved the great poet from a drunkard's grave, tells of Algernon's 30 years under Theodore's watchful eye—He went from brandy to champagne, to burgundy, to claret, to hock, to beer, and stuck to beer :: ::

HOW Algernon Charles Swinburne, master wizard of English word music, was saved from a drunkard's grave is told in print for the first time by the one woman who ought to know. Both pathos and humor inhere in the tale told simply by Mrs. Clara Watts-Dunton in "The Home Life of Swinburne," a book just published in England.

Much more than the story of the saving of Swinburne is in this narrative, which has to do with Swinburne the man rather than with Swinburne the poet. The book is an intimate picture of the real Swinburne—of Swinburne the boy rather than the man, for it appears that he was one of those rare lads who never grow up. According to this record, the illustrious poet who, dying 13 years ago at the age of 72, left behind him a vast volume of majestic rhythms, remained always a boy, the piping Peter Pan of British poesy.

Theodore Watts-Dunton, whose widow writes this book, saved Swinburne. Much has been said regarding the close association of these two men, some persons having accused Watts-Dunton of exercising a "pernicious" influence over the great poet. Mrs. Watts-Dunton tells of that more than 30 years' association in a way that reflects high credit upon both Swinburne and his preserver.

Swinburne, already a famous poet, was in his thirties when Walter Theodore Watts, later known as Theodore Watts-Dunton, took the unique lad in hand. There was urgent reason for somebody's taking Algernon in hand. In proof of this we have not only the facts set forth by Mrs. Watts-Dunton but also this significant paragraph in a book published a year after Swinburne's death, the author being his cousin, Mrs. Disney Leith, who wrote in "The Boyhood of Algernon Charles Swinburne":

"Algernon was, before all things, utterly unbusiness-like. It is not too much to say that his attitude toward money matters, and business of any kind, was that of a child—entirely irresponsible. He simply left all such, during the last 40 years of his life, at any rate, to Mr. Watts-Dunton, the friend and adviser in whom he placed the most implicit faith."

Algernon had grown up on the Isle of Wight, and in the rural region of Northumberland, having no taste for city life. After "Atalanta in Calydon," "Poems and Ballads" and other of his earlier books of astounding poetry had made him famous, though he cared nothing for fame, he developed a desire to be associated with poets and painters of the pre-Raphaelite school, who appeared to be cut somewhat to his own pattern. So he went to London, took rooms, and became identified with the celebrated set in which Burne-Jones and Dante Rossetti were shining lights.

Possibly the rather dilettante trend and tactics of some of the pre-Raphaelites did not appeal to this unique genius, but there is conclusive evidence in this new book and in some of the reviews of it in British periodicals that the strong liquor which he found available in that circle did appeal. Swinburne, of nervous temperament, high-strung, living the intellectual life, took to strong drink as a duck takes to deep water, if these recent accounts are to be credited. Even as he went the limit in producing bold and adventurous verse which shocked the smug Puritans of criticism 50 years ago, so also did he go the limit in imbibing what perhaps he would have been shocked to hear called booze.

Superlatives, in anapests and in alcoholics, were right in Algernon's line. In short, as these late records indicate so strongly that there can be no denying the fact, Algernon Charles Swinburne became a booze-fighter de luxe.

"The truth is that Watts saved Swinburne from a drunkard's grave," writes James Douglas, long-time friend of the poet and his preserver, in reviewing this new book. "He had become a hopeless dipsomaniac. The story as it was told to me by Watts was infinitely tragic. Swinburne ate little and drank nothing but neat brandy. His own relatives had abandoned all hope of saving him. He used to hurl decanters and bottles at the mirrors in restaurants, and finally he was refused admittance wherever he was known.

"His friends deserted him, and at last his mother appealed to Watts to go to his aid. The task was a dreadful one, for the poet was dying of diabetes caused by dipsomania. He was so weak that he could not walk, so Watts prepared a bed for him in the dining room on the ground floor."

In her book Mrs. Watts-Dunton tells how Swinburne was brought by her future husband in a four-wheeler from his rooms in Great James street to The Pines, home of Watts-Dunton, in Putney, where the poet remained more than 30 years, until he died in April, 1909. Lord Ronald Gower chanced to see the four-wheeler with its famous passenger at Hyde Park Corner. From a pure love of fun he started the rumor that Swinburne had been abducted by Watts, who for some years had been known as an intimate friend of the dipsomaniac singer.

Swinburne in 1874, from a drawing from life by Carlo Pellegrini.

"After he had been nursed back to health," writes Douglas in his review, "Watts told Swinburne that he could not keep him in his household unless he promised to comply with two conditions: (1) That he never would go to London; and (2) that he never would enter a public house in Putney. The poet faithfully kept these two promises till he died. There is not the slightest doubt that this added more than 30 years to his life. It is a complete answer to all the ungenerous sneers about the influence of Watts over his friend."

Mrs. Watts-Dunton tells how Swinburne was weaned from strong drink. The story is one calculated to make the gods of tragedy laugh. Told about an ordinary person, the tired business man for instance, it hardly would be believable; but being about a poet of unique type, an "utterly irresponsible" boy who never grew up, it is not to be discredited. Swinburne, it seems, got off the booze by gradual ascents from the inferno of strong brandy to the paradise of light beer. To put it otherwise, he came up through the seven hells stage by stage, emerging at last into the amber luminance of the lager and accepting the foam of the stein in place of the fire of the flask.

And, strange to say and yet most captivatingly delicious to learn, Swinburne made his climb from the depths because he was an incorrigible hero worshipper. Mrs. Watts-Dutton's books says:

"On the occasion of each change to a drink less potent than its predecessor, some literary reason was assigned which Walter (Watts-Dunton) guessed would awaken desire to emulate some real or fictitious hero beloved by Swinburne. As far as Algernon was concerned, he simply gave up brandy because Tennyson drank port, and changed from port to Burgundy because that was the tipple of Dumas' immortal Musketeers. Then for an equally good reason he proceeded to claret; and, finally, as it was Shakspeare's drink, to beer."

Doubtless Mrs. Watts-Dunton must be permitted to have the last word, being a woman, yet there can be no violation of the proprieties in quoting again from James Douglas, who says the way in which she declares Swinburne was weaned from brandy differs from the version he heard from the lips of Theodore Watts-Dunton:

"She says that Swinburne was persuaded to give up brandy because Tennyson drank port, etc. Watts told me that he effected the cure in a more plausible fashion. Swinburne was his guest. He told Swinburne that he had received a gift of some very fine champagne. The poet was too polite to ask for brandy. Later he told the poet that the champagne was finished and that he could not afford to buy so costly a wine. He produced some fine old Burgundy that had been presented to him. The poet was too polite to object. Then he told a similar story about claret. After the claret had all been drunk he persuaded Swinburne to drink hock, and then—beer.

"When I first lunched at The Pines," continues Douglas, "there were two decanters on the table, one containing whisky and the other containing claret. Beside Swinburne's plate there stood a bottle of beer with a screw top. The poet unscrewed it with a shaking hand, poured out half of it into a tumbler, and drank it at one draft. At the end of the meal he drank the other half in the same way. At that period he still was suffering from the effects of alcoholism. His nose was a violent red and his hands trembled. As the years went by these symptoms disappeared."

Further tribute to Watts-Dunton is carried in a summing up by Douglas: "It is all very well to say that the poet's suburban life at Putney killed his poetry, but if he had stayed in London he would not have lived six months, and he never would have written 'Tristram of Lyonesse.' Of course, his dependence on his friend was absolute. He was utterly incapable of taking care of himself.

Out of the broad canvas drawn by Mrs. Watts-Dunton emerges a quite respectable Swinburne—respectable from the conventional viewpoint. James Douglas has been quoted as to Swinburne's politeness. The widow of his preserver stresses this characteristic. As a lad he had learned politeness in his Isle of Wight home, his father being a Rear Admiral in the British Royal Navy and his mother the daughter of a Baron. As the Peter Pan of poesy he retained his good manners. Mrs. Watts-Dunton knew him, of course, only after he had come up from the seventh hell of dipsomaniacal indulgence and was negotiating the less hellish levels. She was but a small girl at the time when, in his London rooms of the pre-Raphaelitic period, in 1871, the doorman carried up to Swinburne the cards of two visitors. One of these was Joaquin Miller, poet of the American Sierras, just then a literary lion in London. Swinburne glanced at the cards and said, in his shrill voice, audible to the callers downstairs:

"Tell Miller to come up. Tell the other fellow to go to hell!'"

Put after his ascension to the foamy paradise of light beer the poet was ever a delightful gentleman, to which fact both of the Watts-Duntons, James Douglas and other close friends attest. We find that he held steadfast to his promise to Theodore never to enter a "pub" in Putney. Watts-Dunton himself told Douglas so—he never had the slightest cause to suspect his illustrious ward of violating this promise. Algernon, however, was not to be deprived of his beer, nor yet of entering a "pub." The delightful boyishness of the man was illustrated in his method of getting around violation of his pledge to Watts-Dunton and still entering a public house when he felt so inclined.

Lovers of Swinburnian word-music have been familiar for many years with the fact that a part of the poet's daily routine when living at The Pines was his walk to Wimbledon, but just why he always took that walk they have not known. This "constitutional" carried him across Wimbledon Common to the Rose and Crown. Not being in Putney, why should he not enter the Rose and Crown? Had he promised Theodore not to enter a "pub" in Wimbledon? He had not. So, every morning, the poet swung across Wimbledon Common to the Rose and Crown and drank a bottle of beer, attended, no doubt, by a buxom barmaid who wondered why the little man with the large head didn't flirt with her, as did many others who bought bottles at her bar.

"Go upstairs and get Charlie's shoes."

THE memory of a wonderful dog has lived for 30 years in Cuba, Mo., and has woven itself into the imperishable traditions of the town.

Hannibal had its Mark Twain. Bowling Green had its Champ Clark. Cuba had its Max. No other local celebrity has been so cherished in story in the last two generations. Recountals of marvelous and almost unbelievable doings of Max have been handed down from father to son and from mother to daughter.

He has been a source of inspiration, if not to other dogs, at least to owners of other dogs in this little Ozark town and has spurred their ambitions to teach new dogs new tricks, but anyone in Cuba will tell you that despite all this intensive training there has never been another Max.

Since Max died in 1892 there have been many moving events, including two wars, in which the young manhood of Cuba was called upon to fight for the flag. There have been storms, floods, fires, panics, boom years and lean years, heart-breaking tragedies, but threading all these human happenings like the persistent vine that defies every effort to check its growth the memory of this dog has flourished. The fabric of Cuba's traditions is shot through with the woof of Max.

A boy, stopped at random on the street in Cuba was asked if he knew who Max was.

"Sure," he said. "That was Dr. Martyn's dog. My father and my grandfather often talk about him. From what they say I guess he was some dog."

The owner of Max was Dr. T. P. Martyn, now dead. One of those who still cherish the memory of the dog is Dr. Martyn's son, Dr. John Martyn, who served in the World War as a Captain and is now practicing medicine in Cuba. He is a famous trainer of hunting dogs.

After the lapse of 30 years it is impossible to tell to what extent fancy has been added to fact in recounting Max's manifestations of intelligence. It might be supposed that some who have passed the stories along through hearsay channels have at times embellished them, but there are living witnesses who base their accounts on first-hand observation of this remarkable dog, and when they tell of his doings they are quite positive that their memories are not tricking them.

There is no disagreement on one point, and that is that Max died of a broken heart soon after the death of Dr. T. P. Martyn's wife. It is the recollection of some that his death occurred on the same day as Mrs. Martyn's. Others say it was a few days later.

Max had no pedigree. He was not a canine aristocrat. The most diligent and resourceful expert in heraldry would have found it difficult to trace Max's lineage.

"I have always thought he was part Newfoundland and part English pointer," said Dr. John Martyn on a recent sunny spring afternoon as he sat in his office and let his memory go back 30 years to the time when Max was having his day.

"Some folks called him a yellow dog, but he wasn't a "yellow" dog in the sense in which Mark Twain and others who came after him used that term. I prefer to think of him as a cream-colored dog.

"Will Vaughn gave the puppy to my brother, Charlie. I recall that when we went over after the puppy Vaughn said to one of his boys: 'Go under the house and get that white, smoky dog pup.'

"Before Max had got his full growth the family discovered that he had remarkable intelligence. He seemed to pick up the meanings of words and to keep them in his mind. After being told to do a thing and shown how to do it, he would always repeat the same action at the same command. It was our custom to show him objects and tell him their names. He first learned the names of the different members of the family and then of various household objects and articles of clothing.

"Then he learned to associate the various members of our large family with their individual belongings. We could say: 'Max, go upstairs and get Charlie's shoes,' and he would go up on the run and come back with Charlie's shoes. He would do this even if we mixed all the shoes up and piled them in the middle of the floor. He would always come back with the right pair for any member of the family who had been named.

"Max wasn't a hunting dog. In fact, he could never be trained to hunt birds. He would run a rabbit by sight, but had none of the hunting instinct. But he was mighty handy to have along on a hunt. I remember that I took him rabbit hunting once and we ran a rabbit into a hollow log. I built a smudge fire to smoke out the rabbit, but first, to prevent danger of an explosion, I hung my powder horn and pouch on a bush at a safe distance from the fire. When returning home I had walked about two miles when I discovered I had forgotten the horn and pouch. I said: 'Max, I left the horn and pouch back there by that log. Go and get them.' Max went back. I waited for him. When he returned he was dragging the pouch and horn, which were joined by a strap. They were too heavy for him to carry, but he dragged them all the way. The outer covering of the pouch was almost worn through from friction with the rocky ground, but Max had delivered the goods.

"My father had a similar experience. He had a large medical practice and made his country calls on horseback. Max always went along, trotting at the horse's heels. One dark night a tree branch overhanging the road knocked off my father's hat. He called to the dog: 'Max, I lost my hat. Go and get it.' Despite the inky darkness Max turned back. A few minutes later he returned with the hat.

"I suppose we were as slow as other folks to believe that a dog has reasoning powers. Of course, Max's manifestations of intelligence in the home circle showed that he had either intelligence or highly developed instinct. He could be sent upstairs to wake any member of the family and would wake that person and no other.

"We had observed that he could be made to associate certain objects with command. We could send him to shut any particular door in the house or any gate on the premises. As his education progressed he did some things that made us think deeply and wonder if instinct hadn't been supplemented by reasoning power.

"There was the spool of thread incident, for instance. Max knew the name and location of every store with which the family dealt and he did a good deal of the family marketing. Usually he went on these errands alone. Mother would put a note in a covered basket for the butcher. Max would take the basket to the shop and return with the meat. Of course, many other dogs have done that, but the affair of the spool of thread was different. One morning when my brother started downtown my mother asked him to buy a spool of thread and send it to her by Max. The purchase was made and Max started home with the paper-wrapped spool of thread in his mouth.

"A part of what happened was told to us later by neighbors who had observed Max's actions. On the way home Max met some canine playmates. It was a fine day for a scamper with congenial companions. He decided to stop and play, but first he carefully placed the spool of thread under a plank sidewalk. About three hours later my brother came home. Max was lying on the porch. My brother asked if Max had brought the thread. 'Why, no,' said my mother, 'he came home without it and I thought you had forgotten to buy it.' My brother turned to the dog and said: 'Max, what did you do with that thread? Get it and give it to mother.'

Max seemed puzzled at first. He seemed to be trying to remember something. Then suddenly he jumped up and went loping down the road. In a few minutes he returned with the spool of thread. The same neighbors who had seen him put the package under the walk told us they saw him return there and recover it, after circling around the spot a few times.

"Once mother sent Max to the butcher shop, six blocks from home, for a steak. He was carrying the meat in a covered basket and was about half way home when another dog intercepted him and bantered him to fight. Max carefully set the basket down in a fence corner and sailed into the other dog. It was a long, hard fight, but Max won. The excitement of conflict hadn't dulled his memory. When he arose victorious he shook the dust of battle from his hide, returned to the fence corner, picked up the basket and carried it home to mother.

"Max knew all of our neighbors by sight and name and would go on errands to their homes, but he would not do errands for them or take orders from anyone

OLD LAW SAVES THE LADY IN ENGLISH R

Most sensational social tragedy since baccarat case in which future King Edward VII was a witness—Capt. Owen Peel, winner of the Military Cross, pleads guilty to forging telegrams on horse race—His beautiful young wife acquitted under law of coercion enacted by Saxon King 1200 years ago :: ::

THE Peels had $35,000 a year. It was not enough! Capt. Owen Peel, 28, wearing the Military Cross as a reward for "most conspicuous gallantry and devotion to duty" in the World War, and Violet Margaret Florence Jardine Peel, his young and beautiful wife, wanted more. They got more. They got about $11,000 more through a few minutes' effort one afternoon last October. Still they were not happy; in fact, now they are most miserably unhappy.

The Peels played the races. Many other members of British high society play the races. But the Peels, as recent records of Old Bailey Court in London show, played the races neither wisely nor well. The dashing young Captain, of distinguished and wealthy family, is under sentence to one year's imprisonment, having pleaded guilty to the forging of telegrams in an effort to defraud bookmakers. His wife, high-born daughter of Sir Robert and Lady Jardine, jointly accused with the Captain, though she has been set at liberty under the operation of an ancient law which assumes that a wife who commits crime with the knowledge of her husband is coerced by him and consequently is not guilty, suffers the same stigma that has been put upon Capt. Peel.

The Peels have violated the unwritten law of English high society. They have committed the unpardonable sin. They have cheated at gambling. The brief imprisonment of Capt. Peel is insignificant. The terrible punishment lies in the fact that Capt. and Mrs. Peel have lost caste with their kind; they no longer have any standing in the social circle to which they belonged; and because of the nature of their offense they never can regain such standing.

The folly of the Peels, with the inevitable consequences incident to its being found out, has given the high-flying set in the British Isles a shock such as it has not experienced in 30 years—not since the notable episode of the baccarat game in which cheating was charged and proved.

But English society in general, the organized populace of England, is shocked still more severely to learn that a law enacted at the instance of a King who probably wore untended whiskers reaching to the waistline and never took a bath, and who reigned in the days when women were defined as "things" and wives were regarded as slaves, still stands on the statute books and requires a law-abiding Court to hold, in substance, that a married woman has no mind of her own.

And this old law of the year 712 is binding in the year 1922, when women have the ballot and are eligible to membership in both houses of Parliament! Surely the courageous Capt. Peel and his handsome and vivacious wife never imagined, when they are alleged to have conspired to cheat the bookmakers out of several thousand pounds, that any possible action of theirs in connection with a horse race could cause the Old Bailey Court to reach an exceedingly long and attenuated arm back into the first decade of the eight century, into the uncouth England of more than 1200 years ago, and yank forth a virtually forgotten law which would bestir this present age of advanced feminism to indignant protest; but that is exactly what has happened.

Mr. Justice Darling, who presided at the trial, said that the origin of the coercion law was traced back to King Ina of the West Saxons, who reigned in 712, and that King Canute, 300 years later, had enacted a law to the same effect.

"Those are the laws we now are dealing with," said the Court, "with regard to women."

As to the sensational aspect of the confessed offense of Capt. Peel in itself—leaving out the lady in the case—a distinguished British journalist wrote a few days ago:

"In English society, cheating is the unpardonable sin. I doubt whether any other sin could excite more horror in our sporting aristocracy than that capital offense of cheating at cards or betting. There is a stricter code of honor in these matters than in any others. The man of rank who cheats becomes an outcast and a pariah. Other sins may be lived down; this sin never has been lived down and never can be lived down. Cheats never come back. The Peel case is the most sensational example of this unwritten law since the baccarat case shook our higher society to its foundations. The baccarat case was more seismic because it involved King Edward VII, then the heir apparent, in its shock."

Many readers will recall the sensation produced by the suit brought by Sir William Gordon-Cumming, in 1891, against five persons whom he accused of slander. The defendants had accused him of cheating at baccarat. Lord Chief Justice Coleridge tried the case. The Prince of Wales, who was to become King Edward VII, was a witness, having been present at the game. Sir William, a distinguished officer in the Scots Guards and a member of the super-aristocracy, lost the case and was disgraced forever.

Sir William was accused of the trick known as la poussette, by which a player at baccarat increases his stake after he sees that the cards are in his favor or after the coup has been declared. The recent accusation against Capt. and Mrs. Peel alleged a method of cheating quite suggestive of this, with the important difference that a horse race instead of a game of cards was involved. It was charged that the Peels, after learning by telephone that a certain horse had won, filled in a rural postoffice a large number of telegrams laying bets on that horse, Capt. Peel arranging with the unsuspecting old Postmaster that the time of filing should be indorsed on the telegrams some minutes earlier than the actual time, to make it appear that the bets were laid before the race. The prosecution alleged that Mrs. Peel got the telephone message from a confederate at the races and gave her husband the cue to file the bunch of telegrams which had been prepared earlier.

Capt. Peel pleaded guilty to the pre-timing of 45 telegrams. He was awaiting sentence when, from a sequestered point, he witnessed the trial of his wife. The Peels belong to the class of British aristocrats known as habitual bettors. Through her titled father Mrs. Peel is very well to do, having an income of approximately $35,000 a year. There was testimony to the effect that she allowed her husband $1000 a month for his pin money.

Though they had plenty, as the average person would estimate it, their passion for playing the races kept them gambling steadily, and, as the result of the prosecution shows, led them into methods which have put the husband in prison and have saved the wife from that fate only by operation of a law which the court pronounced "a melancholy rule" that had outlived its usefulness and should be done away with at once.

The specific charge upon which Mrs. Peel was tried was that of obtaining and endeavoring to obtain money from bookmakers by virtue of forged telegrams making bets on Paragon, in the Duke of York stakes, at Kempton Park, on Oct. 8 last.

Half a dozen bookmakers stood to lose considerably on this scheme. The Peels stood to win together about $15,000. They did receive about $11,000. The rest the bookmakers refused to pay, believing that they had been defrauded. Relatives of the Peels restored to the bookmakers all that had been paid over, but the matter had been whispered about too loudly to suppress, and so it got into court.

At the trial Sir Charles Gill, for the prosecution, explained to the jury, which included two women, that Mrs. Peel was charged with endeavoring to obtain and obtaining—money by means of a forged instrument. "The fact," he said, "that she is charged with [illegible] husband, and that her husband has pleaded guilty, [illegible] no evidence against her. The case against her will be proved clearly, to the satisfaction of the jury. They will have no alternative but to come to the conclusion that Mrs. Peel was acting in concert with her husband in carrying out a very serious fraud, carefully telephone did not ring at once, and Capt. Peel produced a telegram, not for the purpose of backing a horse, but a telegram which, I suggest, was a bogus telegram for the purpose of getting a false time on it. As a matter of fact, in one of his pockets he had 45 telegrams for the purpose of backing Paragon, the horse that won the race."

Sir Charles went on to state that Capt. Peel, at 2:50, handed to the Postmaster this inconsquential telegram, which asked concerning a race to be run several days later. Almost immediately the telephone bell rang. It was just a fraction after 2:52 when Mrs. Peel was speaking over the telephone to London in answer to the call. Then the question arose between the Postmaster and Capt. Peel as to the time to be put on the unimportant telegram.

"The Postmaster, he thought, was going to put 2:50," said Sir Charles, "whereupon it was pointed out to him that this was the wrong time—that 2:45 would be the right time. * * * Mrs. Peel and her husband spoke together in the telephone box. Capt. Peel came out as if to go to the door. He turned back to the Postmaster, and, pulling out a batch of telegrams, remarked: 'Oh, I had almost forgotten these 45 telegrams.' It is a curious fact that, although he remembered the single telegram, he had forgotten the 45."

The first telegram, sent to Banbury (Kempton Park), Sir Charles explained, reached there at something like 10 minutes past 3.

"The people at Banbury," he commented, "are not quite so simple as the people at Avon Dassett, and noticed that here were telegrams backing horses, which were timed at 2:45 and had not reached Banbury until after 10 minutes past 3. They therefore made inquiries from Avon Dassett. * * * Eight of the telegrams were in the handwriting of Mrs. Peel, and she was backing the horse so that if she lost she would lose 76 pounds, but if she won she would take a few pounds

Rare Prehistoric Find in a . . Missouri Cave

RECENT finding of an "engraved" bone in a cave in the Missouri Ozark region has set the scientists to asking whether man and mastodon were contemporaries in prehistoric Missouri. Archeologists, amateur and professional, are discussing this interesting question. Carved on the bone, which is said to be the humerus of a deer, is a crude figure resembling the outlines of a mastodon. One end of the bone is perforated—another evidence of human handling. Certain facts in connection with the discovery of the bone indicate that it and the carving may be thousands of years old.

Jay L. B. Taylor, a civil engineer living at Pineville, McDonald County, owns a piece of land near that town. On the land is a rock shelter known as Jacob's Cavern. In 1903 the cavern was visited by Prof. Charles Peabody and Warren K. Moorehead, archeologists of note, who made a partial exploration, assisted by Taylor. Later Taylor studied under Prof. Peabody at Phillips Academy, Andover, Mass., and became deeply interested in archeology. Jacob's Cavern having become known to scientists as a fruitful source of "specimens" from which to study prehistoric man and beast, Taylor has made a collection of ancient relics from the cave and its vicinity. Not long ago, accompanied by another Pineville man of similar bent, he entered the cave to search for additional relics.

Taylor scooped out a small basin in the mud floor, in which he impounded water dripping from the rocks above, to wash his hands. In digging this basin he found, several inches down, the bone bearing the carving of the figure supposed to be the result of an ancient Missourian's attempt to outline the figure of a mastodon. Taylor and his friend, Vance Randolph, found also seven other perforated bones and a mussel shell with two holes bored through it. The relics were taken home by Taylor, who placed them in his cabinet. Randolph immediately made line drawings of the bones and shell. Some weeks later Taylor found that most of the bones had disintegrated. The most important one, bearing the mastodonic engraving, he was able to save by treating it with hot paraffin.

In a recent number of Natural History, a magazine published by the American Museum of Natural History in New York, Taylor has an article entitled, "Did the Indian Know the Mastodon?" He recounts the circumstances of the finding of the carved bone, giving an account of his correspondence with several archeological experts, who have evinced deep interest in the find. A letter from Dr. Clark Wissler, curator of anthropology at the American Museum, is quoted. Dr. Wissler visited the cavern before the finding of the carved bone. He writes:

"Though the mastodon and the mammoth are characteristic of Pleistocene time, it is not known when they became extinct; for all that is known to the contrary, these great mammals may have held out to within 3000 years ago. Thus, the artist could have seen one of these animals and still have lived under modern conditions. No one in authority seems now prepared to deny that man was in America 3000 years ago. * * * It appears that this bone was found in the present surface of the cave, but approximately five feet of deposit were taken out by Moorehead in 1903; hence, this bone is older than anything found by him. When we recall that both Peabody and Moorehead were impressed with the great age of what they removed, the evidence is again favorable to your interpretation. * * * Regardless of what may prove ultimately to be the significance of this carved bone, you have made a discovery of great promise. * * * It is to be hoped that we are at last on the trail of early man in America."

Some of the problems now being studied by the scientists, because of the finding of this ancient artist's carving, are:

Were man and the mastodon contemporary in the Ozark Mountains of Missouri?

Was man a resident of this State before the coming of the great glacier?

Or, did the mastodon survive the glacial period and roam the forests and glades of the Ozarks up to within 10,000 years ago?

TEMPLES OF THE MAYAS

Two more expeditions go to study the impressive ruins in Mexico and Central America which may yield the secrets of a vanished civilization — Majestic cities and palaces, some of which had been abandoned before the coming of Cortez, were once the seat of an advanced culture, but little is known about it now.

TWO parties of scientists from the Carnegie Institution have departed for Southern Mexico and Central America to study the ruined cities of the Mayas. Expedition after expedition goes searching for the secrets of the wonderful Maya civilization. A great work of exploration is being done. And yet most men will ask blankly: "Who were the Mayas?" and will display little more than a familiarity with the sound of the name.

But, although the archeology of Central America is in its merest beginnings, a fascinating body of information already has been gathered about the culture of the once splendid cities whose imposing ruins lie deep in the jungles.

When Cortez had conquered Mexico, less than 30 years after the discovery, the Spaniards pushed down into the lands about the Isthmus of Tehuantepec. There they came upon a civilization which was both like and unlike that of the Aztec empire they had overthrown. They found big cities, some already deserted and fallen into ruins for several centuries, and others still the sites of cultured populations, but falling into decay. This was the Maya empire. It had passed its climax of greatness and was in its senescence, and, although there was savage resistance to the conquistadores, it fell quickly and utterly.

The new civilization of the Europeans took immediate and complete hold of the native peoples, and the old culture was forgotten. A few Spanish ecclesiastics wrote fragmentary accounts of the Maya institutions, accounts which interested nobody. The majestic temples and palaces of the past were abandoned to the creeping jungle. And nothing more was thought of the Mayas for several centuries.

Then, with the rise of modern scholarship during recent decades, the attention of archeologists was attracted by travelers' tales of immense, mysterious ruins in the Yucatan wilderness, and the quest of the Maya secrets began.

The ruins consist of many scattered cities of crumbling masonry. The edifices are mainly of two types—pyramids (analogous to the Aztec pyramids) and oblong buildings several stories high and decorated with pillars, sculptures and hieroglyphic inscriptions. Innumerable bits of writing are found on pieces of wood, stone and reed paper. The first glance shows a very superior art of architecture, sculpture and decoration. The sources of information are three: The hieroglyphic records, old Spanish manuscripts treating upon the Mayas (notably one of Bishop Landa, the first episcopal head of the region), and the general characteristics of the ruins, their distribution, their apparent age, their resemblances to the Aztec, and, more remotely but more fascinatingly, to the Egyptian and the Chinese.

The hieroglyphics afford one of the most fascinating of recent problems for scholarship, and have thus far been only partly deciphered. The difficulties in determining their meaning are extreme. They appear to be neither entirely ideographic nor entirely phonetic; a single sign may be either one or the other. In the Egyptian hieroglyphics, for instance, a certain character signifies a certain word invariably. With our alphabetic system a certain character signifies a certain sound (with negligible exceptions), and with a syllabic manner of writing a certain character signifies a certain syllable.

But in the Mayan writing, as in the Aztec, a symbol is used to represent both a word and a syllable. The method is analogous to our modern rebus puzzle. Suppose we use a picture of a hare to represent a hare in our writing, and use the picture of a ring to represent a ring, and then suppose that when we put the picture of the hare and the picture of the ring side by side we understand them as meaning, not hare and ring, but herring. That is about the way the Mayas used their symbols. They did not use direct pictures of things, though presumably the characters were derived from pictures, but, to continue the former example, the ideograph representing hare could also be used as the first syllable of herring. Reading this sort of writing must have needed some ingenuity even on the part of those who were schooled to it, and deciphering it when there is no extant key to its meaning must rank as one of the most difficult of feats.

A second difficulty proceeds from the extreme artistic spirit of the Mayas. An inscription on a temple wall must not merely commemorate some great event, it must likewise be a piece of mural decoration. This was accomplished by making ornamental designs out of the characters of the writing. The glyphs were utilized as decorative elements. In this character they were altered to an extraordinary degree to conform with subtle schemes of line harmony.

Thus a certain symbol is found in so many widely differing forms that it is often impossible to recognize it. The central scheme of the whole system consists of the use of an essential element. A certain symbol represents, say, the first day in the week. It is made up of a human profile combined with several geometric figures. In the middle is a grating of cris-crossed lines. This grating may be the essential element of the character, and it will be present whenever the symbol occurs again, but the other constituents may be altered at will. Then the combination of two characters will be made in accordance with the decorative fancy of the artist, whose expression of individuality is untrammeled, so long as he presents the essential elements of the symbols.

The puzzle for the modern scholar is, then, to take a complex maze of glyphs and pick out the essential elements.

A large number of the symbols have been identified. The Maya hieroglyphics pertain mostly to chronology, are records of time and of events. Old Spanish accounts give some facts of the extraordinary Maya calendar. It has been possible to determine the symbols for the names of days, for those of time units, etc. All of the symbols deciphered concern chronology. The greater part of those remaining undeciphered concern, presumably, things nonchronological. In most cases, an inscription contains a number of symbols which the scholar is able to read. These symbols convey a certain date. The symbols which he cannot read

Idea that there is a dangerous age for men forms the central theme of "Cytherea," and is being suggested by many students of society — Number of recent cases cited to show that the successful business man is especially susceptible to the germ of discontent — Wives who would weather such crises must watch their step — Nagging and suspicion worst possible course

IS THERE an age at which married men wax discontented, and are likely to prove troublesome unless handled with care? The suggestion is broached from several sources, accompanied, in some cases, by profuse testimonials. Certain social students declare the thing to be beyond doubt, and lug in statistics to bear out the contention. The strange part of this theory is that the fellow who seems most susceptible to the deadly bug is the successful business man, the pillar of society. It is not the rake or roue who suddenly bursts out and expresses weariness of his wife; it is the husband who probably has never given her a cross word during their wedded life.

When W. L. George, the British novelist, lectured here some time ago he advised wives to keep a close eye on their husbands between the ages of 40 and 44, or, perhaps, until a little older. By keeping a close eye he did not mean to place them under surveillance and torment them continually about their actions—that, in fact, is the one thing they positively must not do. It is fatal. When a man has been bitten by this germ, nagging or suspicion drives him quite mad; it will bring his malady to a crisis quicker than any other irritant.

No, said George, he must be nursed and tended carefully through this period. His wife must make herself unusually attractive and desirable, but she must not force herself upon him. Sometimes it might not be a bad idea for her to flirt a little. She must keep a cool head, and watch her step. Those who fail to do so need not be shocked by the inexplicable defection of the breadwinner.

It is precisely this idea that forms the central theme of Joseph Hergesheimer's new and successful novel, "Cytherea." Here the thing is given a beautiful exposition, clear and convincing. Lee Randon, the chief character of the story, is introduced as a man of 47, successful in business, and a trifle conservative. He has an admirable wife, who is devoted to him, numerous friends, plenty of money, two beautiful children, a comfortable home, a gratifying social position. Without a sign of warning to the outside world, he abandons all these advantages, takes a married woman who is older and less comely than his own wife, and runs away to Havana. His wife had very little idea of what underlay his act, and his associates had none at all. Randon apparently had possessed everything that a man could desire.

But what he did desire, and did not possess, was symbolized for him in a doll which he had purchased at a curio store, named "Cytherea," and set up on the mantelpiece as a sort of shrine. The doll represented the qualities which his depressingly perfect wife did not have. It represented the allure of romance, of sympathy, of passion. His wife was wont to chide him querulously because he did not think like other men. To her his whims were childish, and his questioning of the established order was blasphemy.

When Lee Randon encountered the woman who had what the doll symbolized, he promptly scrapped his entire world, and eloped with her. The story leaves him in Cuba, his new love dead, but there is no suggestion that he will go back home. Rather it is indicated that he would do anything else first.

It is not necessary, however, to go to the novels for instances. George said that his statement was based on statistics of the English divorce courts. Further verification is forthcoming from the daily newspapers. For example:

Oliver Morosco, noted theatrical producer, was married recently at Santa Ana, Cal., to Miss Selma Paley, a Los Angeles actress, three days after obtaining a divorce from his first wife. It is strictly a case in point.

Mrs. Ethel L. Dunham, who charges wealthy husband deserted her after 21 years of married life.

Oliver Morosco, theatrical producer, and the former Miss Selma Paley, whom he married three days after his divorce.

Morosco was married to his first wife for 24 years. They had one son. He was eminently successful in his profession—a man known on two continents. Then a divorce, and another marriage so hastily that the Court ordered an investigation to determine whether collusion existed.

Again: James A. Stillman, head of one of the largest banks in the world, Harvard graduate, member of a distinguished family. He is married to a famous beauty, "Fifi" Potter, a woman renowned for her cleverness and charm. There are three handsome children. Then the scandal. Allegations of a chorus-girl mistress, stories of expensive apartments, lavish presents of jewelry, clothing and furs. Counter charges against the wife entered this case, too. The case needs no further description here, but it certainly is apropos to the discussion.

San Francisco supplies another. In this instance, the man, C. T. Chance, an inventor of electrical appliances, couldn't keep his mind made up for any length of time. Twenty years ago he was married, and four years later was divorced. His second wife died, and he married a third. This marriage was annulled, and he remarried his first wife. Now he wants a divorce to remarry his third. The winter of his discontent seems to include most all the seasons, and the Judge, after hearing the testimony, has gone to the country for a rest.

Strange how it seems to seek out the business man, the successful business man. Psychologists, however, would offer a ready explanation. They would point out that the man who has attained success is precisely the one of whom such manifestations may be expected. The reason is clear. Before success is assured, he is busy striving for it. His work takes up his energy. He has got something that absorbs all his imagination. He is glad enough to have a peaceful, even a dull, home, in which to eat and sleep. He finds the necessary romance and adventure in his business.

VENGEANCE

By J. Storer Clouston

A TWO-PART STORY — PART TWO

"IT WAS in July, 1907, that Vivian-Gryce disappeared, leaving not a trace behind. Personally, I was out of the hunt, but I happened to have one or two acquaintances who knew the family and for some time I continued to get news of them. And that news amounted simply to—nothing. The man had vanished and that was the end of it. And then in time my interest waned till even the picture of that fair young wife, with high spirit in her eye and the delightful pucker of her brows, faded almost quite away, and I don't suppose the household at Stair Manor had crossed my mind for the best part of a year when the mysterious summons came at last.

"It was then November, 1908, and here is the very summons itself."

Carrington took a letter from a drawer and read it aloud:

"Dear Sir: You will no doubt remember the disappearance of Mr. Herbert L. de F. Vivian-Gryce in the summer of 1907. I now commission you to resume work in connection with that case, and inclose $250 in notes to cover your fee and traveling expenses, on the clear understanding that you will start immediately on receipt of this and go straight to the above address. You should get there on Thursday evening. Go to the King's Hotel and I shall call on you there at 9 p. m. Yours faithfully, J. W. THOMSON."

"The letter was registered and the only address given was simply the town of St. Olave, in the Windy Islands, which as no doubt you are aware is just about as remote and inaccessible a place as exists in the British Isles. However, the mystery and the fee between them were quite enough to send me straight to my timetable, and that night I was in a sleeper speeding north. Both by train and by boat I had to travel, and at last, about 7 in the evening, I found myself at the King's Hotel.

"'Mr. Thomson hasn't called for me yet, I suppose?' I asked, casually.

"Of course, I knew Mr. Thomson had not yet called, but the question introduced the gentleman, and another casual inquiry elicited the fact that he was apparently quite unknown at the hotel.' So that my correspondent was clearly not a prominent citizen of the town.

"I was desperately hungry by this time, so I had dinner as speedily as they could serve it, and then when I had finished I looked at my watch. It was barely 8 o'clock, my visitor was not due for a full hour, and there was absolutely no one in the hotel to talk to, bar a brace of quite exceptionally commercial travelers, and nothing whatever to do. So I decided to go out and have a stroll through the town.

"I found myself in a narrow, winding street, very ill-lit and dark, with pitch-black courts or closes opening between the gables of ancient houses. It was wild, gusty November weather and there had been some heavy showers of rain. The pavement was wet and glistening and reflected the scarce lamps and the rays of light from occasional windows; otherwise it would have been almost too dark for a stranger to follow the tortuous course of the street. The night strollers one usually finds in the quietest country towns had apparently been kept at home by the stormy weather, and only now and then did I pass anyone at all. A queer, far-northern, medieval place it seemed on that November night; the very back of beyond—and a bit further than that.

"'What an extraordinary spot to take up the hunt for Mr. Vivian-Gryce again!' I said to myself. 'Who the deuce is Mr. Thomson, and what is he going to tell me?'

"I try to make it a hard and fast rule not to speculate ahead of my facts when I happen to know that facts will actually be forthcoming soon. One may come to a wrong conclusion; indeed, the odds are long that one can't possibly come to a perfectly correct conclusion—even if one is right in a general way. And then instinctively one's mind sets, and the facts, when they do come, can't penetrate properly. But I have seldom found it more difficult not to do a bit of guessing.

"I had been walking for some distance, always following this narrow winding lane of a street, when all at once I was conscious of a curious thrill. It was the kind of thrill that animals must feel when some instinct warns them of danger, unseen but at hand. A sort of sixth sense it is with me, implanted by nature but sharpened by experience. I was being followed, I was certain.

"It was so dark that a glance over my shoulder was safe enough, but being so dark, I naturally couldn't see much when I glanced. Somebody was certainly walking about 30 yards behind me, and apparently walking quietly, but whether it was man or woman was more than I could say. I increased my pace, and then I slowed down, and still the figure behind kept its distance. I had just decided to stop short and see what would happen, when something stopped me dead and suddenly. I was just passing one of the rare lamps, and across the street, lit by its dim rays, I saw the name over a shuttered door, 'J. W. Thomson, Hairdresser.'

I had just decided to stop short and see what would happen, when something stopped me dead and suddenly.

"I had been standing staring up at this legend for several seconds before I remembered the figure behind, and then I realised that it had stopped, too. In fact, it had disappeared. There was nothing mysterious in this, for those little black courts were opening constantly on either hand, but there was certainly something suggestive. I had stopped and the figure had instantly stopped, too, and then vanished.

"I stared again at the name over the door, and again I caught myself wondering, 'Can there be two J. W. Thomsons in this small town?' I thought, and then answered myself: 'Of course there can be. J. and W. are very common initials and Thomson an extremely common name. You will know in half an hour. Stop wondering!'

"A man was coming in the opposite direction, a very respectable looking citizen, too, he seemed as he passed under the lamp. I turned and followed him back towards the hotel, deeming company advisable till I had cleared the mouths of all the little courts within 20 or 30 yards. And presently someone was following me again. My respectable citizen turned up a side lane and I determined to shake off my pursuer before I approached the hotel. So down another side lane I turned at random and the next instant I might as well have fallen into an ink pot. It was luckily so narrow that I could touch either wall with my stick and I walked just as fast as I could step it. The lane turned a corner and I risked a run. Luck was with me; I ran into nothing, and at last found myself close to the harbor and near my hotel. It was 8:45 o'clock when I entered and I thought I had shaken that figure off. Anyhow, I saw nothing of it as I paused for a moment at the door and looked back.

"I had the smoking room all to myself, and for the next 20 minutes I sat over the fire, listened to the wind and waited. Nine o'clock struck, five minutes more passed, and then at last the door opened.

"'Mr. Thomson to see you, sir,' the servant announced.

"I beheld a middle-sized man, respectably but unfashionably dressed, with fair beard and hair. The hair was rather long and exuberantly brushed, and I said to myself instantly, 'Thomson, the hairdresser, by Jingo!' He looked at me very keenly and cautiously for a moment and then he said:

"'You are Mr. Carrington, I presume?'

"I said I was and he examined me carefully again. And now I perceived that for some reason or other this respectable, tradesmanlike person was mortally afraid.

"'Have you got a letter in your pocket?' he asked.

"'What letter?'

"'One from me.'

"'I have,' said I.

"'May I see it?' said he.

"I showed it to him, wondering the while. He clearly was suspicious of the very adviser he had paid $250 to secure. He handed it back with an apology, and as he made it I was conscious for the first time that this was surely no mere ordinary tradesman. His voice and manner had good breeding and even a touch of distinction.

"'I must apologize for this precaution,' said he, 'but you will see in a minute how necessary it was.' He hesitated for an instant, and then went on: 'I can trust you absolutely, Mr. Carrington, I hope?'

"'I hope so, too,' I said, a trifle dryly.

"'I only meant that one cannot be too careful,' he said, hurriedly. 'When you know all you will realize yourself.'

"'I am waiting to learn,' said I, still a little dryly, for the man was beginning to annoy me.

"'Sit down, Mr. Carrington,' said he, again with a courteous, well-bred air. We sat, and still he seemed to hesitate. I thought I had better break the ice for him.

"'You are Mr. Vivian-Gryce, I presume?' I said.

"He fairly jumped.

"'How did you know me?' he cried.

"'Partly from your photograph and partly from the circumstances of this meeting,' I said.

"'Then you saw that photograph—the one with the beard?' he exclaimed, and I could see he was in a regular fright now.

"'No,' I said, 'I didn't.'

"'I wore a beard for a time while I was in Canada,' he explained, 'and a photograph was taken. But you didn't see it, and yet you recognized me! Oh, my God!'

"'Suppose you tell me the whole story,' I suggested, quietly.

"'He calmed down a little and told me this tale:

"'While I was out ranching in Canada,' he began, 'I didn't see many men of my own sort, as you can perhaps imagine, and no women at all. And so, when I did meet a pretty girl, and saw a lot of her, too, I got keener and keener about her and more and more entangled. I came to forget how different she was from the kind of girl I'd have thought of marrying in England, and at last I said I'd marry her. She was in love with me, and I didn't want to leave her in the lurch. Besides, she was a fine girl—in her own way, and a regular beauty. Her name was Nancy Elkin.'

"'Ah!' I murmured, 'I begin to see!'

"'Yes,' he said, 'she was the sister of that man you saw when you were down at Stair, and rather like him, too. Well, I was going to marry her all right when suddenly the news came that my brother was dead and I had come into the place. That cablegram made me think, I can assure you! I told not a soul, but I just put it to myself: "Nancy Elkin at Stair Manor! How would she fit in?" I saw it would be absolutely fatal. Neither of us would be happy. In fact, it would be impossible. So I just went off without telling anyone what had happened or where I was going. It was rather rough luck on the girl, I admit,' he added, 'but just think of my bringing a girl of that kind straight from a ranch to a place like Stair!

"'A devil of a lot of worry it gave me! But when I got home I wrote and explained—and I sent her a check, a very good check, too.'

"One can hardly kick one's employer, so I told him to get on with the story and simply give me the facts.

"'Then,' said he, 'soon after I got home I met my wife. She was the real thing. My God, I did fall in love in earnest that time. I'm in love with her still, I assure you I am, Carrington, even though I have left her! I married her, as you know, and we settled down very happily—and then came the facer. I got a letter returning my check with simply these lines scribbled on a half-sheet of paper: "Be prepared to meet your Maker. You are going to very soon." There was no signature or address, but I knew who it was from—Jim Elkin, her brother. And I knew I was a dead man.'

"He paused and a little shiver ran over him with the recollection of this brief note.

"'He looked a pretty determined gentleman,' I remarked.

"'Determined! Jim Elkin had shot at least three men to my certain knowledge. I saw him shoot one myself, and, my God! I could still see that fellow sprawling on his back and kicking, and Jim Elkin looking down at him just as coolly as if he had put an old horse out of the way! And there wasn't half the excuse for it that there was for shooting me. My only hope was that he would find it difficult to get at me and give himself away to the police before he managed it. But he was too cool a customer for that.'

"'By the way,' I asked, 'did you show that note to anyone, or tell anyone about the affair?'

"'I didn't show the note and I didn't tell anyone the whole truth, but something I once said made my wife suspicious and I had to tell her there had been a girl in my life while I was abroad. But I didn't tell her the full history, and I didn't mention any names.

"'Well, nearly three months passed, and just as I was beginning to hope, I saw him in the village. He didn't speak. He just looked at me, but I knew what that look meant. I found he was living quietly at the village inn, and had even brought golf clubs as a blind.

"'Not a soul suspected him of being anything but an ordinary visitor, and I saw his game perfectly. He would bide his time, shoot me quietly when he saw his chance, and go away without leaving any suspicion as to who had done it.

"'And what could I do? I had no proof whatever that he meant mischief. That note was unsigned and couldn't possibly be traced to him. If I went and told the whole story, well, I knew I wouldn't cut a very good figure, and I wouldn't get any further, either, because even if I did tell it, it wouldn't prove that the man meant to murder me. Besides, I didn't know what my wife would say. She mightn't have exactly taken my part.

"'I stood it for three days, feeling exactly like a rabbit being hunted down by a weasel—absolutely doomed—only one end to the chase. And then I could stand the suspense no longer. I decided to disappear.'

"I pricked up my ears.

"'This is the part that interests me,' I said. 'How did you manage it?'

"'I took old Horman into my confidence. He had been with us, man and boy, since he was 14, and he stood by me like a brick. I arranged that gun and cartridge business so as to get my wife out of the way. Very luckily, I did go into the gunroom when I got back to the house, for one of the maids passed the door and it so happened that she confirmed our story. Then I rigged myself out in an old dress of my wife's, while Horman kept a lookout to see that no one came near. He had also secured a lady's bicycle for me, and when I was dressed I slipped out by the side door into the garden, went round to the back, mounted the bicycle and rode away for all I was worth by that path that leads through the spinney at the top of the rise.'

"'Did you see Elkin as you passed through the spinney?' I asked.

"He stared at me open-mouthed.

"'Was he there?' he gasped.

"'He was, but thought you were Mrs. Vivian-Gryce and moved off the path into the trees. Then, for some reason, he decided to turn back and speak to your wife, but saw no sign of her. You must have ridden past meanwhile.'

"'Good heavens, what a shave!' he exclaimed. 'Did Horman see him?' He was going to keep a lookout from his pantry window till I was safely away.'

"'He did see him, but evidently thought it advisable to say nothing about it, till Elkin turned up at the house the day I was down. Then he told us, so as to put us on our guard against the man.'

"'Good old Horman! And did he see that all the paths and beds were well raked and the path reindered? We arranged that so as to leave no traces.'

"'Yes,' I said, 'he did.' And little though I admired the man I couldn't help adding: 'You took excellent precautions.'

"'Oh, we discussed every detail very thoroughly. You see, there was no use doing things by halves. If I had left any traces at all, I knew the man would have been on my track.' He suddenly broke off and asked: 'What did my wife think?'

"'I can only guess from her conduct,' I said, 'but from what you have told me tonight I think she suspected you had gone to this girl you had mentioned to her. Certainly that suspicion best accounts for her attitude.'

"'Oh, d—n it!' he muttered. 'I never thought of that! I hope to heaven she doesn't still think so. I don't want to lose my wife's confidence, whatever happens!'

"There flashed across my mind the memory of that mysterious meeting at night and his wife's relinquishment of the investigation next morning, and it struck me that the chances of his having retained her confidence were somewhat remote. But all I said was:

"'To return to your story. What happened next?'

"'Well,' said he, 'after leaving the house I rode to a station seven miles away, took the bicycle with me up to London, got rid of it and got a new disguise there, and then made for this God-forsaken place.'

"'Why did you come here, of all places?' I asked.

"'Can't you see any reason?' he inquired.

"'Not for coming to this particular spot.'

"'That's the reason I came,' said he. 'I wanted a place that would be as far away as possible, where I wouldn't see anyone I knew, and which no one would think of my going to, simply because there was no particular reason for my choosing it.'

"'You argued very soundly,' I admitted.

"'At the same time,' he went on, 'I realized that even here I might excite suspicion, and, anyhow, curiosity and gossip, if I lived as a mysterious stranger doing nothing. Even if I were known as a gentleman people would talk, so I took up an old trade I once practiced when I was on my uppers out in the colonies. I set up as a barber, and, of course, I changed my name. J. W. Thomson is rather a good, inconspicuous selection, isn't it?'

"The man had certainly displayed wonderful cunning and foreseen contingencies with not a little imagination, but I was not going to tell him so. The cowardliness of the whole performance disgusted me. And yet he looked a not unmanly sort of fellow, either.

"'Do you mean to say you proposed to stay here as a barber indefinitely?' I asked him.

"'I didn't realize how difficult it would be to know when I could return,' said he. 'You see, I have told nobody where I was.'

"'Not even Horman?'

"'It was safer not to. Not a living soul knows but you. But then how was I to learn what was happening?'

He began to get agitated.

"'I—I ought to have risked it and gone back. I knew I was funking it. If only I could have faced the music with a cleaner conscience! That was what utterly demoralized me.'

"For the first time I began to feel a little tinge of sorrow for the man.

"'What made you send for me now?' I asked.

"He unfolded a page cut out of an illustrated paper. The picture showed a public function of some sort in progress and in the very forefront, close to the camera, a speaking likeness of himself.

"'That infernal photograph got into the paper!' he cried. 'I haven't had a decent night's sleep since. Then I remembered that you had been called in to trace me—I saw it in the papers—and so I wrote to you to come and advise me what to do.'

"For a moment I thought this was really the limit. The chances of Elkin's seeing this picture and tracking the wretched man more than two years after he had disappeared, seemed infinitesimal. And then suddenly a thought struck me.

"'Were you following me in the street tonight?' I asked.

"'I!' he exclaimed. 'I didn't even know you had been outside the hotel.'

"'Somebody was dogging me,' I said.

"The color fled from his face, and his voice fell almost to a whisper.

"'Rat-tat!' came a knock at the door, and he leaped from his seat.

"'Don't let anyone in!' he implored me.

"I opened the door a very little way and saw one of the maids on the landing.

"'A gentleman wants to see you, sir,' said she.

"'Did he give any name?'

"'No, sir.'

"'Show him up,' I commanded.

"'My God!' began Vivian-Gryce.

"'Get behind those curtains,' I told him, 'and leave things to me.'

"He actually stumbled as he made for the window.

"In a moment the door opened and in walked a man with a tight mouth and quiet eyes.

"'I daresay you don't remember me, sir, but I thought I recognized you tonight in the street,' he began, but he got no further, for, with a gasp of relief, Mr. J. W. Thomson, alias Vivian-Gryce, flung aside the curtains and stepped back into the room.

"'Horman!' he cried, joyfully.

"That perfect butler greeted his master respectfully, but with a curious air of gravity, I noticed.

"'I have been looking for you, sir, ever since I saw that photograph,' he said, and then paused.

"'Any news of Elkin?' demanded his master.

"'Yes, sir. He has gone away home again.'

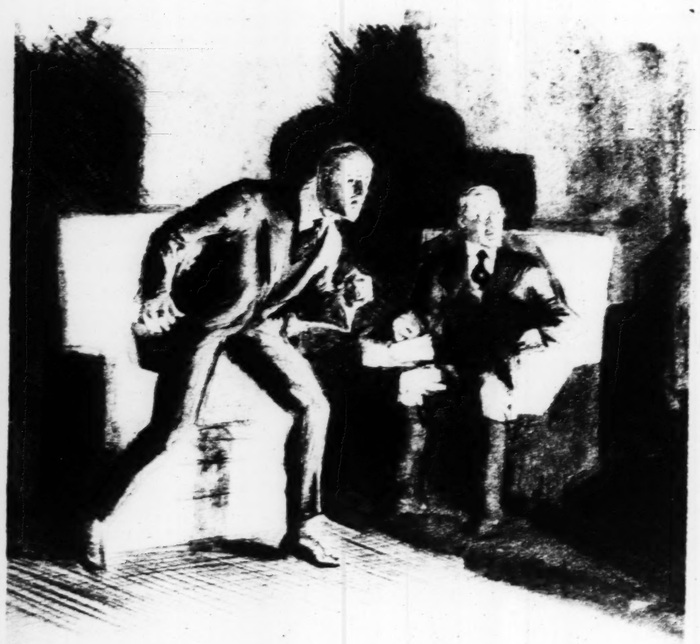
"'Thank God!' cried Vivian-Gryce, but Horman's face still remained grave.

"'I am sorry to say, sir, that Mrs. Vivian-Gryce has gone with him.'

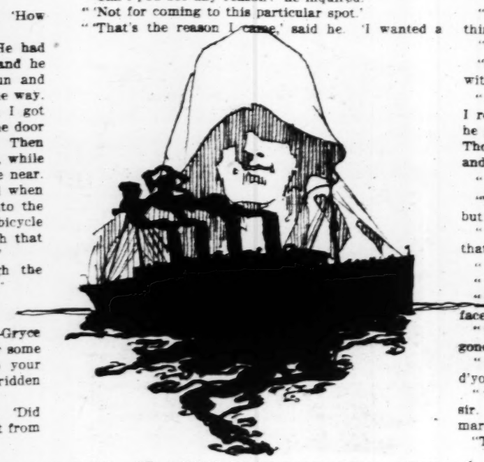
"'Gone with him!' stammered his master. 'What d'you mean?'

"'She was to get a divorce in America, I understand, sir. That was six months ago. They will have been married for some time now, I am afraid, sir.'

"The avenger had struck at last."



"'Rat-tat!' came a knock at the door, and he leaped from his seat."



Along About 45, Husbands Need Watching

Then he finds himself a success. His income is assured, as was Lee Randon's. He doesn't have to puzzle his head night and morning on how he will make the grade. He can leave the office without fearing that he will return to discover himself bankrupt. The future course of the business is assured. He need not snare new ideas. But he still has imagination and energy. Moreover, he feels like he has earned the right to play. This is the delicate time for him—if one is to believe the novelists—a sort of inverted adolescence. Here is the danger point, and here, if she has them, his wife can use her wit and ingenuity to save the situation. To deride his moods is to make him repress them until a better opportunity shows. To nag is to enrage him, and to fail with sympathy is, perhaps, to convince him that he has married an inferior woman, after all, one not equal to his needs.

We have a dispatch from Chicago. Robert James Dunham, prominent financier, club man and former vice president of Armour Packing Co., is sued for divorce by Mrs. Ethel L. Dunham. She charges that he deserted her after 21 years of married life. They have four children, the youngest of whom is 13. He has gone to California.

What of the children in these cases? Is not the man's affection for them strong enough to hold him? Many wives have counted on that and been disappointed. Here again, the observers tells us, there is no mystery. Lee Randon loved his children intensely. But he saw that they were not his in the way that they were their mother's. Almost unconsciously, certainly without a thought of doing wrong, she had taught them to believe that she was the genuine source of authority and affection. He was a sort of outsider. If he was allowed to take a hand with them, it was as one would tolerate a meddlesome person to whom a certain consideration was due.

She has erected a circle consisting of herself and the children, of which I am not a member, he argued. It was not done with my consent, and I do not believe it was fair. Why, then, should I abide by this situation? Those for whom I have done most have not cared for my interests. Very well, I will look out for myself. That was his attitude, and it not unreasonable to surmise that it has been the attitude of many a man in real life. A woman has got to regard her husband as something more than a provider, it seems.

Foreign visitors have commented especially on this aspect of marriage in America. George said it was shameful, the way Americans pushed their wives out of their lives. Mrs. Margot Asquith, less sympathetic with her sex, said she couldn't conceive of a first-class wife permitting herself to be sidetracked in this manner; that she would no more dream of being absent from Parliament during a speech by her husband than she would think of remaining away from his funeral.

At any rate, the question has been raised, and remains to be answered. Newspapers merely supply the data. Is it really a fact that the successful man is likely to get skittish around 45?

Money on Sidewalk Saves the Bank

down on the cheerful notice: "This bank will be open for business tomorrow." Salem had its first good sleep in four nights. All agreed that it was a much better climax than a sad ending with the villain gloating all over the place.

Frank Dent, who refused to gloat, denies that he had any altruistic motive in saving the rival bank.

"I just looked at it in a business way," he said. "There was nothing basically wrong with the Farmers' and Merchants'. Nobody had done anything crooked. The bank was morally sound. There had been abnormal withdrawals of deposits because of heavy purchases of a gas company's stock by depositors. There had been withdrawals from some of the other banks for the same purpose, but not to so great an extent in comparison with the capital and surplus of those banks. I knew that all that was needed to put the bank back on its feet was the depositing of enough money to make up for the unusual and unforeseen withdrawals. I also knew that the failure of any bank in Salem would be a bad thing for the community and might start runs on other banks, in two of which I was heavily interested. Get me right on this. I did it because it was good business."

Thus it would appear that if Dent was averse to assuming the role of a gloating villain, he had as little desire of being pushed into the foreground as a matinee idol hero who pays off the mortgage just because he has a soft heart and can't bear to see anyone suffer.

The fact, however, remains that he did it, and whatever his motives might have been, the depositors of the Farmers' and Merchants' Bank think he did "a mighty fine thing" when he put on that $30,000 sidewalk show without any advance advertising.

Since that afternoon when the sun threw long pale shadows on the main street of Salem the Farmers' and Merchants' Bank has been reorganized, with Frank Dent as its acting president and cashier. He now divides his time between three banks, instead of two, but he says that when he has the reorganized bank running smoothly he will go back to his own side of the street.

THE SOBERING-UP OF SWINBURNE

The walk to and from the Rose and Crown kept Swinburne in the open air two and a half hours and in all probability kept him alive several years longer than would have been the case without that open-air exercise. In the end, nevertheless, the Wimbledon visit proved fatal. Swinburne always refused to wear outer wraps. No matter what the weather, he went without topcoat or overshoes, and at last "caught his death o' cold," as simple-minded folk saw it.

Watts-Dunton is quoted as having said this, which is not by any means a bad sort of epitaph for any man:

"Swinburne was a great gentleman—he never broke his word."

Old Law Saves the Lady in English Racing Swindle

less than 600. It will be established to the complete satisfaction of the jury that Mrs. Peel, in order to ascertain the winner of the race, had arranged a call on that Friday at about the time of the race. She arranged it with a friend of hers in London named Dow."

As Sir Charles Gill stated, the evidence proved virtually all these things outlined, with much more of an incriminative character; yet owing to that ancient statute of the unbathed Ina, King of the West Saxons, Mr. Justice Darling was compelled to instruct the jury to find Mrs. Peel not guilty. In sentencing Capt. Peel a few minutes later the Court said to him:

"The law assumes that you coerced your wife, and she is discharged. I do not believe that you coerced her. You both profited by the fraud. There is very good reason for suspicion that Dow did give the name of the winner."

Hardly had Capt. Peel, crestfallen and showing in every line of his face that he realized fully the disgrace he had brought upon himself, been taken back to prison when a general public outburst against the old coercion statute began. This protest came from men and women both. It continues to rage throughout England, in the press, on the stump and in social gatherings. That it will be taken up by Parliament and the ancient law repealed appears to be a foregone conclusion.

"These legal caresses meted out to women are grossly unjust," is the comment of Miss Helena Normanton, a noted expert in English law, who adds: "They are simply a survival of the old attitude which regards a woman as a cat on the hearth. They are an insult to the intelligence of a woman."

"The doctrine of the influence of the husband over the wife is entirely obsolete," comments Maj. Hills, chief champion of women in the House of Commons. "Women must take the rough with the smooth, and be made responsible for their own crimes in the same way as husbands."

In one of the London journals Edith Shackleton, a special writer, makes somewhat merry over the matter. She writes: "A criminal act by a woman, if proved, should be recognized as a criminal act, even if she would have been beaten for not committing it, or even if her husband had threatened that otherwise he would eat with his knife or swear before the children or kiss the housemaid or annoy his wife in any way which his position as a husband made easy to him."

Miss Shackleton waxes serious when she says, in conclusion, regarding the coercion law: "It is an insult to the women of today, and its advertisement through the Peel case has sent a quiver of feminine indignation from Land's End to the Border."

The Temples and Tombs of the Mayas

tell, supposedly, of an event which occurred on that date. Thus, the dates of inscribed Maya history are known. The events they chronicle are not known.

From the various sources it has been possible to determine the history of the Mayan civilization to this extent. None of the dates recorded goes back beyond the year of 1000 A. D., which can be reckoned by counting back from the conquest. Maya history, then, does not begin any earlier, and presumably the great cities were not founded earlier than that. The point from which the Mayas reckoned their time (as we reckon time from the birth of Christ) is a year several centuries earlier than the earliest date of their inscriptions. Since this beginning point is far back in their prehistory, it is supposed to have been taken from some legendary event, as the Jews take the beginning of their time from the supposed date of the creation of the world. If the Maya empire seems to begin not before 1000 B. C., still the culture, since it appears in full splendor with the earliest dates, must find its beginnings at a far remoter date. What these beginnings may be is left in perfect darkness.

The earliest cities are those of the Southern Maya region. It is in them that the earliest dates are found. The dates in the northern cities begin a couple of centuries later. At the same time, the succession of the chronicled dates in the southern cities end a couple of centuries before the conquest, while those of the northern cities continue to the conquest. From this it is evident that the Maya empire began in the south. Then, for some reason, the southern cities were abandoned, and the northern cities arose and flourished.

The Spanish chronicles relate that the Maya empire in the latter period consisted of three great cities linked by a loose confederation and that in the years immediately preceding the conquest this federation was broken, with a consequent destructive period of internecine warfare, in which the forces of the Aztec empire took part. In the chaos Mayan culture began its decline.

Life among the Mayas, from the meager accounts that are extant, was considerably like that in the Valley of Mexico. Put there was no counterpart of the great imperial hegemony that was the splendid achievement of the Aztecs. The ruling cities were governed by caciques, who lived in great magnificence. Their elaborate feasts are among the few memories that circumstance has left us of the Mayas. Extravagant hospitality was a sacred custom of the race, and the entertainment of a guest was a grandiose ceremony among the patricians, with banquets where a gaudy profusion of colored cloths and plumes, of golden ornaments and plates, and of slaves bearing burdens of steaming meats, made a barbaric spectacle that affords a key to the showy splendor of the native culture. And when a guest received such hospitality, the laws of courtesy demanded that he repay it quickly with a still more magnificent feast, so that the Maya chiefs held an endless competition of carnivals.

Against this picture of palace life is set a spectacle in moody contrast—the priesthood of the temples and the sacrificial pyramids. Religion touched every aspect of Mayan life. The sacerdotal hierarchy was immensely powerful. Prayers, omens, prophecies, the reckoning of time, the reading of the stars and the offering of sacrifices, these came in close and endless succession, as public and private events. The priests were the custodians of the native culture. They were philosophers, scientists, seers. It was they who, in strange, somber brooding, devised the extraordinary Maya system of chronology, arithmetic and astronomy, who were the architects of the edifices, the sculptors, the artists of the hieroglyphs.

And, then, they were the august figures at exercises of public religion. They offered up the sheaves of maize to the harvest god. They officiated over the human victims in the sacrifices to the war god. These human sacrifices were great episodes in Maya life, and, while they do not seem to have equaled the grand massacres of the Aztecs, a part of the purpose of war was to procure victims for the sacrifice.

Below palace and temple dwelt the great mass of peasants. They cultivated the maize in the rich tropical fields, lived piously and decorously in worship of the harvest god, the war god and other deities, gathered at the sacrifices, carried the copper swords when war came and paid taxes in corn all the time.

In science the Mayas excelled chiefly in astronomy, and in that branch of astronomy which dealt with the calculation of time. Their chronology excelled that of Europe until the introduction of the Gregorian system. Indeed, the rarest marvel of the Mayas may be found in their calendar.

There were two years, the sacred and the solar. The sacred year was determined in this manner. The Maya month consisted of 20 days. This was derived from their number system, which counted in twenties, as ours in tens. Each day of the 20-day months had its name. To these the numbers from 1 to 13 were related (why 13 is unknown). At a certain date (the beginning point of Maya time) the first day of the month was regarded as being paired with 1, the second with 2, the third day with 3, etc. This continued until the thirteenth day was paired with 13. Then, the series of 1 to 13 being exhausted, the fourteenth day was paired with 1, the fifteenth day with 2, the sixteenth day with 3, etc., until the twentieth day of the month had been paired with 7.

Then the first day of the month was paired with 8, and the process continued on endlessly. After a certain number of days the first day of the month would, of course, coincide again with 1. The period between these coincidenes of first day and 1 made the Maya year. Its length may be determined arithmetically by multiplying 20 by 13. It consisted of 260 days. Each of these 260 days bore a different combination of name and number, which readily identified it.

The solar or popular year consisted of 365 days. It was divided into 18 of the 20-day months, and an added short month of five days, called the nameless days and considered a portentous holiday period. The days of the solar year were designated by name of month and date of month, as with us. Thus each day of the solar year of 365 days had its name.

Then the solar year and sacred year were combined. At the date which marked the beginning time, the first day of the solar year corresponded with the first day of the sacred year, second with the second, etc., until the 260-day sacred year was exhausted. Then the 261st day of the solar year coincided with the first day of the sacred year, the 362d with the second, etc., until the first day of the solar year corresponded once again with the first day of the sacred year. This gave a cycle of 52 years—365x260 divided by their common multiple, or 5.1. This system, thus far, is much like that of the Aztecs, but the Aztecs did not relate their 52-year cycles to any given point. Thus in Aztec chronology you constantly get the precise date in some cycle, but you don't know which cycle it is. With the Mayas the cycles begin with the date they assigned to the beginning and are numbered thereafter.

Most people are familiar with the sight of the great circular Aztec or Mayan calenders, but few understand their function. On them the complex correspondences of the days of the 52-year cycle were inscribed, and any day of the cycle could be immediately described by giving a sacred year designation (name of day and number) and a solar year designation (name of month and day of month).

Compared with this magnificent structure, our modern calendar is a crude affair, with, however, the advantages of simplicity and elasticity, which the Mays calendar lacked.

This Dog's Memory Is Green After 30 Years

outside of our family. He was sent most often to the homes of the Hardesty, Stillwell and Schulenberg families." He would carry notes to the Hardestys and Schulenbergs and frequently was sent with a basket of warm dinner for Ben Stillwell, an aged retired minister. We noticed that at the Hardesty home he always barked to attract attention. Now the Schulenberg family had several dogs and seemed to pay no attention to the bark as a signal. Max found this out and so when he went to the Schulenberg home he would not bark, but would scratch on the door. When he went to Ben Stillwell's home carrying a basket of dinner he would not risk setting the basket down to bark or scratch, but he would turn sideways to the door and wag his tail vigorously for a knocker.

"We had several colts in the barn, about 300 feet from the house. My father would go out to the barn and untie the colts and Max would lead each of them in turn to the watering trough near the house, holding the lead strap with his teeth. In the same way he would lead them back to the barn. He would do this with all the colts except one. This colt had once kicked Max and after that Max would never lead him to water.

"Max knew the proper place for many small articles around the house and frequently would 'tidy up' by putting misplaced articles where they belonged.

"My father had a tin cup with which he measured feed for the colts. Usually he would take this cup from the back porch and carry it into the barn. I recall one time when he took the cup to the barnyard, but something else demanded his attention and he set the cup on a stump near the barn door. Max came along and saw the cup where he had never seen it before. He carried it back to the house and put it in its accustomed place on the porch.

"Max was a well-behaved dog. As the saying is, he knew his place. I am inclined to think that he also felt that humans ought to know their place. I found this out to my own cost. Max was eating from a pan one day when, in a spirit if foolish playfulness, I got down on all fours and advanced toward him and growled. There was a pained and puzzled look in Max's eyes. It was as if he thought: 'This creature that I thought was a friendly human has turned into a dog and he is after my dinner.' I growled again and Max flew at me and bit my face. I still carry a trace of the scar. I don't know that Max could be blamed. I should have kept my place.

"Max's dearest friend was my mother. When she died he seemed to lose all interest in life. After mother's death my sister and I were sitting on the back porch. Max came up from the orchard and lay down at my sister's feet. He had a trick of turning over if you touched him with your foot. My sister put out her foot to touch him, but before she could do so he rolled over, gave one gasp like a long-drawn sigh and died. He was about 14 years old, but had shown no signs of infirmity before mother's death."

Among other old residents of Cuba who remember Max and his exploits are Mrs. B. H. Newman and James A. Green, lifelong neighbors of the Martyn family.

Mrs. Newman recalled the incident of the five letters.

"Of course I remember Max," she said. "He was the most wonderful dog I ever saw, or read or heard of. The Martyns lived right across the street from our home here and I saw a great deal of Max. He would go down to the postoffice in the morning with one of the boys and come back alone with the mail.

"One morning Charlie Martyn started Max home from the postoffice with five letters. On the way Max met some other dogs that he wanted to play with. He carefully laid the five letters on a big white stone by the road and went off on a lark with the other dogs.

"When Charlie came home I was over at the Martyns'. Charlie asked his mother if Max had come home with five letters. She said he had brought only four. Charlie called Max and said: 'You didn't bring all those letters. You lost one. Go and get it.' Max started out and a few minutes later he came in carrying the fifth letter.

"Another time Max was on his way home with a package of meat in a basket when in some way he dropped the basket. The cover came unfastened and the package of meat rolled out in the road. Max knew he was not supposed to handle the meat with his mouth. So he ran up the road until he met a man. He barked and tugged at the man's clothing and indicated in every way that he wanted the man to follow him. He took the man back to where the meat lay and the man put it in the basket and closed the cover and then Max carried it home.

"Max wouldn't take orders from me or any outsider. One day a drove of cattle came along. My gate was open and I was afraid the cattle would get in and trample the flowers. I called to Max and told him to shut my gate. He wagged his tail, but he didn't move. Then Mrs. Martyn came to the door and said: 'Max, shut Mrs. Newman's gate.' He did it at once.

"Max certainly was a smart dog. I recall that one of his tricks was passing around the hat when there was company at the house. He would stop before each person in turn. Everybody had to put something in the hat. Max simply wouldn't move on until this had been done. It didn't have to be money. Anything would do—a knife or a key or a ring. When everybody had contributed he would take the hat to Mrs Martyn."

James A. Green recalled the incidents of the spool of thread and the setting down of the meat for a fight. He also remembered that Max would follow any of the Martyn boys up a ladder into the hayloft or into a tree, but his most vivid memory was what he termed "a joke on Max."

"It was the only mistake I ever heard of that dog making," he said, "but it was mighty funny. I guess you have been told how Max would go upstairs and fetch things and how he knew things by name and who they belonged to.

"Well, one night one of the Martyn girls had her beau calling on her and she wanted to show how smart Max was and so she said to him: 'Max, go upstairs and get my shoes. Not the button shoes; the lace shoes.' Max sure must have got mixed up on the laces, for he came down and right into that room where that young man was, and he didn't have shoes. He had that young lady's corset."

The Girl Who Stole Her Sister's Husband

truding busybody, told her outright to keep her hands out of the affair.

Again the women went to bed in the same room, Mrs. Renzelman on the couch and Gesine in the bed. In the darkness they talked across the room. The wife pleaded with Gesine to give Herman up. Gesine said if there was to be any giving up she was not going to be the one to do it.

"You ought to be satisfied to live here with your baby and take care of the farm and the chickens," Gesine told her. "As for me, I'm going back to town in the morning. I love Herman and Herman loves me. You might as well make the best of it. I'm sleepy now, so good night."

"Good night," said the sister.

Gesine was asleep in a few minutes. The older woman lay awake, brooding. She felt an impulse to kill herself—but there was the baby. Gesine would not be kind to the baby.

Then—what? . . . Gesine!

The pistol was in a drawer in the next room. Mrs. Renzelman arose and got the weapon, loaded it and glided back. In the mahogany bed lay Gesine, her yellow hair in braids upon the pillow.

Nobody heard the shot fired in the lonely little farmhouse. The body of Gesine lay silent, moveless. She had passed unconsciously to the sleep of death. Mrs. Renzelman dropped the pistol to the floor, went over to the window, sat down and remained there in a kind of stupor until daylight. Then she wrote to her husband, telling him what she had done.

Then passed two days, two nights. Still the woman waited, watching. Up the road, early on the second morning, she saw Herman approaching—and with him were the police.

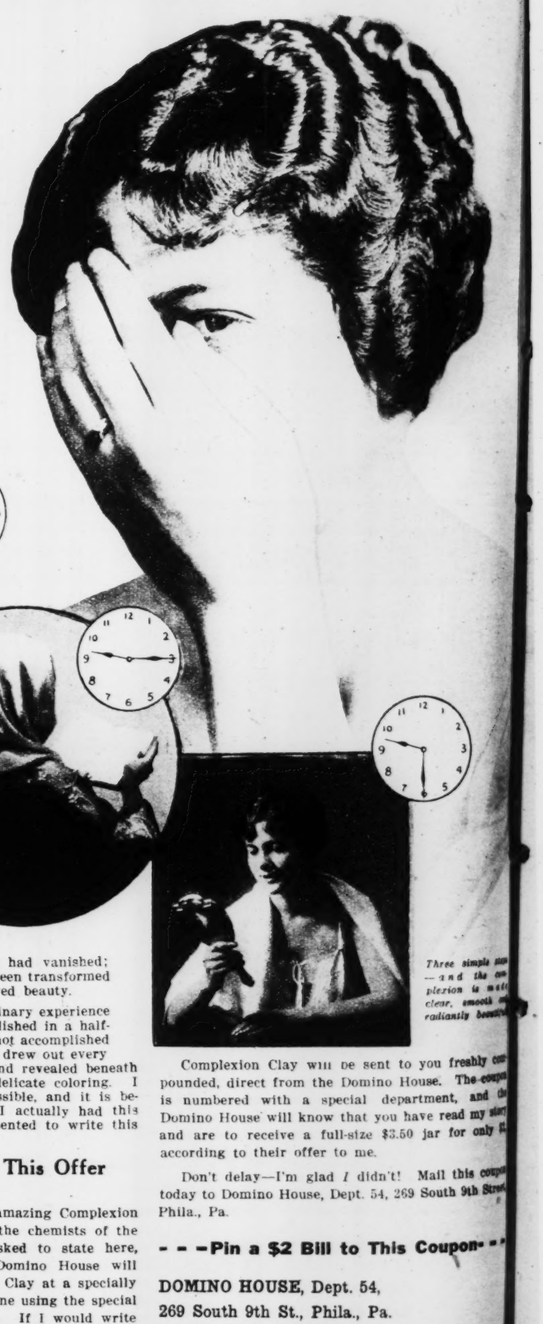
How A New Kind of Clay Remade My Complexion in 30 Minutes

For reasons which every woman will understand, I have concealed my name and my identity. But I have asked the young woman whose pictures you see here to pose for me, so that you can see exactly how the marvelous new discovery remakes one's complexion in one short half hour.



I COULD hardly believe my eyes. Just thirty minutes before my face had been blemished and unsightly; my skin had been coarse, sallow and lifeless. Now it was actually transformed. I was amazed when I saw how beautiful my complexion had become—how soft its texture, how exquisite its coloring. Why, the blemishes and impurities had been lifted right away, and a charming, smooth, clear skin revealed underneath! What was this new kind of magic?

You see, I never really did have a pretty complexion. My skin is very sensitive. It always used to be so coarse and rough that I hated to use powder. Sometimes pimples and eruptions would appear overnight—and as for blackheads, I never could get rid of them!

I will tell you why I decided to use the remarkable new Complexion Clay—just once—and see what it would do for my skin. I had met a woman I had not seen for a long time, an old neighbor of mine. I remembered distinctly that she was always older than I, yet strangers would have insisted that I was the older. Her skin was as soft and smooth and firm as a child's—not a blemish marred its pink-and-white loveliness. I was terribly self-conscious as I stood there talking to her; I knew how dull and lifeless and unsightly my own skin was. I was glad when we said good-bye and I hurried away.

But that little incident made me determine to do everything in my power to clear my blotchy skin. I realized that a good complexion was more important than good features; that with a clear, fresh complexion any woman can appear attractive. If others could have beautiful complexions I could, too. I began a perfect orgy of experimenting with creams and lotions and messy ointments.

I Use Wrong Methods—And They Spoil My Skin

To be perfectly frank with you, I tried everything there was to try. I greeted each new thing with hope—but hope was soon abandoned as my skin became only more harsh and colorless. Finally I gave up everything in favor of massage. But suddenly I found that tiny wrinkles were beginning to show around the eyes and chin—and I assure you I gave up massage mighty quick.

Wasn't there anything that would clear my complexion, that would make it soft and smooth and firm? Wasn't there anything I could do—without wasting more time and more money? It was very discouraging, and I was tempted more than once to give it up—especially when I saw that after all my efforts my skin was more dull and coarse than ever before.

In fact, on one very disappointing occasion I firmly resolved never to use anything but soap and water on my face again. But then something very wonderful happened—and, being a woman, I promptly changed my mind!

What Made Me Change My Mind

Did you know that the outer layer of the skin, called the epidermis, is constantly dying and being replaced by new cells? I didn't—until I read a very remarkable announcement. That announcement made me change my mind. It explained, simply and clearly, how blackheads and nearly all facial eruptions are caused when the dead skin-scales and bits of dust clog the pores. Impurities form in the stifled pores—and the results are soon noticeable.

The announcement went on to explain how scientists had discovered a marvelous clay, which, in only one application, drew dust, dirt and other impurities and harmful accumulations to the surface. This Complexion Clay, in only a half-hour, actually lifted away the blemishes and the impurities. And when it was removed the skin beneath was found to be soft, smooth, clear and charming! Can you blame me for wanting to try this wonderful discovery on my own blemished complexion?

My Extraordinary Experience With Complexion Clay

I won't bore you with details. Suffice to say that I applied the Complexion Clay I had read about to my face one evening at nine o'clock and settled myself comfortably for a half-hour of reading. Soon I was conscious of a cool, drawing sensation. In a few moments the clay on my face had dried into a fragrant mask. And as it dried and hardened there was a wonderful tingling feeling. I could actually feel the millions of tiny pores breathing, freeing themselves of the impurities that had stifled them, giving up bits of dust and the accumulations that had bored deeply beneath the surface. It was a feeling almost of physical relief; every inch of my face seemed stirred suddenly into new life and fervor.

At nine-thirty I removed the Complexion Clay and, to my utter astonishment, found that I had a brand-new complexion! Hidden beauty had actually been revealed! Every blackhead had vanished; the whole texture of the skin had been transformed into smooth, clear, delicately-colored beauty.

I shall never forget my extraordinary experience with Complexion Clay. It accomplished in a half-hour what other preparations had not accomplished in years. With gentle firmness it drew out every impurity from the stifled pores and revealed beneath a skin of exquisite texture and delicate coloring. I would never have believed it possible, and it is because it did it for me, because I actually had this wonderful experience, that I consented to write this story for publication.

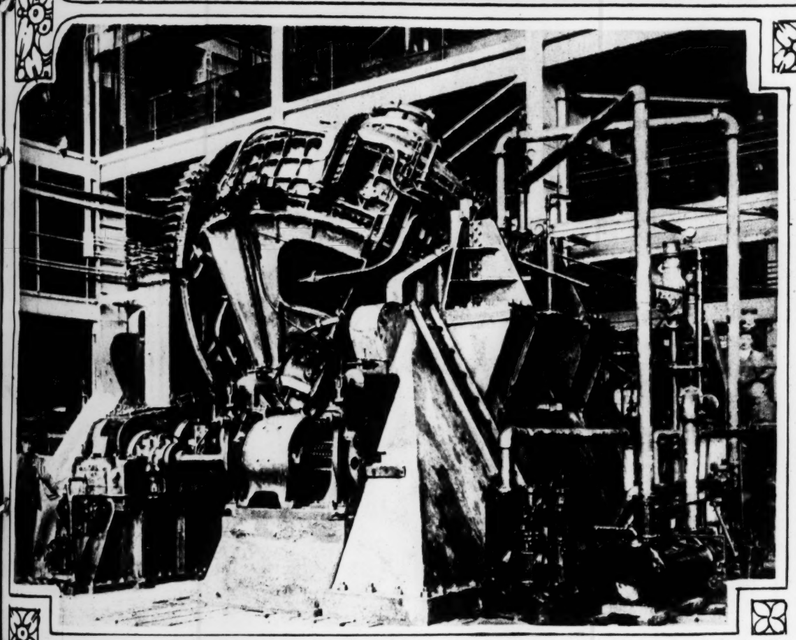
"MISSOURI IN WAR" PLACED IN STATE CAPITOL

This mural painting, "Misisouri in War," by Charles Hoffbauer of Paris, who served as a soldier of France throughout the war, has been placed upon a wall of the House of Representatives in the State Capitol at Jefferson City. Its theme is the valor and patriotism of Missouri soldiers and American nurses in the Argonne. The canvas is 49 by 20 feet and the price paid M. Hoffbauer was $25,000.



It is claimed that this new giant stabilizer, recently tested successfully at the Westinghouse electric plant in Philadelphia, will eliminate seasickness on ocean-going vessels by eliminating the ship's roll. It works on the principle of a common gyroscope. —Wide World Photos.

To free your skin from blemishes —the right way

ASK a skin specialist why it is that your skin is continually breaking out with disfiguring little blemishes. He will almost certainly tell you that this condition comes from an outside infection.

Authorities on the skin now say that skin blemishes are generally caused by bacteria and parasites which are carried into the pores from outside, through dust and soot in the air. By the following simple treatment, you can gradually but thoroughly free your skin from blemishes:

EACH night just before retiring, wash your face with Woodbury's Facial Soap and warm water, finishing with a dash of cold water, and dry carefully.

Now dip the tips of your fingers in warm water and rub them on the cake of Woodbury's until they are covered with a heavy, creamlike lather.

Cover each blemish with a thick coat of this and leave it on for ten minutes.

Rinse your face thoroughly, first with clear hot water, then with cold.

Supplement this treatment with the regular use of Woodbury's Facial Soap in your daily toilet, to keep the new skin which is constantly forming free from blemishes.

Get a cake of Woodbury's today, at any drug store or toilet goods counter. A 25-cent cake will last for a month or six weeks of this treatment and for general cleansing use. The Andrew Jergens Co., Cincinnati, New York and Perth, Ontario.

NEARLY anyone can make a cigarette. Just take some tobacco, roll it in paper, moisten the edge, and there you are!

But to buy tobaccos, then to cure, condition, age, blend and "make"—that is quite another story.

The buying of tobaccos is a business in itself. Only practical buyers can tell when the leaf has been properly grown and cured; when the color, texture and weight are just right. Only "old hands" at the factory know when the tobaccos thus selected have been brought to the right "order" or condition for storage. And only experienced blenders know how to balance the different tobaccos, one against another, for aroma, for body, for taste.

Yet these are but a few of the many important steps in the making of a good cigarette. There is not space to tell you of the care and cleanliness in every step all along the line—nor of the enormous investments in tobacco, factories and equipment that have made possible this truly great cigarette.

But remember this—

Taste is a matter of tobacco quality and Chesterfield contains the finest selection of high-grade Turkish and Domestic tobaccos ever used in a cigarette selling at the price.

The Art of making Perfect Salad Dressings with MAZOLA

By A. Louise Andrea

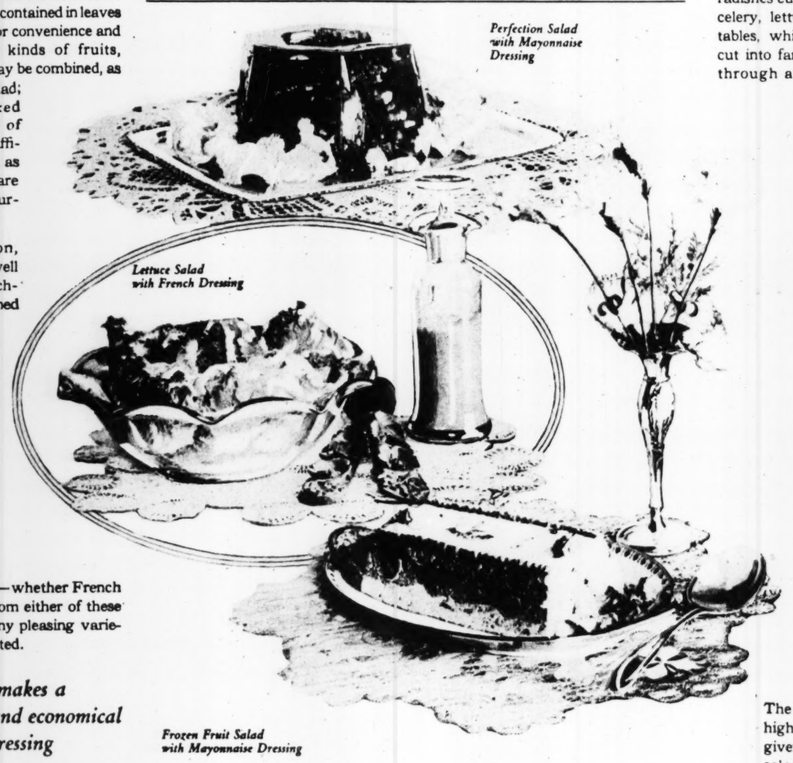
MADE from fresh, live materials, they furnish remarkably beneficial properties for nerves, blood, body and brain.

Our own food scientists have discovered and advocate the benefits of vitamine principles contained in leaves of salad plants. For convenience and economy several kinds of fruits, canned or fresh, may be combined, as in Frozen Fruit Salad; or several cooked vegetables, none of which might be sufficient to serve alone, as in Perfection Salad, are a real treat, and nourishing.

A can of salmon, while serving very well for the hurried luncheon, can be transformed into a delectable dish by the addition of a few leaves of crisp lettuce, shredded, and a chilled cucumber, diced; all blended with a mayonnaise dressing. Meats, as well as fish, form appetizing salads.

The really important part of the salad is the dressing—whether French or mayonnaise. From either of these basic dressings many pleasing varieties may be concocted.

Mrs. Andrea was awarded the gold medal as lecturer on food and culinary topics, at the Panama-Pacific International Exposition, San Francisco, in 1915; appointed official lecturer on foods and canning for the New York International Exposition in 1918; and recognized as one of the greatest living authorities on food preparation.



Perfection Salad with Mayonnaise Dressing

Lettuce Salad with French Dressing

Frozen Fruit Salad with Mayonnaise Dressing

Mazola makes a most delicious and economical salad dressing

Mazola mixes readily with other salad ingredients, making a French dressing, or mayonnaise that is smooth, delightfully firm, and so bland and adaptable that it harmonizes with the flavoring of any salad dressing.

It is a great saving of time to make up French dressing in quantity. It takes little longer to measure for a pint than for a single salad amount, and with this foundation you may quickly mix a number of new, tasty dressings.

The same is true of mayonnaise made in extra proportions. From it may be compounded Sauce Tartare for fish, Ambrosia for fruit macedoine, Thousand Island, Remoulade, Russian and other dressings that go so acceptably with green salads.

Color Mazola-Mayonnaise

Where color schemes are desired mayonnaise, a beautiful yellow, is often appropriate just as made. It may, however, be changed to pink, red or green by addition of a few drops of vegetable coloring to impart tint desired.

Ingredients for salads and dressings should be chilled before combining. This includes garnish, which may be radishes cut to represent tulips, curled celery, lettuce hearts, cooked vegetables, whites of hard-boiled eggs cut into fancy shapes, yolks pressed through a sieve, stuffed olives or mayonnaise rosettes, made by adding a little dissolved gelatine to mayonnaise, and then pressing through a bag and rose tube.

The summer salad is especially attractive when molded in gelatine as Perfection Salad shown in the illustration. Brush out mold with Mazola to allow salad to turn out perfectly.

Frozen salads furnish another ideal way of serving. The ice cream freezer may be utilized or the salad frozen by burying in equal quantities of ice and rock salt. A particularly attractive decoration for this would be rosettes made from the stiffened mayonnaise which is illustrated here.

The greatest sale of any salad oil

The wonderful economy and high quality of Mazola have given it the greatest sale of any salad oil.

If you have not yet tried Mazola, get a can from your grocer. Once you try it for salads you will always prefer it to olive oil and other imported oils.

Your grocer sells Mazola in pint, quart, half gallon, and gallon cans. The large size cans are most economical.

MAZOLA FRENCH DRESSING

4 tablespoons Mazola	1 tablespoon lemon juice
1 tablespoon vinegar	⅛ teaspoon white pepper
½ teaspoon salt	Dash of paprika

Put contents in bottle and shake until blended. Chill before using.

TARTARE SAUCE

2 tablespoons chopped gherkins
2 tablespoons chopped capers
2 tablespoons chopped olives
1 tablespoon minced parsley
1 cup mayonnaise dressing

Blend the above and serve with salmon salad, boiled oysters, or small broiled fish.

MAZOLA-MAYONNAISE

1½ cups Mazola	1 teaspoon salt
2 tablespoons lemon juice	¼ teaspoon white pepper
2 tablespoons vinegar	1 teaspoon English mustard
2 yolks	1 teaspoon vinegar

Put yolks in a round bottom bowl, add salt, mustard, pepper and the teaspoon of vinegar and mix thoroughly (a Dover beater is best for this) then gradually add Mazola, several tablespoons at a time, and beat the oil in thoroughly before adding any more. As the dressing thickens, thin it with a little of the lemon juice and vinegar. When done, the mayonnaise should be very stiff. Proportions given will make about one pint.

Just two things to do for a perfect manicure

Cuticle smooth and even, nails polished and pink

JUST two things to do, instead of half a dozen, to make your nails look as if they had been professionally manicured.

Instead of tedious soaking, and dangerous cutting, you just work carefully about the nails with an orange stick dipped in Cutex Cuticle Remover, then rinse, and the hard, dry edges of dead cuticle will simply wipe away.

In just a fraction of the time that soaking and cutting used to take, you can achieve the smoothness of the nail rims that was never possible when you cut the cuticle.

Here are two new polishes, too, that help to make the manicure infinitely quicker, easier than it used to be. Cutex Powder Polish is practically instantaneous. And it is more brilliant and lasts longer than the luster you get from any other polish. The new Liquid Polish used as a finishing touch will make your manicure last twice as long. It goes on swiftly, dries instantly, and leaves the most brilliant, delicately-tinted luster.

Cutex Sets come at 60c, $1.00, $1.50 and $3.00. Or each article separately at 35c. At all drug and department stores in the United States and Canada.

The Double-Back Knicker in the new Vanitisilk

IN this knicker, Vanity Fair combines the celebrated double-back feature with its new silk, Vanitisilk.

Because a knicker has always worn through first in the back where the corset rubs, Vanity Fair places a double thickness of glove-silk where the friction comes—this means a double life for the knicker.

The new weave—Vanitisilk—is like no other glove-silk one has seen. It has all the Vanity Fair luxury of quality plus a clinging softness which adds a comfort and grace of line. Beauty lies, too, in the delicate contrast which its shadow striping affords. You may see it in the shops showing Vanity Fair.

Each article of Vanity Fair under-apparel has a special feature of its own. Some of these points are described beneath the illustrations below.

All are fashioned of Vanitisilk exquisitely tailored. The quality makes it the economical underwear and so does the saving you effect in laundry charges.
